Party Revolt Fails to Upset President's Optimism

'Will Fight Through To End,' He Says; South Indicates It May 'Close Ranks'

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday that he was not disturbed by the revolt against him within the Democratic Party, and he looked as if he meant it.

He said it was true that he would "fight through to the end" to whatever political fate awaits him.

"Are you still cheerful about the Democrats winning in November?" a reporter asked.

Mr. Truman chuckled and said that, yes, the Democrats would win in November.

A reporter, apparently thinking of angry politicians in the South, asked if he thought that Democrats who have taken a "walk" will walk back in November.

Wait and See, Truman Says

The Chief Executive, still smiling, said to wait until November and see. He said he was going to give them a chance to walk back.

He was reminded that Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. M.), a close friend, had quoted him as saying the other day that he would "fight through to the end."

Mr. Truman said that he had been correctly quoted—that it was the truth.

He disclosed that he had acquired the original of Cliff Berryman's cartoon in Sunday's Star. This showed the President on the White House portico, standing on a mat inscribed "civil rights." In answer to a question from Miss Democracy about whether he'd "rather be right than President," he was saying, "I stand pat."

May Win Back South

Some Democratic strategists have been predicting that the Southerners would close ranks and get behind Mr. Truman if the Nation itself seemed endangered. Yesterday there was some evidence that they might be right.

"I think the President is clicking on all 16 now," said Representative Eugene E. Cox (D., Ga.) in predicting that Mr. Truman would soon ask for about 10 billion dollars more for national defense.

Cox has been critical of Mr. Truman's proposals to end Jim Crowism in the South.

California Row Reported

An anti-Truman revolt among California Democrats was reported by the Associated Press from Sacramento, scene of an emergency meeting of the State's delegation to the party's national convention.

Party leaders said that Mr. Truman's change of policy on the partition plan in Palestine last week had caused a rift among delegates from the Los Angeles-Southern California area.

James Roosevelt, Democratic State chairman, called a meeting of the delegates because of "a serious political situation."

Ancient Species Of Redwood Tree Found in China

San Francisco, March 25 (U.P.)—A species of ancient redwood trees, older even than those of California and Oregon, has been discovered in a remote village in the interior of China, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

The paper said three so-called "dawn-redwoods," known scientifically as the metasequoia, have been found at Motaochi, Szechwan Province.

The dawn redwoods are believed to have flourished 100 million years ago, about the time of the dinosaurs. They supposedly became extinct 20 million years ago. Fossils of the trees were found in 1828 near Frankfurt, Germany.

An expedition headed by Dr. Ralph Chaney of the University of California and the Carnegie Institution of Washington, made a hazardous trip in bandit-infested territory to find the trees.

But Murders, Auto Thefts Drop

FBI Reports Sharp Increase In District Crime Last Year

A sharp increase in Washington's reported crime rate for 1947 was revealed yesterday in the annual uniform crime reports of the FBI.

The report did not discuss how much of the increase in crimes here over 1946 was due to the adoption of a new crime reporting system by the Metropolitan Police Department.

In only two categories of crimes was a decrease shown in 1947 from the previous year. Murders dropped from 96 to 65 and auto thefts from 1970 to 1643.

But increases in five other categories were startling. The number of robberies reported in 1947 jumped from 587 to 959 from the previous year. Aggravated assaults went from 663 to 2390. The number of burglaries and housebreakings went from 2836 to 4593. Larcenies of $50 or more jumped from 1444 to 1939. And petty larcenies (those under $50) spiraled from 4306 to 9909.

In June, 1947, The Washington Post revealed that local police had been systematically withholding or "pocketing" reports of certain crimes.

This was subsequently verified by the FBI in an investigation and brought about installation of the FBI system of crime reporting. Although the new crime-reporting system here was not in full operation until January 1, 1948, the Washington crime figures for 1947 were collected on the FBI basis. The figures for 1946 reflect the old system under which numerous crime reports were kept from the statistics.

The more truthful report of crime statistics in the District has shown Washington to be actually one of the most crime-ridden cities in the United States.

Because there were fewer homicides here in 1947 than in 1946, Washington dropped from a tie for eighth place among major cities in the number of murders to twelfth place. This city was eleventh in the number of auto thefts in 1946 and so remained in 1947.

But in other crimes, Washington has moved up the list. For example:

Robberies—From fourteenth to sixth place.

Aggravated assaults—from 11th to 3d place.

Burglaries—from 11th to 4th place.

Grand larcenies—from 9th to 5th place.

Petty larcenies—from 13th to 4th place.

The FBI report shows that Washington had more burglaries and more larcenies than New York City.

In releasing the annual report, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, warned of a possible return of gangs like those of the 1920's.

The report said a serious crime

Home for Aged Plea to Stress Fire Hazard

D. C. Welfare Board To Bypass Commission In Direct Appeal

The Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains, D. C., is a haven for 460 old folk—but a haven that could prove to be their funeral pyre.

Seriously troubled because the antiquated buildings there are a "fire trap," the Board of Public Welfare yesterday decided to plead directly with Congress for funds for new buildings.

In the unprecedented move, the board will bypass the District Commissioners slashed the board's $9,500,000 construction program for 1949 to $370,000 before sending it to Congress. Hearings on the over-all 1949 District budget begin March 30.

Fear for Bedridden

The board's greatest concern at the Blue Plains institution are the 136 old people who rae bedridden in the infirmary. They have only one fire exit to use.

"Those old people wouldn't have a chance in a fire," A. J. Driscoll, chairman of the institutions committee, declared yesterday. To a man, the District welfare heads agreed with him.

First on their construction priority list, they disclosed, is erection of a new infirmary at Blue Plains. The present barnlike structure, of which the infirmary is a part, was built in 1904. It is not fireproofed and lacks sanitary controls.

"The whole place is a fire trap," Driscoll thundered.

Outmoded Equipment

Complaints at the home include kitchen equipment more than 75 years old, other equipment that is "outmoded," and a sewage disposal problem.

Sewage from the home and from the nearby Industrial Home School is discharged raw into Oxon Creek about a mile above the Potomac River channel.

The case for the home will be stated "in the near future" before Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, and A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.), chairman of its subcommittee on Health Education and Recreation.

Board chairman Edgar Morris and Driscoll were instructed to present the two congressmen with the picture of conditions at the home. They will also submit long-ready plans for a new home and estimates of construction costs.

Acting Welfare Director Raymond F. Clapp disclosed that Representative Miller had invited the board to confer with him. In ad-

Embezzling Teller Put On Probation

A $2100 a year bank teller was given three years probation yesterday for embezzling $1800 in bank funds to pay off his family debts.

In sentencing the teller, Robert E. Rhodes, 23, of 70 Farragut pl. nw., Justice Alexander Holtzoff of District Court said that because of the low salaries paid by banks to their "trusted employes" large amounts of money passing through their hands serve as a "great temptation," especially in view of the high cost of living.

Justice Holtzoff commented that it was improbable that the bank would obtain a repairman for the $2100 a year rate, yet it dared pay that sum to a bank teller. The case involved the Union Trust Co.

In explaining the personnel policy of the banking firm, A. Scott Offutt, vice president of Union Trust, said when informed of the judge's decision:

"I believe that our salaries compare very favorably with that of any private industry in Washington. We try to upgrade from within and have an apprenticeship system. We might today begin an employe at $1400 a year. When I began, I was making $25 a month, though.

"We hired this man when he had no special qualifications and were training him. His salary had risen from $1800 a year and he was on the way up. From the appearances, it was more a case of the cost of high living rather than the high cost of living. It seems a shame that private industry should take the brunt of a plea of mercy."

Rhodes informed the court through Attorney H. Clifford Allder that his relatives had reimbursed the bank for the funds taken. Rhodes had married and was trying to support a wife and child on his salary, but had found it impossible, he said.

In another case, Francis L. Brown, 18, of 1438 D st. se., was given a one-to-three-year term for three burglaries committed here recently. Sentencing here was by Justice Edward M. Curran.

The theft of $3970 in jewelry from Cramer, Inc., here sent two other 18-year-old youths to prison. They are Lawrence G. Howard of 1008 26th st. nw., who received 5 to 15 months and Lloyd G. Stewart, 125 16th st. se., who received one to three years.

Truman Asks For Truce In Palestine

U. S. Not Giving Up On Partition Plan, He Says; Proposal Received Coldly

President Truman yesterday proposed a truce between Jew and Arab in Palestine to head off further "violence and bloodshed." The reaction was not encouraging.

The Washington Arab Office, representing the seven Arab nations, called Mr. Truman's statement "fantastic" and said it should serve as "a timely warning to Arabs to beware of all United States maneuvers."

A dispatch from Jerusalem last night said that Arabs and Jews were "little impressed" by Mr. Truman's proposal.

In Cairo spokesmen for the Arab Higher Committee maintained an attitude of no compromise with Zionism.

At Lake Success, seat of the United Nations, little or no hope was held out for the success of the President's truce plan.

Partition Not Abandoned

The Chief Executive, in a formal statement, emphasized that the latest American proposal for a United Nations trusteeship in Palestine did not mean that this country has abandoned the partition idea.

"Unfortunately," he said, "it has become clear that the partition plan cannot be carried out at this time by peaceful means. We could not undertake to impose this solution on the people of Palestine by the use of American troops, both on Charter grounds and as a matter of national policy."

With Britain pulling her troops out of Palestine on May 15, he said, emergency action was called for to prevent violence and bloodshed in the Holy Land, and hence this country's proposal for a United Nations trusteeship to provide a government to keep the peace.

Asks Arab-Jewish Talks

But if tragedy is to be averted in Palestine, he said, "an immediate truce must be reached between the Arabs and Jews of that country." He said he was instructing Warren Austin, American Ambassador at the seat of the United Nations, to urge upon the Security Council that representatives of the Arabs and Jews be called at once to the council table to arrange such a truce.

After President Truman had read his statement at a White House news conference, a reporter pointed out that a considerable amount of criticism went back to this country's backing of partition in the first place.

"Couldn't these difficulties have been foreseen?" the reporter asked.

Mr. Truman reminded the reporter of something he had said before, that any schoolboy's hindsight is worth more than the President's foresight.

Taft Criticizes

Secretary of State Marshall said later that the President had made a very clear statement on the Palestine issue, and told reporters that he wasn't going to complicate matters by adding to it.

A reporter, in asking Marshall a question, said something about this country's decision to "abandon partition."

Marshall, obviously irritated, broke in and said that he would not answer the question unless it

Services Ask Draft of 220,000 Single Men, 19-25, in Year; Russians Rebuked Over Berlin

Marshall Declares U. S. Plans to Stay In Its Sector of 4-Power Occupation

Soviet tactics in the Allied Control Council in Berlin brought a sharp rebuke from Secretary Marshall yesterday, with a new reminder to the Russians that the United States intends to stay in Berlin.

The Secretary told his news conference that the United States would go on occupying its sector of the city in spite of the few American troops in what he called an island in Russian-occupied territory.

He also issued a statement taking note of the Soviet commander's walkout from the Control Council last Saturday. It said that for almost three years Soviet tactics had largely "frustrated" the efforts of American representatives to make the Control Council work effectively.

Warns of Disruption

Recalling that the Council and the joint occupation were set up by governmental agreement, the statement said:

"Any further attempt to disrupt the functioning of the Allied Control Authority, as initially suggested by the conduct of the Soviet representative on March 20, could only be construed as reflecting an intention, which the United States does not share, to renounce efforts to obtain four-power agreement on policies for Germany and would be regarded as unilateral action aimed against the unification of Germany.

"In accordance with the international agreement binding on all four control powers, the United States intends to continue to fulfil its responsibilities as a member of the Control Council and as a joint occupant of the city of Berlin."

Broadcast by 'Voice'

This statement, promptly broadcast abroad by the "Voice of America," was a clear attempt to put the blame on Russia if the present four-power council should break down.

The Secretary made several other moves yesterday in the continuing political warfare between the United States and Russia:

1. He issued a statement blasting the Soviet-dominated "German People's Congress" as "a cruel deception upon the German people." He said it represented only a small minority of the German people, and had no legitimate claim to represent the German people as a whole.

2. He issued still another letting the Russians and Finns know that the United States was watching developments in Finland. The statement said that a majority of Finns were anxious to restrict the scope of the military pact which Russia is seeking. Incidentally, the statement disclosed that the full text of President Truman's message to Congress last week was published by two leading Finnish dailies and was covered well by all except the Communist press.

3. The Secretar, told his news conference that the United States Government was considering right now what support to give the five-power military and political pact signed at Brussels by Britain, France and the Benelux countries. He said he was not ready, however, to announce the nature of such support.

President Truman made his own contribution to the day's diplomatic warfare by a new encouragement to the Greek people to defeat the Communist guerillas. It took the form of a message to King Paul on the 127th anniversary of Greek independence.

"It is a painful fact," said the message, "that in many countries the profound hopes for a world free from fear of aggression are being extinguished by the forces of international totalitarianism which are seeking, through internal and external pressures and through

Policy Termed 'Haywire'

Tighter Control Is Predicted On Exports to Eastern Europe

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Cries of treason, forecasts of stricter export controls and a demand that persons permitting aircraft engine sales to Russia be prosecuted resulted yesterday from revelations before a House subcommittee investigating sales of war surplus.

Meanwhile, it was expected that today would bring action to block future shipments of any goods that might help build up the Russian war potential. The action is to be taken by the Commerce Department, it was understood.

Chairman Rizley (R., Okla.) of the subcommittee suspended hearings until next week, while investigators were sent to New York to look into shipments to Russia and her satellites reported by witnesses. He told The Washington Post he did not believe his committee would make a formal report on the matter but certainly would seek a change in Commerce Department policy governing export licenses.

"It seems to me their policy is a little haywire," said Rizley, "in view of the way things have been going in the last six or seven months. It looks like no policy at all when we spend money to protect western Europe from communism and then send war materials to the Communists."

Until about a month ago export licenses were required only for foreign sales of materials in short supply. Since then, export licenses have been required for all sales to Europe above $100.

President Truman at his news conference yesterday observed that Russia was at the present time a friendly country. He added that many of the shipments being criticized were the result of sales made several years ago.

During the day, these developments appeared:

1. Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) demanded that Attorney General Clark prosecute the persons who permitted shipment of aircraft engines to the USSR.

2. Richard F. Fincke, Washington aircraft engine dealer, told the Rizley subcommittee he reported to the State Department and the FBI the sale of 40 surplus aircraft engines to Russia several months after the engines were shipped. He said the department "encouraged relationships I had with Russia and with every other person behind the iron curtain."

3. Chairman Shafer (R., Mich.) of a House Armed Services subcommittee said Secretary of Commerce Harriman testified in closed session that steps were being taken to block future shipment of any goods which might help build up the Russian war potential.

4. Shafer said the State Depart-

600 Guerillas Kill Leaders To Surrender

Rebels Quit After Long Encirclement By Greek Troops

Athens, Greece, March 25 (U.P.)—An estimated 600 guerillas who have been encircled for days in the snowy Pierria mountain area by Greek government troops mutinied and killed their leaders so they could surrender, press dispatches from Salonika reported today.

Greek troops discovered the bodies of 11 rebels near the guerilla headquarters destroyed yesterday in the Pierria area. Eighty-four others were reported captured at the former headquarters.

In Athens, Dwight Griswold, head of the American Aid Mission, said over the Greek radio that Greece should recreate and revitalize itself in the manner proclaimed by Pericles.

Reds Assailed As House Ends Aid Debate

All Indications Point To Overwhelming Passage Next Week

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The House finished general debate on the $6,205,000,000 foreign aid bill yesterday in a flurry of angry oratory against communism and Soviet Russia.

It was clear that the House saw the bill only as a check on communism, and was determined to pass it overwhelmingly next week.

Warlike talk moved Representative Frances P. Bolton (R., Ohio) to say she was "shocked and out of sympathy with those who say 'Let's fight them now and get it over with.'"

Made Study of Communism

"To what end—more bitterness, more agony, the almost total destruction of what is now left?" she exclaimed. "And where? On what terrain, with what weapons? Do those who cry aloud for more and more destruction know what they are saying?"

Mrs. Bolton, who headed a subcommittee that made a study of communism expressed confidence that the revival of western Europe would check communism without war.

"Anyone who has watched the succession of events with awareness, with a seeing eye," she said, "knows well that the Kremlin has recognized the tolling of a bell, and that it has speeded up its program, knowing that if western Europe pulls itself together and puts its house in order communism will be unable to take over."

Colmer Assails Stalin

Representative Colmer (D., Miss.), who visited Russia and interviewed Joseph Stalin in 1946, called Stalin a dictator "as unconscionable as Hitler," and demanded that shipments of industrial goods to Russia be stopped. Congress Is Asked To Triple Armed Strength; Subs Seen Off U. S., Navy Says

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

America's defense chiefs yesterday put before Congress a military expansion program calling for the drafting of at least 220,000 single men aged 19 through 25 within the next 12 months.

In blunt tough words, they described the plan as aimed at stopping Russian aggression and averting war.

Armed forces of 1,915,000 were blueprinted.

Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan, in addition, sprung a sensation, telling the committee that submarines "not belonging to any nation West of the Iron Curtain" have been sighted "off our shores."

He added that he was not "prepared to evaluate the significance of these sightings" but that "we all recall that an early step of the Germans in 1917 and 1941 was to deploy submarines off our coasts."

Subs Seen in Pacific

Later a high Navy official said three "unknown" subs had been sighted in the Pacific—one only 200 miles from the Pacific coast.

The broad 3½-billion-dollar preparedness plan emphasizes readying the Army for emergency action by tripling its available striking force maintained at home.

Present warship crews would be brought to full peacetime strength under the program, while the Air Force's present 55 groups would be "beefed up" by additional planes and men.

This "short-term" program, which would add 349,500 officers and men to regular armed forces next year. It was coupled with a "long-term" plan to build up "adequate reserves" by training 850,000 18-year-old youths annually under UMT.

Air Figure Defended

Cost of the program was listed as follows: 775 millions for aircraft procurement, research and development for the Air Force and Naval Aviation, probably split 60-40 betwen the services; about 760 millions for military personnel costs in expanding the regular services; 480 millions more than already in the 1949 budget for starting UMT; and nearly 1.5 billions for procurement of weapons and supplies, maintenance and operations.

Failure to recommend a large air expansion brought protests from air-minded Senators late in the day. Under questioning they drew from Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington and Gen. Carl Spaatz, USAF Chief of Staff, recommendations for substantianl increased air power.

This rift in the previously solid armed services backing for the program brought Defense Secretary James Forrestal back to the stand. He had led off the all-day hearing with a plea for the support of "balanced" forces.

Air Expansion "Next Year"

The defense chief told the committee that the full 70-group program urged by special presidential congressional air policy boards at Symington's and Spaatz's recommendation would cost the Nation an additional 15 billion dollars a year beyond the present proposed program.

The startling sum for air power, he admitted, was only a rough estimate, and includes building up the Army, Navy and merchant

Sullivan Fires New Warning at Navy

United States Navy annals note few instances where an apprentice seaman ever saw the day he could tell the White House it had a "one shot" Navy, and keep out of the brig.

John L. Sullivan is one who did.

But when he spoke he was the boss—Secretary of the Navy—and his broadside of criticism was aimed at curtailment of the fleet. Yesterday he fired another warning flare when he disclosed that submarines "not belonging to any nation west of the iron curtain" had been sighted in American waters.

A logical, affable friend-maker, 47-year-old Sullivan, bluntly punches a point home when the time arises—and usually retains his friends at the same time.

A stalwart Democrat, but never an outspoken New Dealer, Sullivan came to Washington officially in 1939 as assistant to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Four months later he was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, leaving behind him a successful career in New Hampshire law.

By mid-1945 he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air—sworn in on the flight deck of the USS Shangri-la in the Pacific. Last August he became Secretary of the Navy with the elevation of James Forrestal as Secretary of Defense.

Four months later he told President Truman's Air Policy Committee that "serious" concern exists that America's defense forces have been so weakened as to invite a third global war. It was then he called the Fleet a "one-shot Navy."

With Mrs. Sullivan, the former Priscilla Manning of Manchester, New Hampshire, and their children, Patricia 10, Charles Manning 7, and Deborah 3, they live at 4871 Glenbrook rd nw.

World Bank Lends $16,000,000 for Chilean Projects

The World Bank yesterday lent Chile 16 million dollars.

It made a loan of $13,500,000 for a hydroelectric development and a loan of $2,500,000 to the Chilean Development Corp. to buy agricultural machinery.

Both loans are guaranteed by the Chilean government.

Chile had asked 40 million dollars for hydroelectric development and modernization of a railway, and five million dollars for purchase of agricultural machinery.

The loans are the first which the bank has approved in the development field and are in accord with one of the main objectives of the bank's policies—namely, to assist in the development of territories of members by facilitating the investment of capital for productive purposes, including the encouragement of development of productive facilities and resources in less developed countries.

New Jet Engine Rushed for the P-86

It was designed to produce 5000 pounds of thrust, the equivalent to 5000 horsepower at 375 miles an hour, it was said, and is intended for use in the North American P-86 fighter, with swept-back wings, now powered with the J-35, rated at about 4000 pounds of thrust fleet in proportion to give the support required for such an air force.

And he added that "next year" he probably will urge substantial air power expansion. At present, he indicated, we do not have new-type warplanes sufficiently developed to warrant placing large production orders.

To add 349,000 men to the Army, Navy and Air Force next year, Forrestal estimated would require drafting 220,000 men in addition to those who volunteer. If UMT is adopted, another 180,000 officers and men will be required to train the "umptees" and maintain the camps. Additional men would have to be drafted to replace soldiers, sailors and airmen assigned to such work, plus Reserves drawn in.

No definite recommendations were made by defense officials yesterday as to the terms of the proposed temporary draft. The text of a bill drafted at the Pentagon is still at the Bureau of the Budget and is expected to reach Capitol Hill next week.

Forrestal said, however, that if the age group 19 through 25 were used, a total of 3,600,000 non-veterans would be available. Making allowance for those physically unfit and those deferred or exempted, he added, about 1,355,000 men remain. From these would come about 220,000 ment it is estimated must drafted, plus the bulk of the 500,000 volunteers expected.

Two-Year Service

Later, Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) said he expected the bill would contain these provisions:

1. Registration of all men 18 to 45, in three age groups. Men below 30 would be registered first to get the draft started, followed by older men.

2. Veterans exempted, but former servicemen lacking 90 days service and defined as veterans under the GI Bill of Rights likely will be subject to call. In addition, men who served less than a year and did not go overseas, may be subject to call but put in a deferred group after nonveterans are taken.

3. Married men and those with dependents also would be deferred, along with medical and dental students. Other provisions of the old Selective Service, pertaining to conscientious objections, exemption of officials, etc., also are expected to be included.

4. At least two years service for drafted men.

Estimates by Services

Here is the way the services would be expanded under the program:

Army—an increase of 240,000 officers and men, from 542,000 to 782,000; an additional boost of 95,000 to 877,000 if UMT is approved.

Air Force—an increase of 35,500, from 364,500 officers and men to 400,000; if UMT is enacted a further expansion of about 50,000 to 450,000 will be required.

Navy—an increase of 63,000, from 397,000 to 460,000; plus 28,000 additional to a strength of 488,000 with UMT.

Marine Corps—an increase of 11,000, from 81,000 to 92,000; with UMT a further increase of 8000 to a total of 100,000.

Preventive Intentions

This would give the Nation armed forces totaling 1,915,000, if the full program is adopted. Even so, it is only one-sixth of what we had during the war, and "several million less than the Communist powers now have under arms," Forrestal said.

America, said he, has no intention of shaking "the mailed fist" or provoking a conflict. The "one great objective" of the program, Forrestal said, is "to avert war, whether it be open or covert."

"Now is the time to marshal our strength and our resources," the defense chief urged. "Not next year or next month, after the rich prizes of north Italy and the Ruhr and Sweden and France may have fallen into an aggressor's grasp....

"It is my belief that if we make it plain and clear that the United States will not tolerate the destruction of the Western civilization of Europe we shall have peace . . . peace because, for once in world history, an aggressor will be forewarned of our determination backed up by our strength."

Russians Called "Despots"

Forrestal's blunt language was matched by that of Symington and Army Secretary Kenneth Royall. All three referred repeatedly to Russia by name, calling the Soviets "despots."

U. S. Has Atom Stores Enough To Wipe Out Life, Senator Says

America now has on hand enough radioactive material to wipe out all human life on earth, Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) revealed yesterday.

In a Collier's article, the former chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Commission added that this Nation now also has the means of applying enough of this material to destroy all life in an area the size of New England.

On the other hand, McMahon said, Russia has "beyond all reasonable doubt" an equal quantity of radioactive material on hand, as well as enough materials "to bring about the genetic death of a nation." And, he added, "beyond doubt" Russia has on order the means for putting these materials to use.

"Man's Delivery at Hand"

Coincident with development of warmaking atomic materials, McMahon said, even more important discoveries have been made. He declared that "the delivery of man from his hardest toils is at hand and . . . the engines for this delivery are on order." He added:

"On the day we are able to abandon concentration on military research we shall be able to proceed in a steady, fabulous transition to an age in which every man can be in private possession of such energies as hardly any men had dreamed of.

"In short, the alternatives are these: ruin or renaissance. A new earth—a paradise made for man with man's own ingenuity and integrity—or no earth."

In order to work for realization of the first alternative, McMahon urged a major program of education, of selling the United States to all the world. He said the Communists had waged a "30-year war of calumny" against the United States and now Russia was spending 120 to 180 million dollars a year in "a deliberate and cold-blooded campaign" of anti-American propaganda.

"Up to now," he declared, "we have lost the war of words, primarily by default."

Purpose of Program

The New Englander said the purpose of his program would be threefold:

1. To counteract "the Communist canards" and to tell the world the truth about the democratic way of life.

2. To help convince Europeans of the advantage of a Europe free and united.

3. To tell the world of the "revolutionary meaning" of atomic energy, not only as a weapon, but also as a constructive force.

Such a program, he said, would cost between 200 nad 300 million dollars a year. It is not offered, he emphasized, as an alternative to the Marshall Plan for European recovery, but to complement it.

As the Marshall Plan operates toward the physical reconstruction of Europe, he pointed out, his program would promote its equally important spiritual and psychological welfare.

"Its immediate purpose," McMahon said, "would be to save the soul of Europe at the same time that the body was being restored to health."

Survey Finds No Atom Bomb After-Effects

Tokyo, March 25 (AP).—The top scientist studying Hiroshima said today the atomic bomb has not damaged that Japanese city since the split second in which it burst.

Dr. Philip S. Owen said the long study by the atomic bomb casualty survey commission "disclosed no residual radioactivity." He termed false speculation that the area would be deadly for possibly 80 years.

Dr. Owen of Washington, D. C., is executive director of the commission. The scientists are studying residents of Hiroshima and those of nearby Kure, for comparison.

He said it "is eight years too soon" to say whether the bomb caused hereditary changes. But he emphasized that, if there are any, they would result from the split second of the blast—not from subsequent atomic action.

He shrugged away previously published reports of luxuriant plant growth, curiously twisted vegetables and twin onions.

"We haven't found any such startling results," he commented. "They could happen anywhere, but in Hiroshima people seize on radioactivity as an explanation. It's probably just potash in the soil, ashes of burned buildings and human bones."

New Altitude Record Claimed by British

London, March 25 (AP).—Britain claimed a world altitude record of 59,492 feet today for a De-Havilland Vampire jet fighter plane. That's more than 11¼ miles.

The Royal Aero Club said test pilot John Cunningham set the mark Tuesday. It is more than half a mile higher than the record of 56,017 feet set in 1938 by Ario Pezzi of Italy. The new mark is subject to official correction.

U. S. Troops to Get Spring Refresher

Clay Announces Program for German Occupation Force; Says It's Only Routine

Frankfurt, Germany, March 25 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military commander, said today United States occupation troops soon will begin intensive spring training in Germany.

But he said it probably will be no more intensive than usual and "I am not the least bit nervous or expecting any conflagration to break out tomorrow or the next day by any means."

"The Army is like a fire department. It must be kept ready to put out fires," he commented.

The general described the present deadlock between Russia and the western Allies in Berlin over four-power rule of Germany as "a political situation resulting from Russia's walkout Saturday from the Allied Control Council would be clarified soon. He said he had no fears the Russians would close the borders of their eastern zone, shutting the supply highway from the western zones to Berlin.

Told by reporters the Germans were afraid they would be overrun by Russian troops, Clay said: "People everywhere are afraid of war. Nobody as an individual wants wants war. Let us hope from that fact alone there will be no war.

"On the other hand we must face the fact there are certain moral values that those of us who believe in them must maintain regardless of the cost."

Clay said there are no plans to evacuate American wives and children from Germany.

The United States Army today acted to keep more officers in Germany han it originally planned.

The Army suspended a rule requiring officers to be released if they were too old for the rank they hold. A headquarters announcement said the action resulted "from the current situation."

Under the new rule, any officer under 60 may be retained on active duty if needed.

Milan Reds Burn 10,800 Copies Of Vatican Paper; Strike Ended

Rome, March 25 (U.P.).—Communists seized and burned 10,800 copies of the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano in Milan today just as a four-day nation-wide printers' strike ended.

Osservatore, the only Italian newspaper published during the four-day strike, was sent to news-starved Milan by train. Communists threatened the man in charge of the papers with death. Then they burned the papers.

So bitter was feeling in Milan that printers refused to go to work tonight even though the strike had ended. Turin printers also refused to go to work until tomorrow.

The first news published was that the government was willing to negotiate the Trieste problem directly with Yugoslavia, "within the spirit and letter" of the proposal of the United States, Britain and France to restore Trieste to Italy.

The Foreign Office announced conclusion of an agreement with Yugoslavia for the exchange of Italians now in Yugoslavia and Yugoslavs who remained in Italy after the peace treaty.

Romania Blames Election 'Agents'

Bucharest, Romania, March 25 (AP).—Interior Minister Telhari Georgescu said today that "agents in the service of foreign imperialism" are trying to interfere in Romania's national elections.

The election of members of a new Grand National Assembly will be held next Sunday. The voters also will ballot on a new national constitution.

Georgescu did not specify what foreign nations he meant.

acts of violence and terror, to extend their rule at the expense of human dignity and freedom.

"We are learning once again that freedom and liberty can be preserved in the face of totalitarian aggression only when democratic peoples show indomitable courage and determination in defending their independence.

"The struggle is not yet won, but if those who love liberty work together, we shall not fail. The valor of Greece, even when faced by the spectacle of other nations succumbing to aggression, convinces me that the Greek people are equal to the task."

Oyster Rock Leasing Reports Denied by Md.

Salisbury, Md., March 25 (AP).—A rash of reports that the State plans private leasing of Chesapeake Bay oyster rocks brought statements to the contrary today from Governor Lane and Chairman John E. Clark of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

"No leasing plans have been submitted to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, and it is not contemplating such action," Clark said in a telephone interview.

Governor Lane in Annapolis said:

"I do not know of any contemplated program to lease bay oyster beds."

Both Clark and the Governor took cognizance of the reports which have been circulating among oystermen.

Women Troop After Michael On Visit to Naval Academy

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—Former King Michael of Romania visited the Naval Academy today, and the occasion made it something of a ladies' day in the classically masculine "yard."

The handsome ex-monarch, who hopes some day to regain the throne, held the eyes of dozens of women of all ages who trooped behind his party on a tour of the grounds. Most of them made liberal use of cameras.

His presence caused a stir, too, among the lady secretaries and clerks in the Administration building. They crowded into doorways as the 26-year-old deposed ruler walked up to the second floor to be welcomed by Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., the superintendent.

Before beginning his tour of the grounds, the tall, former king visited briefly with the press. He reiterated much of what he has said since arriving in the United

Conditions in Romania, he said are "very bad." Communists are in absolute control. He thinks the European Recovery Plan will help that continent "a lot." He has no immediate plans of his own.

He said he hears from Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma. Marriage plans? That will be taken up when he returns to Europe.

He's in this country "to find out something about America." What's he think of the women over here? He hasn't "had time for a good look."

From Washington, where he and his mother, Queen Helen, are spending the week, the young king will travel to Detroit, then to Texas. His party is to return to Europe early next month.

U. S. Suspends Plan For Trieste Parade

Mounting Italian-Yugoslav Tension Given as Reason for Calling Off Fete

Trieste, March 25 (U.P.).—United States authorities temporarily suspended today their plans for a full-dress celebration of Army Day April 6 because of mounting Italian-Yugoslav tension over the future of Trieste.

Army men had intended to celebrate the day with the biggest American parade ever held in Trieste. Plans called for one and a half hour long parade of tanks; infantry and mechanized and reconnaissance units, with planes flying over the city.

Civil police were alerted for the second day when the Communists asked, and obtained, permission to hold another demonstration. The first demonstration was held last night and the lack of enthusiasm was remarkable.

Allied authorities reported the Yugoslavs have strengthened their frontier guards.

Gen. Jaynes Holds Tact Prevented Trieste Coup

Trenton, N. J., March 25 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Lawrence C. Jaynes, former commander of the U. S. occupation forces in Italy, declared today that "only tact, forbearance and high discipline of American and British forces" have prevented a Yugoslav coup in Trieste.

COMMISSIONER'S CAR—District Commissioner John Russell Young's sedan is pictured parked yesterday in a "no parking" zone at the corner of 19th and Jefferson sts. nw. She declared that she is very strict about the chauffeur observing parking rules because it "sets a bad example" for the commissioner's car to be parked in a restricted area. Young was at home ill after day" to Russia and eastern Europe.

Representative Lodge (R., Conn.), also called for a ban on industrial shipments to Russia, together with a broad program of political and psychological counter-attack against communism in Europe. Among the many measures he suggested was "a peacetime OSS"—a revival of the wartime intelligence and espionage agency to undermine the Communists and strengthen their enemies.

Attacks on the bill came from Representatives Knutson (R., Minn.), Buffett (R., Nebr.) and Marcantonio, (A.L.P., N. Y.), who ran head-on into a rebuke which was upheld by Speaker Martin.

Marcantonio had denounced the bill as "a program in defense of Wall Street," and had charged that present American policy toward Italy was dictated by industrialists and bondholders whose profits depended on the present regime.

The moment he finished Representative Cox (D., Ga.) protested angrily. Cox demanded to know how long the House would have to listen to assaults on "the Government we love" by "people" who would rip the flag from over the Speaker's rostrum, haul it down from over the Capitol "and run up in its stead the flag of the hammer and sickle."

Marcantonio jumped up, red-faced, to demand that Cox's words be stricken from the record. The Speaker ruled, however, that Cox had said nothing "reflecting on any individual member," and that "in debate of this kind there must be some latitude."

Cox was not alone in his protest. Representative Cooley (D., N. C.) said "Stalin's great voice has echoed here in this House," and exclaimed, "Oh, what nauseating scenes we tolerate!"

Representative Chelf (D., Ky.) thought Marcantonio should be "sent to Moscow to see what is going on there." And Representative Monroney (D., Okla.) said that between 1939 and 1941 Marcantonio had labelled as "agents of Wall Street" anyone who opposed Hitler and Mussolini.

Czechs to Conduct Parliamentary Vote

Indications Are That Parties Recognized By Communists Will Have Own Candidates

Prague, March 25 (AP).—The official government news agency announced tonight that a parliamentary election will be held in Czechoslovakia May 23.

Prochazka

There were indications all parties recognized by the Communist government will have their own candidates. Advocates of a single slate of candidates, made up of Communists and persons conforming to the Communist program, were said to be losing ground.

Communist Premier Klement Gottwald said the elections will be held in the manner specified by law, which provides for a contest among parties.

Charges of participating in a conspiracy against the state were raised today against Adolf Prochazka, former health minister, and his wife, Helena Kozelhova, a prominent publicist.

Prochazka, his wife and a daughter have escaped the country. Another daughter was caught.

Prochazka was a member of the people's (Catholic) party.

Earlier the newspaper Prace said Dr. Josef Lettrich, former head of the Slovak Democratic Party, had escaped into the United States Zone of Austria.

Navy Band to Play

The United States Navy Band will feature "Carmen Fantasy," musical composition from the motion picture "Humoresque," at its final concert at the Departmental Auditorium tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The band leaves next Tuesday on an eight-week tour of the East and Midwest.

Labor Heads, Employers To Support Schuman

Paris, March 25 (NYHT.).—Premier Robert Schuman won the first battle in his voluntary price-cutting campaign today when employers and non-Communist labor leaders assured him of their support.

Leon Jouhaux, leader of the labor union, Force Ouvriere, and representatives of the Christian Labor Confederation (CFTC) called on Schuman today.

Jean Ricard, spokesman for the National Employers Council (CNPF), declared French employers were prepared to cut household necessities by from 5 to 10 per cent within the next few days.

Planes Fail to Discover 21 Believed Marooned

Halifax, Nova Scotia, March 25 (AP).—Twenty-one men were believed marooned on ice fields off St. Paul's Island today but four search planes reported this afternoon they had been unable to sight them.

The men are crew members of the sealing schooner Teazer. A radio message from them said an ice pack had crushed the hull of their ship and they were abandoning it.

St. Paul's Island is in Cabot Strait between Cape Breton and Newfoundland.

Attlee Ascribes Red Purge to War Possibility

London, March 25 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee said today a possibility of war justified his government's purge of Communists from security posts.

He told the House of Commons: "There must be secrets of government, particularly in relation to defense, and there are other secrets as well: and as long as we are in a world where there is a possibility of war we must have defense and its secrets must be preserved."

The security order, announced last week, also applies to Fascists. All of the Commons except Communist Willie Gallacher, supported Attlee's program. But the chamber demanded the order should not ride roughshod over Britain's traditional freedom of opinion for civil servants.

Hearings For Accused

"I agree there should be no general purge—no general witch hunt," the Prime Minister said. He announced that a three-man advisory board would hear persons to be removed.

Attlee said "Communists do not accept the obligations of loyalty and/or ordinary moral dealings which enable us to deal with one another in our daily business."

"Communism follows a pattern—blame others for what they are doing themselves," the Prime Minister continued.

"I deplore these subversive movements. If they creep into the civil service they are enemies of the government service. I might be accused of many things, but I cannot be accused of ever trusting the Communist Party."

Gallacher said the security order was instigated by American multimillionaires and added:

"The United States wants Britain to be a forward base for an attack by American monopoly capitalists on Europe and Russia.

Says Royalty Will Flee

"If war comes the royal family will go to Ottawa (Canadian capital) and the people left to perish, and by the time it is finished this Britain will be a mass of radioactive mud."

Britain today rejected Russia's protest against the recent United States - British - French conference on Germany.

Britain blamed Russia for the breakdown of four-power cooperation for restoring Germany's economic unity.

C. P. Meyhew, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs, announced Mrs. Majda Rynerova, Cultural Attache of the Czechslovak embassy, has been refused permission to reenter Britain.

Mrs. Rynerova was a secretary in the Czechoslovak Ministry of Information, working with Communist Minister Vaclav Kopecky.

Truman Gets Measure On Rail Reorganization

House passage yesterday sent to President Truman a bill permitting railroads to reorganize without going into bankruptcy.

The legislation provides for reorganization procedure through the Interstate Commerce Commission, when 75 per cent of security holders approve.

Poland Accuses 'Voice' of Lying

Geneva, Switzerland, March 25. The United States today charged the governments of eastern Europe with "deliberate incitement to hatred" and Poland promptly accused the "Voice of America" of broadcasting lies.

Opening the expected East-West exchange at the International Conference on Freedom of the Press and Information, were William C. Benton, chief American delegate, and Wixtor Grosz, Polish Minister of Information.

Benton, former Assistant Secretary of State in charge of the "Voice of America," called the 53 nations attending the conference to sweep away all barriers to the free flow of information inside and between countries.

Grosz demanded laws to punish severely any information organ which spreads false news or sows dissension among nations, races or religions.

Grosz said the "reactionary world press" was stirring up a "hysterical war climate."

He attacked United States Representative Thomas S. Gordon (D., Ill.) for having achieved a "world's record in lying" and said the United States "Voice of America" broadcasts to Poland drew on "slanderous" information from Gordon's articles.

Grosz said Congressman Gordon spent 12 hours in Poland gathering the information on which he based a series of articles describing the whole Polish state machinery.

Benton said, "If a state is engaged in expansionist acts that cause other states to fear their own security, then freedom of information and international understanding are instruments through which the news and the alarm is spread. The result may be indignation in other countries, preparations for defense, protests, and even talk about the probability of war.

"But it is surely a fantastic perversion of the truth to call such reaction, or the news reports that create them, slander or warmongering."

A monopoly of information, he said, was "the most vicious accomplice of war mongering" and "if we are to have lasting peace in the world freedom of information must be sought in all countries."

Benton said the U. S. policy at the conference would be:

1. Seek an international agreement covering the gathering and transmission of news across national boundaries free from arbitrary national restraints.

2. Support all resolutions fostering the rights of people and of information agencies in all states to receive, publish or broadcast or otherwise transmit information from all possible sources.

3. Examine all suitable ways to develop various nations' technical facilities—press, radio and others—so that access of all peoples to more sources of information can be expanded.

4. Seek inclusion in the proposed United Nations declaration and covenant on human rights of the most vigorous provisions supporting freedom of expression.

Benton warned against imposing too many restrictions on the press in the name of "responsibility," but added that the "moral right to free public discussions . . . does not carry with it the right for any owner or editor to use the lie as a deliberate instrument of policy."

Benton urged the conference to aim at three basic objectives:

1. Mutual guarantees by states that their citizens will be given access to such a variety of external and internal sources of information that they can never become numbed by monolithic propaganda, hate and fear.

2. Mutual guarantees by states that their citizens will be accorded such freedom of external expression that they will be able to express their views and bring pressures upon leaders engaged in acts which lead to war.

3. Limitations upon the power of any state to initimidate foreign reporters or censor their reports to such an extent that other countries are unable to seek the truth about that state.

Benton said the recent "tragic death" of the Czechoslovak Republic, "should dispel whatever fog may have remained over the essential connection between freedom of information, dignity of man and maintenance of peaceful relations between states."

Red Activities Told by Veteran

New York, March 25 (AP).—An Army veteran testified today that Charles A. Doyle of Buffalo, international vice president of the United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers of America (CIO), enrolled him in the Communist Party in 1933.

The witness, testifying at a deportation hearing for Doyle, was identified only as Leo Paul Szweda. Mario Noto, examining officer acting as prosecutor, asked that the man's address be withheld as a matter of security.

Szweda said Doyle in 1933 was "preaching of joining this Workers Alliance of America" and going out on strike. He said Doyle told him "how many advantages I could get by joining the party."

Szweda said he accepted, after which Doyle produced an application card and helped him to fill it out.

Szweda testified that about a week later he went to headquarters of the Erie County committee of the Communist Party in Buffalo, where Doyle handed him a party membership book.

The witness, who said he was a member from 1933 to 1940, testified that at a meeting in 1940, "Doyle got up and stated that the time is now ripe; we must get our forces together and overthrow the Government of the United States by force."

Trial Stayed When Barsky Balks at Quiz

The District Court trial of Mrs. Ernestina G. Fleischman, charged with contempt of Congress, hit a snag yesterday when a Government witness refused to testify on the grounds that he might incriminate himself.

The witness was Dr. Edward K. Barsky of New York, chairman of the Joint, Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee executive board, of which Mrs. Fleischman was a member. The House Committee on Un-American Activities has charged the Anti-Fascist group is Communist party-line follower.

Dr. Barsky last year was convicted along with 17 other board members on the contempt of Congress charge. However, at the time of trial, Mrs. Fleischman was in France and only now is being tried.

The case arose in April, 1946 when various members of the Anti Fascist Refugee group refused to turn over various records to the House Committee.

Justice Richmond B. Keech upheld Dr. Barsky's claim to immunity on self-incrimination grounds yesterday.

The questions were asked Dr. Barsky by Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray, the prosecutor, while the jury was excused from the courtroom, and were designed to link Mrs. Fleischman's scheduled appearance before the committee with that of other members of the refugee group.

Murray said he had prepared subpenas for 15 other members of Dr. Barsky's committees but they had not been answered. The reason, according to Murray, probably was that the subpenas may not have reached the members in time.

Princess Spy Executed

Peiping, China, March 25 (U.P.)—Yoshiko Kawa-shima, a Japanese spy whose father was a Manchu prince and her mother a Mongol princess, was executed today.

The once-beautiful "Radiant Jade" knelt on the frosty ground. The executioner placed a revolver against the base of her skull. A quick, soft sigh escaped from her lips as the bullet tore through her head.

In gray prison garb, the princess scorned the support of two jailers and walked alone from her cell.

She was spared a public execution and was permitted to write a farewell note to her foster-father, a Japanese who adopted her when she was a baby.

The ordeal of her long trial, prison regime and the ravages of an unsatisfied opium habit had destroyed all her great beauty. She looked old though still believed in her early thirties.

She admitted masquerading as a Korean prostitute to gain information from Chinese soldiers. She once posed as a coolie and, when arrested, was wearing the uniform of a Japanese colonel.

Wallace National Group To Meet in Chicago

New York, March 25 (U.P.)—A national committee backing Henry A. Wallace for president will meet in Chicago April 9-11 to plan the formation of a new national party and to select the place and date for its nominating convention, it was announced today.

Formation of the 700-member "National Wallace for President Committee" was announced by Elmer A. Benson, former Minnesota governor who will serve as its new chairman.

Hanns Eisler To Leave U. S. For Vienna Today

New York, March 25 (AP).—Hanns Eisler, brother of Gerhart, whom a congressional committee described as No. 1 Communist in this country, will leave for Vienna, Austria, tomorrow.

The German-born Hollywood composer will be accompanied by his wife, Louise, an immigration official announced today.

Eisler agreed to leave the United States voluntarily after the Government began deportation proceedings against him. He was not permitted to go to Mexico or Canada.

Gerhart Eisler was released on $20,000 bail yesterday in Washington pending an appeal from a sentence of one to three years for concealing his Communist links when he applied for a permit to leave this country in 1945.

Tighter Control Asked on Exports

ment had informed his subcommittee it felt it needed more statutory authority to control shipments. He said all trade with Russia would not be suspended and "we are getting some strategic materials from there."

Drop in Export Total

5. The Commerce Department reported shipment of $421,000 worth of aircraft parts last year to Russia. Total United States, exports to Russia in 1947 were $149,504,000, a considerable drop from the 1946 total of $357,792,000, of which UNRRA and Lend-Lease made up 85 per cent.

6. Defense Secretary Forrestal told the Senate Armed Services Committee he had been "lately successful" in checking exports to Russia after talks with Harriman. He said an order to halt all surplus sales had been considered but abandoned for the time being.

7. Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) described shipment of potential war material to the Soviet Union as "disgraceful and almost treasonable."

8. President H. M. Horner, of the United Aircraft Corp., telegraphed Rizley that the Pratt & Whitney division of his firm had shipped no aircraft, engines, propellers or helicopters to Russia since V-J Day. A witness Wednesday had testified that Pratt & Whitney was shipping materials to Russia, but did not specify that he was referring to the division connected with United Aircraft.

Investigators Increased

Rizley told The Washington Post his subcommittee's investigators already in New York had been increased on the basis of recent testimony. They would look especially into operations of the Moore - McCormick Steamship Lines, which a witness specified Wednesday was the American firm handling all shipments to Russia for Amtorg, the official Russian purchasing agency. He said they also would investigate reports that 60 Russian-owned ships had been loaded at New York since January 1.

In connection with Forrestal's statement on halting surplus sales, Rizley said he had been told by Jess Larson, War Assets Administrator, that an order came through Wednesday freezing the sale of all aircraft, engines and parts in the United States. Other WAA officials said they had received no such official notice.

Councilman Millward C. Taft also has declined to seek the mayoralty, leaving no active candidates in the field. Nominations are to be made at a public caucus April 19

Lie Blames U. N. 'Loss Of Prestige' on Big Five

Lake Success, N. Y., March 25 (U.P.)—United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie blamed the Big Five today for the U. N.'s "loss of prestige" in the current world crisis.

"What is really at stake today," he said is the prestige of the Big Five powers, on whose cooperation the U. N. is based. They have to find the solution to many problems before the U. N."

Md. Potato Program Value Put at $500,000

By The Associated Press

The University of Maryland's seed certification program has prevented the planting "of about 1900 acres" of poor yield potatoes in 14 years, Plant Pathologist R. A. Jehle disclosed yesterday at College Park.

Dr. Jehle estimated the program, started in 1935, has increased the value of potato crops by nearly $500,000. He said about a million bushels of seed potatoes had been produced under the plan.

The program prevented "hundreds of farmers" from planting inferior or infected seeds that "might have contaminated their fields and caused losses for years to come," he added.

Text of Truman's Palestine Proposal

The text of President Truman's statement on Palestine yesterday follows:

IT IS VITAL that the American people have a clear understanding of the position of the United States in the United Nations regarding Palestine.

This country vigorously supported the plan for partition with economic union recommended by the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine and by the General Assembly.

We have explored every possibility consistent with the basic principles of the Charter for giving effect to that solution. Unfortunately, it has become clear that the partition plan cannot be carried out at this time by peaceful means. We could not undertake to impose this solution on the people of Palestine by the use of American troops, both on Charter grounds and as a matter of national policy.

The United Kingdom has announced its firm intention to abandon its mandate in Palestine on May 15. Unless emergency action is taken, there will be no public authority in Palestine on that date capable of preserving law and order. Violence and bloodshed will descend upon the Holy Land. Large-scale fighting among the people of that country will be the inevitable result. Such fighting would infect the entire Middle East and could lead to consequences of the gravest sort involving the peace of this Nation and of the world.

THESE dangers are imminent. Responsible governments in the United Nations cannot face this prospect without acting promptly to prevent it. The United States has proposed to the Security Council a temporary United Nations trusteeship for Palestine to provide a government to keep the peace. Such trusteeship was proposed only after we had exhausted every effort to find a way to carry out partition by peaceful means. Trusteeship is not proposed as a substitute for the partition plan but as an effort to fill the vacuum soon to be created by the termination of the mandate on May 15. The trusteeship does not prejudice the character of the final political settlement. It would establish the conditions of order which are essential to a peaceful solution.

If we are to avert tragedy in Palestine, an immediate truce must be reached between the Arabs and Jews of that country. I am instructing Ambassador Austin to urge upon the Security Council in the strongest terms that representatives of the Arabs and Jews be called at once to the council table to arrange such a truce.

The United States is prepared to lend every appropriate assistance to the United Nations in preventing bloodshed and in reaching a peaceful settlement. If the United Nations agrees to a temporary trusteeship, we must take our share of the necessary responsibility. Our regard for the United Nations, for the peace of the world and for our own self-interest does not permit us to do less.

With such a truce and such a trusteeship, a peaceful settlement is yet possible; without them, open warfare is just over the horizon. American policy in this emergency period is based squarely upon the recognition of this inescapable fact.

Palestine Mail Suspended

New York, March 25 (AP). — A postoffice spokesman tonight said parcel post service to Palestine has been temporarily suspended.

Truman Asks Palestine Truce

was rephrased. Martin Agronsky of NBC thereupon dropped the phrase "abandon partition."

President Truman's statement was sharply criticized on Capitol Hill.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), a candidate for the Presidency, said that if war breaks out in Palestine it will come as "the result of the Administration's failure to back up a just and practical solution of the problem."

Taft added:

"The President says that if his new trusteeship plan is adopted, we must take 'our share of the necessary responsibility,' which must mean American troops as part of a United Nations force.

"Why isn't a United Nations force to support partition as practical as a United Nations force to prevent partition? I hope the President's appeal to the Arabs and Jews to arrange a truce will be followed by both."

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) said it "would take more troops to impose a trusteeship opposed by both sides than to impose a partition opposed by only one side."

Senator Meyers (D., Pa.), wrote to the President expressing appreciation for his assurance that he favored ultimate partition. He added, however, that it would be as difficult to enforce a trusteeship as a partition.

Representative Klein (D., N. Y.) said that Mr. Truman still had not explained why he reversed himself, and Representative Celler (D., N. Y.) said that the President "further muddies the water."

Representative Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) said, "I can reiterate the statement that Mr. Truman is talking Jewish and acting Arab."

Senator Murray (D., Mont.) said that the Administration's "weak and vacillating" policy was "a surrender to Arab feudal aggressors."

Neither President Truman nor Secretary Marshall mentioned Russia in their statements, although the Red Army is understood to be the chief factor in the shift of plans for Palestine.

It was feared that, if the U. N. Security Council sent an international police force into Palestine to keep order, it almost certainly would include Russian troops.

This danger would be obviated under a trusteeship because Russia has boycotted the U. N. Trusteeship Council since its inception.

The statement of the Washington Arab Office, which called Mr. Truman's truce proposal "fantastic," referred to his statement that he still favors partition at some future date, and said:

"No, Mr. President, without complete renunciation of partition, the Arabs will have no cooling off period. Your appeal only strengthens their determination to settle the Palestine problem in their own way."

The statement said that Mr. Truman's proposal could only result in "enabling the Zionists to flood the country with terrorists and arms until they are able to enforce partition under weight of their own arms."

"Instead of proposing peace for the Holy Land," it said, "the President of the United States is inviting all Arabs to an armament race to meet the inevitable challenge of the Zionist state which the United States is determined to recognize."

In Jerusalem, an Arab attorney told the Associated Press:

"Our demands are simple. We want a democratic Arab government with all Palestinians—that includes Jews—given an equal right to vote. We cannot accept enslavement by a foreign minority. We must fight until partition and Zionism are dead."

Jewish Agency officials said they were anxious for peace but considered as still valid the United Nations partition decision of November 29. They said they were unwilling to give up their claim for a Jewish state.

Rabbi Criticizes U. S. Reversal

Rabbi Samuel Penner, chairman of the Washington Zionist Emergency Council, charged that the Truman Administration's reversal on the partition of Palestine "makes conditions in the Near East more chaotic than ever.

"It is obvious to everybody, and must be even to our Administration, that it will require as much military force, if not more, to put over a temporary trusteeship of Palestine, as it would have been to effect partition," he said.

"Especially outrageous," Rabbi Penner added, "is the plain fact that this Administration has now disgraced the Nation before the eyes of the world."

Hearings Concluded On Anti-Poll Tax

Pepper and Union Representatives Indorse Bill Before Senate Group

By The Associated Press

The Senate Rules Committee ended hearings yesterday on an anti-poll-tax legislation after hearing it indorsed by a Southern Senator and CIO and AFL representatives.

Under the bill, a voter would not have to pay a poll tax before voting in an election for a Federal office.

No date has been set for the committee to consider the bill, already approved unanimously by a three-member subcommittee. Chairman Brooks (R., Ill.) told reporters testimony taken during the four-day hearing will be printed first. He estimated this will take a week.

Senator Stennis (D., Miss.) is the only Southerner among the 13 committee members. Republicans control the group, eight to five.

Pepper Supports Measure

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), recalling that he introduced similar legislation as far back as 1941, yesterday told the committee poll taxes are obnoxious.

He said Congress has the constitutional right to abolish poll taxes as a prerequisite to voting in a Federal election.

The bill also was indorsed by CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey and Charles E. Sands, representing the Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders International Union (AFL).

Carey called the poll tax a "dollar sign on the right to vote."

Pepper prefaced his remarks to the committee with his statement:

"My appearance here is not an indorsement of the other parts of the so-called Civil Rights program."

Besides the anti-poll-tax bill, antilynch, antisegregation and fair employment practices legislation are included in the civil rights program.

Stennis and Pepper tangled at the hearing on the question of Congress' constitutional right to enact an anti-poll-tax bill.

Stennis contended the Constitution gives the States the right to fix voting qualifications for its citizens and that the bill thus is an invasion of State's rights and is unconstitutional.

Texas Statement Introduced

Pepper said he feels Congress "has the right to tell the State what is a proper limitation on the right to vote," that a poll tax is an unreasonable limitation of this right and thus is in the proper field of congressional action.

Stennis introduced today a statement by Governor Jester and Attorney General Price Daniel of Texas opposing the bill.

They contended that if Congress has the power to eliminate the poll tax it also can prescribe other voting qualifications.

Governor Urged Not to Extradite Negro Fugitive

Trenton, N. J., March 25 (AP).—Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll was asked today to forbid extradition of John Collier, Negro fugitive from a chain gang, to a "living death" in South Carolina.

Some 50 ministers, newsmen, and representatives of civil rights groups joined with lawyers in urging the Governor to keep Collier in New Jersey.

Collier escaped in 1937. His counsel said his crime involved theft of $5, cigarettes and chewing gum.

Georgia Jury Assailed as 'Hog Wild'

Americus, Ga., March 25 (AP).—A defense attorney today asked that the murder conviction of a Negro mother and two teen-age sons be set aside because the original jury went "hog wild."

The contention was made by Hawkins Dykes of Americus in asking that Rosa Lee Ingram and her sons, Wallace, 16, and Sammie Lee, 14, be granted a new trial.

The three were sentenced to death last February for the slaying of John E. Stratford, 66, a white tenant farmer, after an argument over the Ingrams' mule being in Stratford's field.

Stratford was clubbed to death in November 1947 with his own rifle, a hoe and a claw hammer.

Prosecutor E. L. Forrester said the slaying was a "cruel and barbarous murder without mitigating circumstances."

Dykes asserted the slain man came toward the Ingram woman with a gun and "meant to use it."

Superior Court Judge W. M. Harper took the plea for a new trial under advisement.

Cain Asks D.C., U.S. Rent Laws to Jibe

Senator Urges Some Termination Date, Decontrol Provisions, Other Features

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) said yesterday he will seek to have the District's next year of rent control synchronized with Congress' final version of national rent-control extension on six major points.

The national rent-control bill cleared Congress yesterday. The District's one-year rent-control extension bill comes up for action in the Senate District Committee at 11 a. m. Wednesday. These are the six points on which Senator Cain said he will urge the District Committee to make the two laws conform:

1. Same termination date—March 31, 1949.
2. Transient hotel rooms to be decontrolled.
3. New housing construction decontrolled.
4. Provision for voluntary rent increases up to 15 per cent if a lease is signed to run at least through December 31, 1949.
5. Nonhousekeeping rooms in private homes to be decontrolled where there are only one or two paying guests.
6. Eviction provisions to be the same.

Senator Cain pointed out that his first three points are covered in the proposed bill which has been cleared by a subcommittee headed by Senate District Committee Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.).

Cain and Buck are on opposite sides of the proposal to apply the 15 per cent voluntary increase feature in the District. Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), ranking District Committee Democrat, said he will side with Senator Buck opposing the 15 per cent plan here.

Decontrol of nonhousekeeping rooms here and the question of evictions have not yet been discussed in the committee.

Senator Cain said he does not intend to make any floor fight on the District rent-control bill if the District Committee rejects his proposals.

D. C. Bill Awaits Action

As it now awaits District Committee action, the Disttrict rent-control extension bill would continue rent control here, but would decontrol transient hotel rooms effective March 31, and decontrol new-housing accommodations that come on the market by new construction or reconversion as of January 1, 1948.

On evictions, the national rent bill requires landlords to give a 60-day eviction notice except for nonpayment of rent or creation of a nuisance, which would be handled under local laws.

Tenants can be evicted under the national bill where the landlord plans to recover quarters for personal use of a member of his immediate family, where he has to make substantial alterations that cannot be done with the tenant living there; where he plans to demolish the property or remove it from the rental market, or where a State or other public body takes over the housing accommodations.

The national bill also says that tenants cannot be evicted from public housing even though their incomes have grown past the limits allowable under housing laws.

District Crime On Increase

was committed every 18.9 seconds in the United States and its possessions last year. There were 1,665,110 major crimes—7769 of them murders.

Delinquents Now Criminals

"The juvenile delinquent of the war years," commented Hoover, "is becoming the hardened criminal of today, providing recruits for the formation of gangs following in many respects the pattern of the early 20's."

The 1947 average is about the same as 1946, when an all-time peak in crime occurred.

The report shows that during each passing hour of 1947 12 persons were raped, feloniously assaulted or killed, 49 were held up and robbed or had their places burglarized and 21 others had their cars stolen. In addition, 108 miscellaneous larcenies were committed each hour.

Hoover attributed the high crime rate to "a failure on the part of too many citizens to assume the responsibilities of citizenship."

"Too frequently," he said, "law enforcement agencies are not provided with adequate facilities, funds and trained officers."

Brush Fire Warning

Arlington Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel yesterday urged residents to use care in the lighting of small brush fires. He pointed out that there have been 104 Arlington County trash and grass fires so far this year and asked residents never to leave fires unattended or to light them when the wind is blowing.

Congress Extends Rent Curbs A Year, With Appeal to Courts

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Congress passed and sent to the White House yesterday a compromise bill extending rent controls one year and giving Federal court judges final say on lifting the ceilings.

The House voted, 220 to 95, to accept the compromise measure worked out by a conference of Senators and House members.

Almost immediately afterward, the Senate in a perfunctory voice vote, gave its approval and sent the bill on its way to the White House.

Little chance of a White House veto was foreseen in view of the approval of the measure expressed by th office of the Housing Expediter.

The present rent-control law expires next Wednesday.

The rent-control law affects some 60 million Americans who either own or live in 13 million dwelling units now under Federal control.

Both House and Senate had to yield in the compromise version.

The House wanted to give local rent-control boards appointed by the Governors of the States full and final authority to lift rent ceilings.

The Senate wanted to give Housing Expediter Tighe Woods full power to veto any rent ceiling increase.

Ase the measure was adopted, the Emergency Court of Apeals, comprised of Federal judges appointed by the Chief Justice, will make the final decision.

If the Housing Expediter vetoes a board increase, the matter will automatically go to the Emergency Court of Appeals, which was first established under the Price Control Act of 1942.

Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), of the House Banking Committee, author of the "home rule" bill, told the House yesterday the compromise was "just about as perfect" as any rent-control measure could be.

Falls Church Police Changes Are Urged

A five-point program to improve the Falls Church Police Department was announced yesterday by Town Manager Roy Dunn.

The announcement followed a detailed study of the department's operations by M. T. Shipp of Arlington, at request of the Town Council.

Despite complaints recently from some town residents, Shipp, 2423 N. 16th st., Arlington, reported he found the Falls Church police "doing a good job."

However, he recommended:

1. That the mayor be eliminated as chief of police, and that the department be reorganized with a definite chain of command.
2. That a "police "advisory" board be set up with Town Council approval to advise on police operations, and to serve as a trial board.
3. That a chief of police be appointed. (Dunn said this move would require a change in the town charter.)
4. That a definite set of rules and regulations governing the department be established.
5. That police training be stepped up.

Manager Dunn said Mayor Fenner Hazelgrove had appointed him superintendent of police this week, with administrative control of the department. Hazelgrove, however, will remain titular head of police.

The manager said a new set of regulations went into effect last Monday for the entire police force and that more policemen would be sent in the future to available training schools.

Gravestones Data Sent U. S. Attorney

The details of how 15 Arlington Cemetery gravestones happened to be in an Arlington tavern pathway are being forwarded to Richmond for possible action, the FBI said yesterday.

The FBI entered the case Tuesday, and yesterday said the stones were turned over to proprietors of the Owl Tavern by a stone mason who does general contract work for Arlington Cemetery. The mason returned the stones to the cemetery Wednesday.

An Alexandria office spokesman said the case should be in the hands of George R. Humrickhouse, U. S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia, by Monday.

Until he has a chance to study the problem and take possible action on it, the FBI said, no further details will be released.

The stones made up a small pathway down the side and around the rear of the Owl Tavern, 1716 Wilson blvd. The Government-furnished tombstones were found by investigators of the Military District of Washington following a phone tip.

Plea to Stress Fire Hazard

vising the board to take him up on it, Clapp said:

"You are not likely to get the Commissioners' approval to ask Congress for a 1949 appropriation for a new Blue Plains infirmary."

Other Action Taken

In other action at yesterday's meeting, the board:

1. Asked funds be included in the 1949 budget that would complete construction work at the Receiving Home for Children.
2. Asked for an additional $8000 in 1949 funds for the Industrial Home School.
3. Asked for $22,500 to improve the water supply at the Home for the Aged and Infirm "for fire protection as indicated by the Engineer Commissioner."
4. Confirmed its position taken in January on year-round child day care centers. The board, Clapp said, can recommend an appropriation for this purpose only after adequate assistance is provided for families who are completely dependent on the board.
5. Changed its regulations to permit granting assistance to families when "able" relatives of such families fail to help them. The board will ask the courts to "penalize" the relatives.

Liquor Licensees Must Ask Renewals by April 1

Forty-one Montgomery County establishments now holding beer and wine licenses must apply for renewal by April 1 or file for new applications, General Manager Charles B. Buscher of the Liquor Control System said yesterday.

Buscher also pointed out that residents in order to protest the license renewals must petition the liquor control board with 10 signatures prior to April 1.

Early Return of Food Exporting Business Commercial Channels Planned by U. S.

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Department of Agriculture is planning soon to return the country's food export business, taken over by the Government during the war, to private commercial exporters.

The Washington Post learned yesterday that the Production and Marketing Administration hopes to stop all food buying, with the possible exception of wheat, for foreign relief purposes or for other Government agencies within a few weeks.

It plans to turn back the wheat-buying program also, at the end of the crop year (June 30) if: (1) the winter wheat harvest is of sufficient size to assure a fluid market, and (2) if grain exports under the European Recovery Program are not increased from the present estimate of 300 million bushels a year.

The State Department also favors Government withdrawal from the food export business. Plans for the return of the business to private exporters were informally discussed by State Department and PMA officials yesterday.

Plans to get out of the food export business have been tops with Jesse B. Gilmer, administrator of PMA, for months. The recent congressional uproar over commodity speculation, with charges of insiders profiting by confidential information of Government buying plans, spurred Gilmer to hurry up his program.

He was given a big boost by congressional leaders. The European Recovery Program, as passed by the Senate, directs that the ERP "administrator shall, to the maximum extent consistent with the accomplishment of the purposes of this act, utilize private channels of trade."

The present setup, whereby the Commodity Credit Corporation does all buying for foreign governments and other departments, was established during the war. It was designed to avoid competition for scarce commodities with resultant bidding up of prices.

Shipping Coordinated

CCC also was able to coordinate shipping facilities, through such Government agencies as the Office of Defense Transportation and the Maritime Commission, better than could otherwise be accomplished.

Some of the tentative plans have considered a clearing agency to approve all contracts for food exports before they become effective. Others considered allocations of shipping facilities.

No definite program is expected until the administrator for ERP is named. PMA and, particularly, the State Department are leaning backward to avoid any impression that they are preparing a program to hand the new ERP administrator.

PMA is rapidly nearing the end of this year's grain buying program. By Wednesday night it had bought more than enough for all allocations up to April 30.

Already most of the flour exporting has been returned to commercial channels. At present private exporters are handling more than 75 per cent—more than double that of a few months ago.

490 Million Shipped

A total of 490 million bushels of grain already have been exported this year.

Of this 136 million have been shipped through commercial exporters, the remaining 354 million by Government.

The total is already greater than the original goal of 470 million bushels. It is within 30 million bushels of the "compromise" goal set by the Secretary Anderson and the State Department in early December, and is within 80 million bushels of the top limit of 570 million bushels sought by President Truman last October 5 when he set up the Citizens Food Committee and called upon the country for strictest conservation of grain in order to feed a hungry world.

Observers at Agriculture now expect the total to go above the present goal of 520 million—probably to 550 million bushels.

Under provisions of ERP, food exports will drop from this year's 500 to 570 million bushels to 300 million bushels—or 60 per cent or less. Government officials and grain industry leaders feel this can easily be handled through commercial channels.

However, in case of a short grain crop, particularly less than a billion bushels of wheat (last year's crop was 1635 million) continuation of the present Government program may be necessary to avoid market upsets.

Foreign missions are already considering what individual buying may mean to them. Some are already planning purchasing organizations—some numbering a hundred or more people—to take over.

PMA also has been turning back other buying projects. It has virtually disposed of all buying for "troop feeding"—purchases for consumption by the armed forces.

It still will retain a purchasing setup to carry on purchases under the price support laws—and purchases to aid producers whose crops have become "distressed" through over supply.

Va. to Lift Emergency Highway Load Limits

Richmond, Va., March 25 (AP).—Emergency load limits on Virginia highways will be lifted Monday, but truckers are being asked to limit their cargoes voluntarily on weak roads that have been damaged severely by winter weather, the State Highway Department said today.

The emergency limits were decreed early this month when sudden spring thaws brought a serious break-up of many highways. The department has estimated damage to the road system at $3,500,000, worst since the winter of 1935-36. The danger period for further damage now has passed.

Coke, Scrap Shortages Cause Four-Day Week

Frederick, Md., March 25 (Spcl.), Hampered by a shortage of coke and scrap metal, the Frederick Iron and Steel Co. has informed employes the firm will go on a work schedule of four days weekly, beginning next Monday. President Jacob Goldberg said the current soft coal strike has reduced the firm's coke reserves and the scarcity of scrap metal remains acute. The company employs about 300 men, principally in the manufacture of industrial pumps and stokers.

Boy Slayer of Father Gets Limited Pardon

Charlottesville, Va., March 25 (AP).—A 15-year-old Madison County boy now serving a 45-year prison term for the slaying of his father, has been granted a conditional pardon.

This action of the Virginia Board of Pardons and Reprieves was disclosed today in the case of Floyd Butler, convicted by a Madison County Circuit Court jury last November of first degree murder in the death of his father, William Butler.

Judge Lemuel F. Smith, trial judge in the case, was notified of the board's action in an order setting forth that the pardon was conditioned upon the youth's transfer to the Virginia Industrial School for boys at Beaumont.

School Aid Bill Due To Pass Next Week

GOP Leaders Predict Senate Action On 300-Million Measure by Thursday

GOP leaders predicted last night that the Senate will certainly adopt the 300 million dollar bill for Federal aid to State education next week.

The measure, which Senator Lester M. Hill (D., Ala.) yesterday called a "Marshall Plan" for American education, is scheduled for floor debate again next Tuesday after the short Easter recess.

Senator Robert Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Republican conference, and author of the bill, said it may be temporarily laid aside while the Senate debates aid to China but action is expected by next Thursday.

Faces Stiff House Fight

The bill, designed to raise America's lowered educational opportunities, will face its real fight in the House.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), a bachelor himself, has long been indifferent to this legislation, despite a good working relationship with Taft which appears to have grown even closer in recent weeks.

Senate supporters of the bill believe that if the House leadership would permit the bill on the floor the House would adopt it, in view of the disclosure of how many American children are now getting either a substandard schooling or none at all.

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Va.), who reported the measure on behalf of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, said he expected that at least 50 or 60 Senators will vote to approve the bill.

Amendments Being Studied

Several amendments to the legislation are under consideration by various Senators. Aiken and other supporters of the measure are trying to iron out any differences in advance to eliminate a floor fight.

Hill, one of the sponsors of the bill, told the Senate that although foreign aid and the Marshall Plan would cost this country billions of dollars, funds must be found, too, to protect American schools.

"It is foolish," he declared, "to attempt to save democracy abroad if we let democracy break down at home. Yet that is what we are doing in our neglect of the public school system—the foundation stone of the structure of American democracy."

By Federal aid this country must aid the States to provide adequate education, Hill said, and "place a floor under educational opportunity for every American child."

"During the past year the people realized, with shocks, what war and steadily rising prices had done to their schools—overcrowded classrooms, short school terms, inadequate equipment, the shortage of good teachers and the migration of teachers to other jobs at better pay," the Alabama Senator told his colleagues.

He maintained that this country has never devoted an adequate percentage of its national income to education.

Percentage Costs Drop

"Since 1939," he said, "the nationals income has more than doubled, yet the percentage of that income spent for education has actually declined, in the face of an ever-rising need for more than better education for our children."

In addition, Hill pointed out, the American birth rate has been rising steadily, with nearly four million babies born in the United States last year," the greatest number in our history." The Nation cannot look "to an inadequate past" to solve this problem, Hill said.

Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) cited "appalling" inequities in educational opportunities in the United States. The Taft bill, Kilgore declared, is an ideal solution to the problem of providing Federal aid and at the same time leaving control completely in the hands of organizational units within the States."

W. Virginia Trying Hard

Kilgore insisted West Virginia was making the greatest effort of all the States to improve its schools but still could not come anywhere near equaling high-income States in education.

Senator James M. Murray (D., Mont.), supporting the bill, suggested that Federal aid could be extended to parochial and nonpublic schools in all States, not, as contemplated in the measure, only to the 19 States which now give such schools State aid.

This principle has been accepted already by the Federal Government in extending educational opportunities to veterans in private schools under the GI Bill of Rights, Murray pointed out.

License Action On 16 County Hackers Asked

Revocation or suspension of licenses held by 16 Montgomery County hackers has been recommended by Public Utilities Agent Albert E. Conradis.

Conradis also disclosed he had urged the Montgomery County commissioners to prosecute 50 unlicensed drivers under terms of the county's nine-month-old taxicab ordinance.

Enforcement of the ordinance, which prescribes uniform rates and provides for licenses for cab operators and drivers, was delayed because of opposition by some Bethesda hackers to the prescribed zones set out in the ordinance.

More recently county officials have delayed enforcement pending a circuit court ruling on a suit filed by Robert H. Swisher, owner of Piney Branch Cab Co. of Takoma Park. The suit challenges constitutionality of the ordinance.

Conradis said an investigation showed the 16 hackers whose licenses he asked be revoked or suspended had court convictions ranging from speeding and reckless driving to grand larceny.

Commenting on the 50 drivers who he charged should be prosecuted under the ordinance, he expressed belief it was "unfair to qualified licensed drivers to compete with the 50 drivers who are ignoring the ordinance."

Marine Reserves Fight Merger

The executive council of the Marines Corps Reserve Officers Association has voted against a proposed merger of reserve officers' organizations, it was announced yesterday.

Integration of the organizations, along the lines of the armed forces unification, has been proposed by the Reserve Officers Association.

Recently, the national council of the combined Reserve Officers Naval Service and Naval Reserve Officers Association approved the proposal, and is undertaking a poll of its local chapters.

The unified national association also seeks to include reserve officers of the Air Corps and Coast Guard.

Basic argument in support of the plan is that the armed forces have been unified by law into the National Defense Establishment. Chief argument against the plan is that the Naval, Marine, and Coast Guard members will be swallowed up numerically by the Air Corps and Army officers.

Ruling Sought on District's Court Rights

Federal courts ought to be open to District people, the same as to citizens of the States, the Justice Department said yesterday.

The department asked the Supreme Court for a clear-cut ruling on this point, which has been in dispute for years, and which means much to thousands of Washington businessmen and others, whose affairs reach all over the country.

When citizens of two different States fall out, they do not have to try their case in State courts, where one of them might have an edge over the other. The Constitution says the case may be heard in Federal courts, where both are on an equal footing.

Act Held Unconstitutional

Eight years ago, Congress passed an act giving the same right to citizens of Hawaii, Alaska and the District. This act has been upheld by three Federal District courts. But eight others, and two Circuit Courts of Appeal have found it unconstitutional, because the District, Hawaii and Alaska are not "States."

Some weeks ago the National Mutual Insurance Co., of Washington, lost a $10,000 suit against the Tidewater Transfer Co., of Virginia, on a 2-to-1 ruling of this kind by the Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The insurance company appealed to the Supreme Court, which never has passed on the issue.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman told the Supreme Court yesterday that they ought now to take the case and give a final ruling, reversing the Fourth Circuit judges.

As long ago as 1805, Perlman said, Chief Justice Marshall found it strange that the Federal courts were closed to District people, although open to citizens of all the States and to aliens. Marshall said then that Congress could correct this. Now that Congress has done so, Perlman argued, the courts ought to respect its judgment.

The Government brief followed the reasoning of Senior Judge John J. Parker, who dissented in the Circuit Court. Judge Parker said there was no doubt that Congress could set up special Federal courts all over the country to hear cases between District people and citizens of the States.

If Congress could do that, Judge Parker asked, why could not Congress order such cases tried in the regular Federal courts? He found no reason, and voted to uphold the 1940 law to that effect.

The Supreme Court may announce in the next two weeks whether it will hear the appeal. If it does, the matter probably would be heard and decided before the justices rise for the summer, in June.

Reunion of the Webers . . .

The Washington Post

NEWCOMERS FROM GERMANY—Ludwig Driefer, 88, and Mrs. Driefer, 79, who brought with them a first-hand report on conditions in the Ruhr, are reunited with their daughter, Mrs. Olga Weber, at her home, 730 17th st. nw. Theresa Metz (standing) came here last year from Strasbourg

German, 88, Quick to Learn U. S. Words

At the age of 88, Ludwig Dreifer learned some new words in a strange language yesterday.

He and his 79-year-old wilfe, Mary, arrived at National Airport from Germany after a stormy trip to make their permanent home here. It was their first journey away from the 128-year-old restaurant they owned at Mulheim in the rubbled Ruhr and there wasn't time for sightseeing in the rubble of France and Great Britain en route.

Explains Reactions

A few hours later at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Olga Weber, 730 17th st., nw., Dreifer explained his reactions to his new home atop the restaurant owned by the Webers:

"Wonderful, wunderbar, unbelievable," he said.

And how were thing in the Ruhr?

"Hunger, hunger, hunger."

The Dreifers had among their baggage a paper bag. It was filled with remnants of hard bread they munched en route. Mrs. Weber tried to toss it into the garbage, and the Dreifers were aghast at the waste.

With Mrs. Weber as interpreter, Herr Dreifer proudly explained he had been given a No. 5 rating by a denazification board. That, he said, showed the Dreifers had no use for Hitlerism.

Praises Marshall Plan

He pulled a clipping from a German newspaper from a pocket and explained it was all about the Marshall Plan. "It's our only hope," he said.

"The people of the Ruhr have almost no faith in anyone any more," he said. "We want the Americans to take over the Ruhr. Then we won't starve. Then the Communists won't spread their promises like they're doing now. Only Americans can help us now; no one else.

"The coal miners are getting CARE packages and conditions are better now than before, but everyone else must still live off the black market or starve. Here everything is so plentiful, I can't imagine it."

They brought along a grandchild, Brigitte Boecy, 10 years, who is staying with a aunt at 24 Philadelphia ave., Takoma Park. Brigitte's father can't come over from Dortmund yet. Her mother died.

Reunion of Sorts

It was a sort of reunion, too. They met Theresa Metz, 17, who arrived last year from her home in Strasbourg to stay with her uncle, Ettienne Weber, in the same apartment. She's going to Central High School and will be returning to Alsace soon unless the immigration service allows her to stay.

It was a reunion for Mr. Weber, too. He was a French soldier during the occupation in Germany after the first World War and he met the future Mrs. Weber and her parents in Germany.

Swede May Supervise Aid Expenditures

Paris, March 25 (U.P.).—The name of the man who will supervise the spending of an anticipated 20 billion dollars in Marshall Plan funds over the next four years will be known in a week, informed sources said today.

The leading candidate for the job of chairman of the 16-nation administrative organization is A. G. Hammerskjold, Swedish finance expert, these sources said.

Judge Dismisses Rule Against Virginia Mayor

Luray, Va., March 25 (AP).—Circuit Judge William V. Ford entered an order in Page County circuit court on Monday dismissing a rule against Mayor Bernard C. Painter of Stanley, Va., on a contempt of court summons.

An Associated Press story on the hearing incorrectly quoted Judge Ford as saying that despite the fact Mayor Painter had been in contempt of court the rule was dismissed "because Painter had bad advice from counsel." Judge Ford said today he did not make such a statement.

The court's order stated:

"It appearing to the court that there was no intentional violation of the court's order by the said defendant it is ordered that the rule against B. C. Painter, Esquire, Mayor of the town of Stanley, be dismissed and that he go hence without stay."

Monday's hearing was on a show cause order against Painter obtained by Commonwealth's Attorney I. R. Dovel. Dovel charged that Painter refused to allow the records of Charles K. Hackley, former town trial justice, to be audited before a grand jury.

Costa Rican Rebels Rule All of South, Underground Says

San Jose, Costa Rica, March 25 (AP).—An underground broadcast said Jose Figueres, rebel military leader, now controls all of southern Costa Rica from positions 10 miles south of Cartago to the Panamanian border.

The broadcast said efforts of President Eeodoro Picado's government to halt the revolution had been unsuccessful.

The government claimed the capture of the rebel stronghold of San Isidoro El General. However, a United States Public Roads Administration camp reported the town and airport still are in the hands of the insurgents.

Chinn Again Elected By Peninsulas Group

Fredericksburg, Va., March 25. Walter N. Chinn, jr., has been re-elected president of the Northern Virginia Peninsulas Association, which includes Fredericksburg and 12 counties lying between the Potomac and York Rivers.

Najah C. Taylor of Tappahannock was renamed vice president, and T. D. McGinnis of Kilmarnock, treasurer. George D. Williams of Comorn was chosen secretary to succeed Fred Haines of Fredericksburg.

Advertising Agency Gives Up 'Luckies'

Drops 11 Million American Tobacco Account Week After Hill Quit Because of Interference

New York, March 25 (AP).—The New York advertising agency of Foote, Cone and Belding today resigned the lucrative American Tobacco Co. account which it has held since January 2, 1943.

President Emerson Foote said "if an agency can't do the kind of advertising it believes in, it ought to stop taking commissions."

He said the action was "neither in anger nor in rancor."

Lucky Strike, Pall Mall and Kensitas were included in the American Tobacco lines handled by the agency.

The represented gross billings of $11 million to $12 million a year, Foote said, about 20 per cent of the agency's billings.

Foote said the action has no connection with the resignation last week of George Washington Hill, jr., in charge of advertising for American Tobacco.

American Tobacco said the Foote resignation would have no effect on current advertising scheduled.

Foote asked to whom the contract with Jack Benny (radio comedian on the Lucky Strike show) was assigned, replied "all contract transactions are at will; we operate on a no contract basis."

The agency will continue to handle American tobacco until a successor is found.

Fgures for 1947 show Lucky Strike, the cigarette leader, dropped 0.9 per cent from 1946 from 103 billion to 102 billion.

Camel, second on the list, showed a 12.8 per cent increase from 89½ billion to 101 billion. Third was Chesterfield, which increased 2.2 per cent from 68 billion to 69½ billion.

Labor Party Retains Brigg Commons Seat

Briggs, England, March 25 (AP).—Britain's Labor Party retained its House of Commons seat for this district in a by-election yesterday. Laborite E. L. Mallalieu defeated Conservative Anthony Fell, 27,333 to 22,746.

The election was made necessary by the resignation of Laborite Tom Williamson, who won in 1945 by 8104 votes.

Death Note Found With Body in Auto

The body of a man who left a note to his bride of three months asking her not to "let them put me under the ground" was found in his parked car near 18th st. and Colorado ave. nw., yesterday.

He was identified as Nebil Montgomery, 42, of 5703 Colorado ave nw., who recently lost his job as a master auto painter.

Police found two notes in the car—one addressed to them giving the man's name, address and telephone number; another to "my wife" in which he expressed his love for her and the desire to be cremated.

A length of corrugated vacuum cleaner hose had been wired to the exhaust pipe of the sedan and extended through the trunk into the back seat section. An Emergency Hospital doctor who pronounced him dead, said death had occurred about two hours before he was found by road surveyors on Colorado ave. extended.

Park police and a fire rescue squad failed to revive him.

A college graduate and one-time summer school student at George Washington University, Montgomery was married to a French widow in January. As she speaks only French, police used an interpreter to inform her of her husband's death. She has an 11-year-old son.

As far as neighbors knew, Montgomery was not a veteran. They said he met his wife here after her first husband, also an American, died. She came here from France about a year ago.

U. S. Promises Speed In Va. Apple Buying

The United States Department of Agriculture has promised Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) to speed action toward buying Virginia apples for school lunches.

Robertson telegraphed E. W. Barr of Winchester, Va., that the department expects to clear this week or early next week the Virginia shipping instruction.

York growers, concerned that unless storage supplies are moved soon the apples will go bad, sought an outlet through the school lunch program.

New Electronic Brain Is Faster, Smarter, Smaller

New York, March 25 (AP).—A new electronic computer, said to be faster, smaller and "smarter" than all other electronic brains, made its debut today.

The new device uses a pint of mercury in which to store up information. It will stop and indicate what part of the machine is out of order when it makes a mistake.

Other electronic brains stop when they make an error, but attendants sometimes have to check as many as 18,000 radio tubes to see where the machine is out of order.

The new electronic brain was displayed at the national convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers. It was said to cost $150,000.

MacArthur Ordered To Return Looted Goods

The United States has directed Gen. Douglas MacArthur to go ahead with restoring Japanese-looted property to the wartime Allies without further delay.

The action was disclosed by Secretary of State Marshall yesterday. It was taken after the 11-Nation Far Eastern Commission failed in 18 months of effort to agree on terms of restoring the loot.

It includes shipping and such diverse articles as fire engines taken by the Japanese invaders from Chinese cities.

School Progress Outlined by Lane

Administration's Record on Highways, Institutions Also Cited in Broadcast

Baltimore, March 25 (AP).—Governor Lane reported today the task of bringing plant facilities in Maryland's school system "up to acceptable standards" is "better than half accomplished."

Lane

School building construction totaling 47 million dollars is now under way or ready to be let on contract, he said.

Higher salaries have brought more than 1200 qualified teachers into county schools alone, Lane declared, and while the public school population has risen up about 14,000, the number of pupils in average county class rooms has been reduced from nearly 40 in 1945 to a little over 3 today.

In a radio broadcast on the 14th anniversary of the founding of Maryland, the Governor also reported on his administration's record on roads and conditions in dental hospitals and other institutions.

"In general," he said, "the year since the adoption of this administration's program by the (1947) General Assembly has been a year of progress for the State."

When his administration took over not quite 15 months ago, the Governor asserted, "the State was just about in the same position as a man who has $50 in his pocket and a note for $50 due at the bank."

Contrary to what had been the "popular belief" for a time, he said, the State instead of being well off financially was, rather bluntly speaking, just keeping its head above water."

Turning to roads, Lane noted the five-year, two-million-dollar highway program represented a cost equal to the value of all the highways built in Maryland since the beginning of its road system in 1908.

The five-year plan calls for annual expenditures of 40 million dollars, compared with the seven million dollars spent at peak building periods in the past, Governor Lane said.

Within the next three months, he continued, bids will be taken on about 10 million dollars worth in addition to projects totaling five million dollars authorized by the State Roads Commission since January 1.

The Governor said that "barring presently unforeseen obstacles, it is still possible to begin actual construction of a Chesapeake Bay bridge or tunnel and get the work well under way this year."

Whether the crossing would be a bridge or tunnel "will rest on the comparative initial and maintenance costs of the two types of structures," he declared.

Admirals Urge Navy Airport At Annapolis

Two high-ranking Naval officers made a plea yesterday for an Annapolis Naval Academy airport as an important project in the Navy's defense plan.

Testifying before the House Armed Services Subcommittee on the Army and Navy Public Works bill, Vice Adm. Arthur W. Radford, vice chief of Naval Operations, and Rear Adm. James Holloway, academy commandant, said the Navy wants $12,000,000 for the airport project.

Radford told the subcommittee the Navy considers the project as compellingly urgent to its defense plan." It would provide facilities for one unit of 12 land-type planes and two squadrons of carrier-type planes, 18 to the squadron. Radford said the Navy placed the project as third in importance on a list approximately of 500.

Holloway explained the facilities would enable the Navy to carry out a comprehensive air indoctrination program for all academy students.

"Air indoctrination is as necessary now as indoctrination to the sea," he said. "All academy graduates now must be as familiar with aircraft, in one form or another, as with seagoing vessels."

Local Oil

The imminence of a serious oil and gasoline shortage was brought home recently by the request of Max W. Ball, head of the Department of Interior oil and gas division, that Capital Transit postpone the conversion from streetcars to buses on the Rosslyn-Benning line. Accordingly the Public Utilities Commission has moved ahead the effective date of the change-over pending further study. Meanwhile Mr. Ball has called for a prompt general curtailment of pleasure driving to avoid a crippling deficiency in fuel supplies this summer. This deficiency is rooted not in any over-all shortage of oil, but in the inability of refining and transportation facilities to keep up with the increase in demand—demand reflected not only in the vast expansion of pleasure driving, but also in the great number of home conversions to oil burners and the rapidly rising use of diesel locomotives.

The merits of the substitution of buses for streetcars are not at issue here. But Capital Transit does have a point, we believe, in protesting that it is being used as a guinea pig. This protest gains weight from the fact that although the company normally carries only a two-day supply of gasoline, several suppliers have assured it all the additional fuel it will need to operate more buses. To be sure, such assurance does not mean that the change-over is advisable now. The substitution can be delayed without harm; if it were carried through and the predicted shortage did become serious, oil to operate buses might have to be diverted from more essential use.

What the situation emphasizes is the necessity for making restrictions more general in application. It is true that anticipated shortages may be spotty in the sense that some areas have better access than others to pipelines and tankers. But Capital Transit can hardly be expected to look favorably on a request to postpone bus service if such change-overs are proceeding apace, say, in Baltimore. Likewise, motorists cannot be expected to abstain voluntarily from pleasure driving unless they understand the need and have strong leadership. It would be foolhardy to ignore Mr. Ball's warning, but if the prospect is as dire as he says it is, then it is high time for the Department of the Interior to bestir itself in a conservation campaign.

ITO Pact

The charter for an International Trade Organization has been signed at Havana by representatives of 53 nations, after discussions extending over a period of four months had resulted in radical revision of the preliminary draft of the preparatory committee that met last year in Geneva. That preliminary draft was itself a watered-down edition of the original plan outlined by the United States. As a matter of fact, the summary of the Havana Charter provisions prepared by the United Nations Department of Public Information indicates that the removal of obstructions to world trade expansion, the ultimate aim of the agreement, will not be attainable for a long time to come. For instance, it has been impossible to secure unqualified assent to proposals to abandon forthwith export and import quotas, trade preferences, and export subsidies, or to level barriers to the free flow of investment capital from country to country.

The reasons are plain: Many, indeed most, nations are confronted by unsolved international balance-of-payment problems; hence restrictions on imports and stimulation of exports have to be relied upon indefinitely as corrective measures. Moreover, the ever-present threat to security growing out of the present politically disturbed state of the world makes it essential for member nations to reserve the right to protect themselves against economic infiltration by alien interests that might constitute a threat to their national sovereignty. Hence it follows inevitably that the ITO charter contains so many reservations and exceptions to the general principles enunciated as to raise the question whether it serves any purpose at all except as an expression of ideals of trading conduct impossible of realization in these disordered times. Certainly in its present form the charter cannot be regarded as much more than a tentative step toward achievement of the ultimate aims of removing the shackles from world trade.

Nevertheless, it would be a mistake to discount the potential importance of the work of the Havana Conference. For, as Secretary of Agriculture Anderson says, it "establishes a set of rules and an organizational framework for peaceful international consultation by member nations." Members will be encouraged to thresh out differences, and rules of procedure for the settlement of such differences will be established by the ITO. Given a strong central administration, therefore, and a real desire on the part of member nations to work together for elimination of unreasonably obstructive trade practices, the Havana Charter, despite its weaknesses, will provide much needed machinery for assisting the world's important trading nations to develop and enforce codes of fair practice calculated to promote trade expansion and encourage gradual abolition of trade barriers. The alternative to such cooperative efforts is to leave each country free, as at present, to set up special regulations to deal with its own trade problems without regard for the effect on other nations. That policy tends, as Secretary of Commerce Harriman warns, to result in trade anarchy.

Billions For Defense

The three-billion-dollar addition to the defense budget called for by Secretary Forrestal would finance an increase of 350,000 in the statutory strength of the armed forces, revival of the draft, universal military training and an immediate start on new aircraft procurement. In broad outline we think it is an essential military backstop to American foreign policy. The recommendations represent an integrated approach, each component supplementing the other. Particularly impressive is the 200,000-man striking force detailed by General Bradley.

There is some disposition to criticize the armed forces for springing these proposals suddenly upon the people. Much of this criticism is unjust, for the services have been pleading for three years for such measures as UMT without much attention being given them. The coup in Czechoslovakia merely served to arouse popular recognition of the seriousness of the deterioration of American military power. Nevertheless, it is impossible to avoid the impression that the services themselves have done a certain amount of floundering, if only for the reason that they had not agreed among themselves until recently on precisely what they needed. For example, even after Mr. Forrestal had echoed President Truman's request for re-enactment of selective service and had also asked an increase in authorized strength of the services, he was unable immediately to present draft legislation and specific figures.

Aside, however, from the failure to achieve genuine unification, which must be laid at the doorstep of the defense chiefs themselves, there are several good reasons for the apparent military disjointedness. One is the manner in which military budgets have been presented to Congress. Because of paring by the Bureau of the Budget, they almost never have represented what the persons actually charged with defense deemed essential. This not only has encouraged padding; it also has given Congress a false picture of the considered opinion of the military men. Furthermore, there has been widespread misunderstanding of the uses to which the current 10-billion-dollar appropriation has been put. If American defense is a "hollow shell," as has been charged, at least part of the reason is that after deducting extensive occupation and recruiting costs, relatively little has been left for building up our defense establishment. Out of the 5.9 billion Army-Air Force appropriation, for instance, less than one billion dollars has been available for meeting Army payrolls as well as planning all new developments.

This does not mean that the military should now be handed a blank check. There must be careful scrutiny of expenditures, especially since the present request undoubtedly represents only a first installment in military expansion. The burden of justification is primarily a task for the defense chiefs. But the necessity for reinvigorating our military arm is so clear that every reasonable request the armed forces make is certain to have sympathetic consideration.

Mead's Fitness

Former Senator James M. Mead is reported to have given an extraordinary reason for his refusal to accept a post on the Federal Power Commission offered to him by President Truman—a reason so extraordinary, indeed, as to invite the incredulity of cynics. According to White House sources, the New Yorker, who had felt confidence enough in his own abilities to serve his State in the United States Senate and to seek office as its Governor, declined the President's offer to serve as a member of the FPC because he felt his background did not qualify him for the job. Diogenes, put aside thy lamp!

The FPC, to be sure, calls for some special qualifications. It is charged with administration of the Federal Power Act and the Natural Gas Act and thus is responsible for fixing the rates for electric energy and natural gas in interestate commerce, a highly technical function. A man whose experience has been, like Senator Mead's, largely in legislatures, might find himself at a serious disadvantage in such work. The fact is that three of the four present members of the commission trained for their posts by service on State public utility regulatory bodies. The chairman, Nelson Lee Smith, used to be a member of the New England Governors' Rail Road Commission and was chairman of the New Hampshire Public Service Commission; Claude Draper served on the Wyoming Public Service Commission; Leland Olds was assistant to the chairman and later executive secretary of the New York State Power Authority; only Harrington Wimberly lacks this kind of background, and he was a newspaper publisher which would, we feel bound to assert, fit him for anything at all.

So in Mr. Mead's case the stated reason may very well be the real one. And those who assume that he is just another politician climbing hastily off President Truman's apparently derailed bandwagon may be merely the victims of their own sour skepticism. The stated reason is surprising not because it is in any way invalid, but only because it is so novel for anyone in public life to acknowledge limitations of any kind. Senator Mead's prestige will not suffer from this self-disparagement. A man who knows where he is unfit has balance that is certain to enhance his fitness in those fields where his experience lies.

School Aid

The need for Federal aid to State educational systems was demonstrated compellingly yesterday by Senator Robert A. Taft: As much as any man now in public life, Mr. Taft is allergic to Federal interference in State affairs. He has taken good care, accordingly, that nothing contained in the grant-in-aid program he is sponsoring shall be construed to authorize any supervision or control by the Federal Government over the schools, teaching personnel or curricula of State educational systems. His bill is, as he called it, an equalization bill—an attempt to spread more evenly and more equitably through Federal financial assistance, the opportunities for primary and secondary schooling in the several States of the Union. Only a belated recognition that the need for such assistance is desperate led the Senator from Ohio to introduce in the Eightieth Congress an aid bill similar to one sponsored by Senators Thomas and Hill which he opposed and was instrumental in defeating four years ago. Mr. Taft is a respecter of facts. Following are some of the facts which changed his mind and which he set before the Senate yesterday:

> About two million children within the age limits of 6 and 17, which are the ordinary ages for school children, are attending no school . . . According to the Federal census reporting in 1940, there were 10 million United States adults who had less than five years of schooling, and most of them were from the poorer States. In World War II, 8 per cent of the young men who were examined by the Selective Service . . . were rejected for educational deficiencies . . . More than a million children are today in schools with annual expenditures so low that the operation and maintenance of the school building amounts to less than $500 per classroom . . . Furthermore, two million children are being taught by teachers who have no certificates of any kind and who are not qualified by any standards of education.

These are the circumstances which make aid to the States imperative. They cannot be remedied by any means which the States themselves have at their command. Only the Federal Government has the resources with which to improve the educational opportunities which are the key to economic opportunities. Now, as to the reasons which make this a matter of national concern, let Senator Taft testify again:

> Primary education lies at the basis of all forms of republican government. A government depending on the making of decisions by the people and depending on their intelligence can exist only if the people have some ability to understand the problems of government which are presented to them. Unless there is a satisfactory educational basis, there cannot possibly be hope for success in any democratic form of government where the people are expected to rule and to decide the questions which are placed before them . . . When the Declaration of Independence said that all men are created equal, it perhaps made an extreme statement; but I have always felt that what was meant was that all men in the United States are entitled to equality of opportunity. No child can have equality of opportunity, in my opinion, unless to start with he has a basic minimum education.

Civilization

Mindful of the implications of the embryo crime wave in a Manhattan barroom attributed, uniquely, to the unceasing repetition of a juke box tune known as Civilization, the New York Herald Tribune, thinking perhaps of the earful of Hitler to which the Nazis subjected some of their distinguished prisoners, recently suggested that authors of popular songs henceforth be required by law to listen to their own compositions for six solid hours before they are released publicly. That, says the Herald Tribune with an air of finality, "would make it unlikely that any such song as Civilization would ever be published again; it would, in fact, make it unlikely that any popular song would be published. Nothing could be fairer than that."

Even those who have been awakened at night by the cannibalistic stomping of "Bongo, Bongo, Bongo" through their brain would not undertake, when their sanity returned, to defend this atrocious form of punishment. Moreover, it might not work. We have a better idea. Why not reserve such excrescences as Civilization, One Meat Ball and Mairzy Doats for the best use? Why not, for example, beam them incessantly at the iron curtain? They would make a pretty good weapon—effective on the targets and secret to us.

Distorted Picture

Several weeks ago your newspaper reported a significant interview the newly appointed Russian Ambassador to the United States had with our Ambassador in Moscow. The Russian, desired to learn a bit about the American internal situation, especially about the forthcoming presidential election and the potential candidates. The Russian was greatly surprised that our Ambassador did not even mention the name of Henry Wallace.

A few days ago you repeated the same story in an editorial to emphasize that Russian intelligence does not give the Kremlin leaders the true picture of our domestic moods, beliefs and political ideas. You rightly pointed out that Red leaders do not understand us, are oblivious to our mental make-up.

Subsequently I received a letter from Poland, behind the iron curtain. My brother-in-law requests that I discuss with him our internal situation and give him my opinion on different topics. However, one question in his letter struck me as corroborating your editorial to the fullest! The question in exact translation is, What are the chances of your most outstanding famed presidential candidate, Mr. Wallace?

All I can ask at this time is, Why don't we do something about the propaganda angle? Why cannot our Voice of America carry to the peoples behind the iron curtain the real picture of these United States and impress upon them that our will to live free and happy is not a mere invention of Wall Street, but the deepest determination of the average American?

Truman's Chances

I usually agree very well with Mr. Marquis Childs, but his blunt statement in his column of March 18 that "Mr. Truman's defeat is assured," is a pretty wild shot, in my opinion. It is true that the combined assaults of a large collection of mediocre political starvelings and hangers-on have had the effect of discrediting the President in the minds of many thousands of voters, but in my opinion Mr. Childs is making about as bad a guess as that of Mr. Frank Kent in the Reader's Digest for February, 1938. If the reader keeps a file he will find rich reading there. Mr. Kent opened up by stating that a regular reader was anxiously inquiring if Mr. Roosevelt would be reelected in 1940. Mr. Kent preached quite a sermon on the errors of Mr. Roosevelt and finally let the anxious correspondent have it with the most emphatic negatives he could dig out of his wide vocabulary. And yet Roosevelt was elected.

I suspect that discouraged Democrats would do well to cut out the Marquis Childs article and then pull it on him in November. There are millions of us who love the innards the President shows in his remarks to Russia—and they do say he had them sent over to Russia, but not "With Love—Harry."

Manifesto To Italy

There is more fiction than truth in Mr. Sherwood's "Peace Manifesto" to the Italian people, published in Drew Pearson's column of March 18. Mr. Sherwood states "both continents of the New World have been largely settled and developed by men and women of Italian birth. We look to Rome as the cradle of our civilization, and for many of us the eternal citadel of our religious faith."

It is to be sincerely hoped that the Italian people will express themselves freely in their coming elections without fear of reprisal either from the United States, with its threat of withdrawal of aid, or from the Pope, with the threat of excommunication. To a country that has lived under the Fascist regime for 25 years, surely the threat of hell itself could have no terror.

The people, whether they be Pole, Czech, or Italian, know too well the role of the church from the time that the Vatican hailed Mussolini as the great savior who was to save them and the world from communism. Perhaps they look with a shudder at the perfect state under clerical fascism of Franco's Spain.

As for Mr. Sherwood's history, he must have got it from a Roman textbook. As any child knows, the United States was founded a Protestant country. South America was settled by the Spanish and Portuguese, as the language attests. The less said of the role of the church in the early settling of that part of the continent, the better. Canada, as again language tells, was settled by the British and French. Italy, on this continent, is Johnny Come Lately.

Transit Radios

In view of news reports a few weeks ago that Capital Transit is considering installation of radios in all streetcars and buses at the entire expense of the radio companies, I protest, and I trust many others will speak their minds for or against such action.

Is there not more than enough noise in public traffic and inside and outside of cars and buses, without adding to the confusion by forcing those who do not wish to, to listen to radio?

Please, please don't.

Prayers In Congress

In the Congressional Record of March 17, Representative Owens of Illinois extended his remarks by publishing an article by Frank C. Waldrop, entitled "Why Prayers?" Mr. Waldrop called attention to the fact that both the Senate and the House of Representatives are violating the principle laid down by the Supreme Court decision forbidding the teaching of religion in tax-supported schools by having paid chaplains offer prayer at the opening of each daily session of Congress. He also called attention to numerous other infractions of a similar nature in tax-supported institutions, and then asserted: "And all these things are done in tax-supported institutions, just as much tax-supported as public schools. How can any such procedure now be called legal in view of the court's ruling?"

It is a well-known fact that both Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, who had as much to do with the drafting of our Declaration of Independence and the Constitution as any other two men, were both opposed to prayers being said or read at the expense of the taxpayers. Nearly all the prayers said or read at the daily opening of State legislatures are offered by ministers of various denominations without being paid for—on a voluntary basis. The executive and the judicial branches of our Government begin their work each day without paid prayers being said.

Jefferson and Madison both suggested that if chaplains are hired to say prayers for Congress, that the Senators and Congressmen pay for these prayers themselves.

It isn't wrong to say prayers anywhere, but to be compelled to pay for prayers by the Government is wrong and that is the underlying principle sustained by the Supreme Court in its 8 to 1 decision against using tax-supported institutions as agencies to propagate religion.

Alaskan Statehood

There is a minority in Alaska who do not want Statehood at this time. This minority is comprised of the most valuable citizen Alaska has today.

This citizen is a settler who has lived in the Territory for many years. He has built a home and accumulated the necesary belongings and he intends to stay in the Territory. He lives as nearly as he can on the products of his own resourcefulness. He is not after political appointment nor subsidized income. He believes in a natural growth for the Territory and that gradually more settlers will come who, like himself, will make their way and will stay.

The majority, the ambitious citizen who is urging Statehood, is a combination of many types. The greater number among this group are Government officer holders. Many are office seekers. Others are business people who see personal gain from the change of a Territory to a State. Most of them enjoy an assured income.

Many of these people are conscientious believers in what they call progress. But, back of all their interest and activity can be found in very many of them what was recently admitted by one, that is, a plan to make enough during the next few years to return to the States and become permanently established there. Whether he succeeds in doing this or not, such individual is concerned mainly in what will show within the next decade and not in Alaska's affairs at long range. He is toying with the Statehood idea as an experiment, as a diligent committeeman or for what it may bring him or promise to bring in early returns.

These are the majority, those who have most vociferously cried for Statehood. Please consider the minority, the genuine Alaskan.

Reasons follow for not believing Statehood feasible for Alaska at this time.

In spite of statements showing the population of different Western States at time of admission as small in comparison as that of Alaska at the present time, bear in mind that those States were young Territories and they continued to grow steadily.

Alaska is an old Territory, 80 years in the possession of the United States. It has enjoyed "booms" that have drawn large population, and lost that population at the end of the boom. The present population and influx of people is held only by the slips of green paper handed to them twice a month.

Alaska's economy is now measured by the size of the Government payrolls. Are Government appointees and the money they spend a healthy background for a State?

Condition of the towns and of the Legislature indicate lack of conscientious and capable citizens to administer the affairs of a State. The Territory would be at the mercy of carpetbaggers.

Forced settlement or transplanting of people will only lead to further subsidies. It also invites people of transitory habits and vacillating opinions. Such are many of those who are crying loudly for Statehood at the present time.

It is not the absence of Statehood that has held back a growing population in Alaska over the years. It is not the blunders made by Federal control, nor moneyed monopolies that have discouraged settlement. Two natural influences alone are responsible, i.e., the northern latitude of the Territory and the immense area it occupies.

Until this is overcome by improved transportation methods and until people again believe in shaping their own destiny, until then Alaska is best considered as a strategic military outpost and developed as such.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Sidetracking Truman

PRESIDENT Truman and the advisers close to him are busy putting out public and private assurances that the man in the White House has no intention of removing himself from the political scene by renouncing the Democratic nomination at Philadelphia. They say that he will stick to the end, come what may.

But what is happening both here and out in the country makes it possible—yes, probable—that the decision will be taken out of his hands. The professional politicians are moving in to save what they can of the party organization, including their own claims in bankruptcy on what is left of the Democratic machine.

That is the real meaning of the talks that have gone forward quietly here and in New York and Chicago. Speculation turns on a respectable ticket that would best hold together what is left of the party.

Democrats on Capitol Hill in touch with dissidents out in the country are talking in terms of Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois for President and House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas for Vice President. Or the order might be reversed, with Rayburn in the No. 1 place and Lucas in No. 2.

IN THIS there is no hope of victory. Repudiation of the President by his own party would be too big a handicap to overcome. The campaign would be comparable to that waged in 1924 by John W. Davis, who was nominated after the Democratic Party, in the Madison Square Garden convention of that year, had all but destroyed itself over Al Smith, the Ku Klux Klan and the Catholic issue.

The candidates would give a respectable imitation of a campaign, doing it as cheaply as possible since, naturally, large contributors would not be flocking in to volunteer donations. In this way utter disaster, theatening dissolution of the party, would be averted. As the gloomy professionals cast up the score, that is about the limit of their hopes.

Two events brought about the grim fact-facing sessions of the past week. One was the outright reversal of the Palestine partition decision. That produced open revolt in New York and Chicago, where the Jewish vote is a vital factor.

The second event was the defection of Alabama's two Senators, Lister Hill and John Sparkman. This was like a sudden lightning flash revealing the extent and the depth of the Southern revolt.

Hill and Sparkman are both liberals, both men of integrity. They had announced that they would support the President. But the ground-swell of revolution back home made that impossible.

This, plus the situation with respect to the delegates to the Democratic convention and the Democratic electors to be chosen in the Alabama primary. Of 28 candidates for electors to go to the electoral college and cast Alabama's 11 electoral votes in November, 22 had pledged that they would not cast them for Harry S. Truman. Thus if Hill, running for delegate to the Philadelphia convention, were pledged to Truman, he would be committed to a candidate who could not receive the vote of his State.

SURVEYING the gloomy scene, the party's professionals realized that Mr. Truman might go down to a defeat as sweeping as that of Alf Landon in 1936. GOP candidate Landon carried only two States, Maine and Vermont.

If the tide of Southern revolt continues at the present flood Mr. Truman seems likely to lose all of the States south of the Mason and Dixon line with the exception of North Carolina and possibly Florida. Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida has said that he will do everything he can to prevent Mr. Truman's nomination but, failing to prevent it, he will not lead a move to deprive Candidate Truman of the State's electoral vote.

The Southern States would accept a Lucas-Rayburn ticket. They would, in fact, accept almost any other Democrat than the present occupant of the White House.

Thus, by sidetracking Mr. Truman, the Democrats would carry the Solid South. They might pick up other scattered States, particularly if the Republicans go back to William McKinley for their candidate. They might save congressional seats in cities which would otherwise go down in the general ruin.

The Presidency is a powerful office in more ways than one. But whether the present President could head off such a move, if and when it takes final and definite form, is highly uncertain.

Courtesy Contest

I think, due to the 1100 entries, the courtesy contest judges had a rather hard job of being fair. But your picture tells the results: a man-courtesy contest. What has happened to the many deserving courteous, tireless clerks, waitresses, and other women public servants?

DISAPPOINTED.
Washington.

The courtesy campaign was a fine civic project and has obviously been highly successful. But there is something else we need along with kindness and consideration, and that is cleanliness. At its present high level of courteous behavior, Washington reminds one of a lady in a spiled dress and dusty shoes trying to be charming and gracious.

Would not a clean-up campaign be a good follow-up to the courtesy campaign, with District services and citizens all helping to keep our beautiful city from having littered and untidy streets and parks?

MILDRED BLAICH.

U. S. Palestine Policy

A Communication

THERE IS now only one overriding fact in the Palestine situation—May 15. The one thing necessary is to retrieve the situation. In this the United States must take the initiative.

There are four elements in retrieving the situation: (1) to repair American credit; (2) to safeguard American security in the Near East; (3) to restore and preserve the peace in Palestine; (4) to lay the basis for an eventual Palestine settlement.

There is one way to repair our credit. The White House should decide that henceforth the United States will support its Palestine policy with action in Palestine. This determination should be conveyed, in unequivocal language through diplomatic channels, to our western allies. Nothing short of such a guarantee will suffice.

Having determined to repair its credit, the United States should immediately take steps to secure its position in the Mediterranean. There is nothing inconsistent in Soviet opposition to U. N. action in the Balkans and Korea and its eagerness to enforce Palestine partition. Russia supports partition, not to effect a settlement (it was unwilling to have the Big Five consult Arab or Jewish representatives, the mandatory or the Palestine Commission), but to get Soviet troops into Palestine.

WHAT IS incomprehensible is that the United States, after having gone to great length—in Iran, Trieste, Turkey, Greece and North Africa—to keep Russia out of the Mediterranean, should have sponsored a policy which would have deposited Soviet troops midway between Suez and the Dardanelles and athwart the trans-Abrabian pipelines.

Nor is the U. N. trusteeship proposal any improvement in this respect. Russia is not a member of the Trusteeship Council, and would not have a veto there if it were. Russia would probably be powerless to prevent Assembly approval of a trusteeship terms excluding Soviet participation. But, pending establishment of trusteeship, Russia would have the right under Article 106 to contribute its share of Big Five troops to maintain the peace in Palestine.

If the Soviet Union is to be kept out of the Near East—and after recent events in Prague and Helsinki, can any American policymaker doubt that necessity?—then the Palestine question must be withdrawn from the U. N. The simple, effective and legal way to do this would be for Britain to revoke its decision to surrender the mandate on May 15. Although Britain has maintained her decision is irrevocable, she would have unassailable reasons for reversing it.

ON FEBRUARY 14, 1947, Britain announced she was turning the Palestine question over to the U. N. For almost a year the U. N. has been deliberating a settlement. Now, seven weeks before the deadline, with Britain evacuating her troops, Mr. Austin suddenly informs the Security Council that (1) Britain's "unilateral" decision to terminate the mandate does not "commit the United Nations to responsibility for governing that country"; (2) such responsibility would devolve upon the U. N. only if Britain had voluntarily placed the mandate under the trusteeship system; (3) "no such proposal has been made by the mandatory power . . . and no action has been taken by the United Nations itself which would have that result."

Mr. Austin then suggests such a trusteeship. But before it can become effective and before Britain — according to Mr. Austin—can be relieved of mandatory responsibilities, the terms of such trusteeship must be agreed upon by all the states directly concerned.

Once more Mr. Austin's legalism may be watertight, but surely his interpretation would require the British to sacrifice either their freedom of action or their freedom of conscience. If Britain now formally offered the mandate for trusteeship, she would have to retain the burden pending the uncertain and unforseeable agreement on trusteeship terms, and without any guarantee of financial or military aid from the U. N. If she insists on her right to surrender the mandate and withdraw, she must do so in the knowledge that the U. N. assumes no responsibility and that she is abdicating her trust to anarchy and violence.

CONFRONTED with such alternatives, Britain would be quite justified in withdrawing the Palestine question from the U. N. altogether. This Britain could do, in effect, by vetoing a Council recommendation that the Assembly approve a trusteeship and announcing her intention of retaining the mandate.

If, as Mr. Austin says, the U. N. is not bound to accept responsibility for the mandate merely because Britain requested of the Assembly a "recommendation" on Palestine, then Britain is not bound under the Charter to surrender the mandate in response either to a council recommendation or an Assembly resolution. And without the mandatory's acquisecence, a mandate need not be surrendered.

Such a decision would, in fact, be greatly to the interest of the United States. But only one thing conceivably could persuade Britain to resume a burden of which she is heartily sick. And that is a declaration by the President, backed by an affirmative resolution in the Senate, that the United States is willing immediately to share the mandate with Britain and to contribute money, administrative personnel and troop—regular Army units, not volunteers—to the joint responsibility.

Such a reversal of American policy, it goes without saying, is loaded with political dynamite; and only the most critical circumstances could bring the President or the Senate to consider such a course. But the circumstances surrounding the Palestine issue are critical, and domestic politics can no longer be allowed to take precedence over national security.

WHAT OF an eventual Palestine settlement? Every attempt to frame a settlement has broken down on the political and territorial provisions. Under an Anglo-American mandate, these questions would be left in abeyance for 10 or 15 years while the mandatory powers concentrated on effecting the economic recommendations contained in the reports of both the Anglo-American Committe of Inquiry and the Morrison-Grady Expert Commission. The Palestine development projects, as outlined by Morrison to the House of Commons, would be directed primarily at raising the living standards and improving the economic opportunities of the Arab areas. Such projects would require the diversion of a large share of local taxes—including those from the Jewish areas—to the Arab sections. Since they would involve heavy capital expenditures not eligible for loans, the United States would have to make substantial grants to finance them.

The Morrison-Grady report also recommended that an Arab health service be created and cheap credit be made available to Arab cultivators. The existing land transfer regulations would require modification. In addition to the measures proposed for Palestine itself, the Morrison-Grady commission also suggested loans to neighboring Arab countries to be handled by a Middle East development agency.

The objectives of such an economic approach are obvious: To bring the Arab living standard more nearly abreast of the Jewish; to employ the increased economic opportunities as a weapon to break the political hold of the inflammatory Arab leaders on the fellahin; to rationalize the economy of Palestine and the Near and Middle East; to demonstrate that the Arab and Jewish populations can live and work in peaceful cooperation.

DURING THE period of the mandate, immigration would have to be controlled. The admission of 100,000 Jewish refugees in the near future—recommended in both the Anglo-American and Morrison-Grady reports—should be authorized. Subsequent immigration, in accordance with the terms of the original mandate, should be facilitated "under suitable conditions." The controlling conditions would be the economic viability of the whole of Palestine, as determined by the mandatories. The amount of immigration would vary with the success of the development projects.

In order to provide the most favorable climate for the success of the economic program, Jewish immigration should be limited to those areas marked as Jewish provinces in the Morrison-Grady report. On no account should the Jewish population in the whole of Palestine exceed the Arab population, since, as the Anglo-American committee pointed out, "it is precisely the struggle for a numerical majority which bedevils Arab-Jewish relations." The Jewish Agency, in cooperation, with the mandatories, would screen immigrants. Illegal immigration would be prohibited, the mandatories deciding what should be done with those illegal immigrants who were apprended.

During 10 or 15 years under such a joint mandate, some idea might be gained of the political settlement which Jews and Arabs would support. It might be that economic coordination of the Arab and Jewish areas, and of Palestine with neighboring states, would produce a climate which would make possible a unitary or federal state. It might be that partition would have to be resorted to, in which case another preliminary period would be required during which the Holy Land would be divided and administered under the provincial government plain of the Morrison-Gray report.

Whatever the future might hold for a political settlement, it is clear that the economic approach under a joint mandate is the only solution which presently will guarantee American security and keep the peace in Palestine. And such an approach at least offers some hope of an eventual political accord between Jew and Arab.

Inquiry Board to Open Study Of Coal Strike Background

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A three-man board of inquiry assured by President Truman that its deliberations will be followed by an injunction, today begins its investigation into the national soft coal strike.

The board, chosen by the President, will have its organization meeting here this morning. By afternoon, or Saturday at the latest, it will be hearing the facts of the dispute from the parties.

Yesterday, President Truman told reporters at his press conference that he will take all steps that are necessary and possible under the law to settle the strike of 350,000 miners. When the board of inquiry makes its report, he said, he will take any action necessary under the law.

This was the same as saying he will move for an injunction against the strike. The emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley law call for a board of inquiry to report with a statement of facts without recommendations, on a national dispute. After their report is made, the President may direct the Attorney General to apply for an injunction.

The board in the coal strike was given until April 5 to make its report, but it is expected to beat that deadline by several days. The members are Federal Circuit Judge Sherman Minton, Dr. George W. Taylor, former chairman of the War Labor Board, and Mark Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

They are known to have alerted representatives of the coal operators and of the United Mine Workers to be available to present their cases of the story. What is not known, however, is whether John L. Lewis, mine union president, will oblige.

The board has power to subpena witnesses, but if one of Lewis' goals in the strike is to discredit the new labor law, he may chose to begin his fight at the first step, by bucking the board of inquiry.

Meantime, reports circulated yesterday that the Administration was preparing orders to curtail the use of coal by electric utility companies, and thus oblige them to reinstitute wartime brownouts and dimouts. The Government has already ordered sharp cuts in the use of coal by railroads.

There seemed, however, to be no legal basis on which the Government could act to save coal used by electric power plants. Wartime powers to accomplish this have expired, and neither the Interior Department nor the Federal Power Commission can act directly to limit the consumption of coal by utilities, or to curtail their service.

Either agency, however, could appeal for voluntary action to restrict electric power to certain customers or during certain hours. And the utilities themselves, running short of coal, could prescribe their own limitations.

Ball Proposes 60c-an-Hour Minimum Wage

An increase in the national minimum wage to 60 cents an hour was proposed in legislation offered yesterday by Senator Joseph R. Ball (R., Minn.). The present minimum is 40 cents an hour.

Ball's bill would permit industry committees, however, to alter the rate by agreement downwards to 50 cents and upwards to 70 cents an hour.

The legislation, in the form of changes to the present Fair Labor Standards Act, would lessen in some respects the coverage of the law. It would also exempt from the 40-hour week provision those employes who earn more than $400 a month.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Object Lesson

AMERICAN troops will soon be dispatched to Palestine to replace British troops. They will be sent to perform precisely the same function that the British have performed since the war. And they will inherit precisely the same miseries, including shootings and bombings by the Irgun and Stern gangs. At the moment, this unpleasant prospect seems about the best forecast of what is in store as a result of the record of American policy on Palestine.

Every effort is, of course, being made to avoid this outcome. Those responsible for Palestine policy still hope longingly that the British can somehow be coaxed or badgered into keeping their troops in Palestine, at least for a few months or a year. Indeed, there is undoubtedly some disposition to try a little discreet twisting of the British arm to this end. But British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's adamant assertion that British troops will be withdrawn on schedule certainly indicates that the British have no intention of putting up with any arm-twisting. And that means that American troops will be bequeathed the virtually impossible task of keeping order in Palestine, simply because no other troops, except Russian, are available.

The basic reason for the reversal of American policy on Palestine was, of course, precisely to prevent Russian troops from being sent to Palestine or Russian influence spreading to the Middle East. Partition was abandoned largely because the conviction gradually spread upward through the State and Service Departments to President Truman that partition gave the Soviets an opportunity to establish a foothold in the Middle East. The trusteeship proposal advanced last week by American U. N. Delegate Warren Austin was designed primarily to end that opportunity.

THE SOVIET UNION has refused to join the United Nations Trusteeship Council, to which, if the American proposal is approved by the Assembly, the Palestine problem will be referred. There is no veto in the Council. Final decisions are made by a two-thirds vote. Thus even if the Kremlin were to order Andrei Gromyko to join the Trusteeship Council tomorrow, and if he were to demand Soviet participation in a Palestine trusteeship the day after, he would simply be voted down. By this faintly legalistic device, the United States will have barred the Soviet Union from Palestine, provided the Assembly approves the American proposal.

But obviously the matter will not end there. The Trusteeship Council will be asked to name a governor general of Palestine. Clearly no United Nations governor general can exercise authority in Palestine without troops to enforce that authority. Russian troops are barred. The British are determined to withdraw once and for all. The French have let it be known that they will under no circumstances send troops to Palestine, and the Chinese have troubles of their own. No smaller nation has yet evinced the faintest enthusiasm for sending troops to the Palestine hot spot. That leaves the United States.

To be sure, the United Nations Assembly may fail to follow the American lead to the extent of reversing itself on Palestine by the same two-thirds vote by which it originally approved partition. Or the United States Senate, asked to approve the sending of American troops to Palestine, may simply refuse. Either development would mean that the Jews and Arabs would be left to fight it out. Chaos in the Middle East would ensue, with the most explosive international possibilities. Moreover, most of the experts believe that in time, as the enormous Arab superiority in manpower made itself felt, the Jewish community in Palestine would find its position in Palestine completely untenable. In that case there would be enormous moral pressure in this country to send troops, if only to prevent a massacre of the Jews.

YET IN the opinion of those closest to the situation, the most probable outcome of the trusteeship proposal is that the United States will for all practical purposes merely replace the British as the mandatory power. There can be little doubt of the result. Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, American Zionist leader, has already said that the Jewish community in Palestine will fight troops in any uniform, including the American, which replace the British. If Dr. Silver is right, there is no use disregarding the risk of a vicious outbreak of racial feeling in this country.

Thus American policy on Palestine, which was primarily responsible for the British withdrawal in the first place, has led apparently to these results: First, we will inherit all the miseries of the British in Palestine and a few more besides; second, racial tension in this country may be disastrously aggravated; third, we will have committed badly needed troops where no advantage, strategic or otherwise, accrues from their commitment; and fourth, we will have settled nothing. It is not difficult to understand why the record of American policy on Palestine can stand as a chilling object lesson in how not to make foreign policy.

One on the Aisle—

A Nature Study Gets the Bird

By Richard L. Coe

"BILL AND COO," half of the Metropolitan's double bill, is a feature-length picture performed entirely by birds dressed in human clothing.

The human fascination for creating other creatures in their own image ranges from the dawn of history to Hollywood's Academy of Arts and Sciences, which the other night gave "Bill and Coo" a "special Oscar." ("Shoe Shine" also received a "special Oscar.") The film is addressed primarily to youngsters, who also will be getting another juvenile favorite this week at the Met—Roy Rogers and Trigger in "Under California Stars."

For all the undeniably brilliant performances you may find in "Bill and Coo," I strongly suspect it would take some dredging to evolve a more repulsive idea than an "all-bird" cast dressed in human guise. To these bloodshot eyes the spectacle of several hundred birds hoppi g about in aprons and vests is as gruesome as a visit to a flea circus.

The trouble lies in taking fantasy literally. Were these birds drawn a la Disney—or were the animals the fascinating Tenniel drawings of "Alice in Wonderland" or the charming pictures in "The Wind and the Willows"—"Bill and Coo" might be delightful fantasy.

But the spectacle of actual birds, which hop instead of fly, making like humans is too literal for me. The story of "Bill and Coo" is exactly what you'd expect—a romance. Bill drives a taxi, Coo is the daughter of Chirpendale's wealthy hotel proprietor and the villain is a large black crow. There is a crow raid shelter and during a circus performance doughty Bill saves the town by doing battle with the crow.

Don't get the notion I'm against birds. I was brought up on Thornton W. Burgess, enjoy Charles Tracewell's writings on his feathered friends, can watch sea gulls by the hour and my Dad used to have a tame black crow, mischievous but no villain. But I do think birds' place is in the air, not in cages and not skulking about on the ground. And seeing them dolled up a la Esquire depresses me mightily.

It's a Free Country

For all that, this is a free country and if Republic Pictures and Ken Muray wish to produce an all-bird picture that's their privilege.

"Bill and Coo" springs from the convalescent pastime of a rodeo performer who broke his back. George Burton's wife took two love birds to the hospital to cheer him up and he began to train them. After his recovery, he turned to bird training as a profession. He now has hundreds of them, and while appearing as an act in Murray's "Blackout" revue the idea for a feature length picture was born.

There is human dialogue and the all-too-human signs in the village that suggest a vaudeville backgrounds: a statue suggestive of this North Carolina's monument to the Wrights at Kitty Hawk is labeled, "The Wrong Brothers—First to Walk"; a theater is showing the release of "Who Killed Cock Robin?", and on the stage are umpteen chorus gulls; the travel agency urges "Make your reservations now for Capistrano."

Yes, it's perfectly possible you may be delighted with "Bill and Coo." However, it's going to be midsummer before I have the courage to look a bird in the eye.

"BILL AND COO." Republic Release produced by Ken Murray. Music by David Buttolph. Bird direction by George Burton. Crow direction by Curley Twiford. At the Metropolitan.

VISITOR: Marshall Thompson, M-G-M's popular juvenile, who made two guest appearances yesterday at the Capitol. The young player soon will be seen with Barbara Stanwyck in "B. F.'s Daughter" and with Clark Gable in "Homecoming"

MARSHALL THOMPSON, yesterday's Hollywood visitor, made two likable stage appearances at the Capitol . . . He's an engaging sort of chap, much like the roles he plays in the films . . . At 24 he's pretty much decided to stick to acting, though he once wanted to become a Methodist minister . . . While he was at Occidental College, Los Angeles, he was active in, among other things, dramatics . . . A talent scout lined him up for pictures, Marshall thinking that the money he made would send him through college . . . Now he's made 15 films and about five pictures ago decided he'd stick to it; never has finished college, though he sometimes takes night courses in hopes of getting his diploma eventually . . . He's got a grand, lively curiosity about everything and has found that parts come to those who can do things . . . For instance: did he know how to motorcycle? . . . No, but he didn't let on . . . Instead, took a few hours training, in the course of which he held up a fire engine, knocked into a woman's car and laid his instructor up in the hospital for six weeks . . . But he got the part and the instructor's become one of his good friends . . . Marshall tells of this with shay good humor . . . His lean figure belies a gargantuan appetite (chocolate bars before breakfast) . . . Next time you see him play one of those clean-cut, healthy young fellows, it won't be exactly acting . . . He's just being himself.

MacDonald to Iturbi to Powell

'Three Daring Daughters' Bobby-Sox Fare

By Orval Hopkins

Sombody several years ago accused Jeanette MacDonald of "singing with her teeth." Well, she's still at it—in a movie called "Three Daring Daughters" which opened yesterday at the Capitol.

What bicuspids. What incisors. What nonsense undiluted this is. Four people were employed to turn out what's termed an "original screen play," but they, guilty though they be, should not be asked to undertake all the blame for this one. Miss MacDonald, Joe Pasternak, the producer, and Fred M. Wilcox, who directed, should be held primarily culpable, and if there's any blame left it might be portioned out equally among the writers.

The story is about a beautiful grass widow with three daughters, who goes off on one of those cruises and comes back married to Jose Iturbi. The girls are not amused at this, their affections having fastened on their father, a perfectly fascinating party named Charley Morgan, whom they have never, or almost never, seen. The audience never sees him either, which is rather a shabby trick to play on the customers. Anyway, Edward Arnold, who plays a tycoon in Technicolor, talks to the two older girls sharply about the birds and bees, they agree to give Iturbi another chance, and there Jose is with four women where before he had none. I hope he knows what he's doing.

Miss MacDonald finds several excuses to sing, as does Jane Powell, but Iturbi has more fun than anybody. Now he plays the piano, then he directs the orchestra, again he does both at once and has enough in reserve to toss a couple of nods at Larry Adler, who by the merest chance has brought his harmonica along.

The three girls are little-girls-in-the-movies and they are annoying, mostly. This film is beamed at the boby-sox bunch and, I assume, at parents with children. The bobby-soxers near me enjoyed it immensely. As a member of the other group in good standing (though not exactly paid up), I'd have to dissent.

Sam Jack Kaufman opens the live show with an arrangement he calls "An Echo of Easter" or something similar. He has not included "Easter Parade," a manifestation of restraint for which I commend him.

On the stage are Fredarry's Trio, some young men who do astonishing things on bicycles, including one who jumps rope on a unicycle. This, as anybody knows, can't be done. There also are Maureen Cannon with songs from some shows, Coley Worth and Marcia, a comic act, and the Debonairs, a five-man dance club with some intricate and amusing routines.

VOLPONE, screenplay by Jules Romains and Stefan Zweig based on the Ben Jonson play; directed by Maurice Tourneur; presented by Siritzky International Pictures, Inc.

Volpone	Harry Baur
Mosca	Louis Jouvet
Corvino	Fernand Ledoux
Canina	Marion Dorian
Voltore	Jean Temerson
Leone	Alexandre Rignault
Corbaccio	Charles Dullin
Columba	Jacqueline DeLubac

Ben Jonson's Elizabethan comedy about the Levantine merchant of Venice who feigned death in order to enjoy the spectacle of his "friends" squabbling and conniving to gain his fortune has been translated by the French into a rollicksingly naughty motion picture, "Volpone," which opened yesterday at the Ambassador Theatre with the late Harry Baur playing the title role and with Louis Jouvet giving a capital performance as his scheming steward Mosca, is witty and sardonic entertainment and not a little vulgar in a robust comical sense.

The titanic jest of Volpone, elaborated on and executed with devilish cunning by the wily Mosca, is a masterful stroke of irony, with Mosca enjoying the last laugh as he becomes heir to his patron's gold and turns the old merchant out in the street. Chief among Mosca's fabulous feats, which cruelly expose the duplicity and greed of Volpone's friends, are the way he talks the silk merchant Corvino into consenting to send his pretty wife Columba to comfort the supposedly dying man, and the trickery he employs to get the aged usurer Corbaccio to disinherit his son and name Volpone as the beneficiary of his will.

Harry Baur plays Volpone with broad theatrical gestures and some of the most delightful and suggestive facial grimaces you are likely to see in a long time on the screen. Charles Dullin, as the cackling Corbaccio, is excruciatingly funny on his visit to Volpone's deathbed. But towering above all is the brilliantly modulated acting of M. Jouvet.

N. Y. HERALD-TRIBUNE

"VOLPONE," a screen play by A. Barsacq, based on the adaptation of the Ben Jonson play by Jules Romains and Stefan Zweig, directed by Maurice Tourneur, produced by Les de France Films and presented by Siritzky International Pictures at the Ambassador Theater with the following cast:

Harry Baur	Volpone
Louis Jouvet	Mosca
Fernand Ledoux	Corvino
Marion Dorian	Canina
Jean Temerson	Voltore
Alexandre Rignault	Leone
Charles Dullin	Corbaccio
Jacqueline Delubac	Columbia

Volpone's little joke has reached the screen by a devious route in an English-titled French version at the Ambassador. This "Volpone," with the late Harry Baur in the title role and Louis Jouvet playing Mosca, was adapted by A. Barsacq from the Jules Romains-Stefan Zweig adaption of Ben Jonson's play. Under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, it is a lusty, detailed caricature of passionate greed. With all its leers and sneers at humanity heavily underlined, this "Volpone" is a fine cinema translation of a theatrical classic.

Just as the names of the various characters are taken from animals, their characteristics have an inflated, comic-strip quality; and both performances and action have been nicely stylized to match the outline. Baur is a heavy, ugly, long-nosed, nimble Fox, and Jouvet gives an unsmiling, sinister though light-footed portrait of the Fly. Much of the movement is, of course, confined to Volpone's bedroom, where the would-be heirs come to offer homage to the supposedly dying merchant. With the strongly suggestive mannerisms and grimaces of the actors and a camera which never stands still, the piece is always lively in spite of its limited scope.

In support of the leading players are Charles Dullin as the aged, whining usurer Corbaccio; Fernand Ledoux as the jealous but avaricious husband Corvine, and several others who hold up the usually high standard of lesser characterizations in French films. When the camera has a chance to move away from Volpone's house Tourneur uses it to re-create in pictures the architectural and social flavor of old, powerful Venice. The mockery here is the mockery of a round of Dick Tracy villains caught without a hero to attack and grinding their meannesses against each other. This pitiless unclothing of human nature may be seen in rich, colorful moving pictures at the Ambassador.

Early Ruling Due On Union Policies

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

A Supreme Court showdown is due late in April on the Taft-Hartley ban on labor political action.

Both the CIO and the Justice Department yesterday asked the justices for a speedy hearing and a final ruling before June.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman filed the Government's appeal from the ruling of Federal Judge Ben Moore, in the District Court here. Judge Moore threw out charges that the CIO and its president, Philip Murray, violated the Taft-Hartley Act by printing an article in the CIO News urging Maryland voters to send Judge Ed Garmatz to Congress.

Murray faced a year in jail, and $1000 fine, and the CIO faced a $5000 fine until Judge Moore threw out the case, saying the act was unconstitutional. The ban on labor action in politics, said the judge, was against the Bill of Rights, which guarantee freedom of speech, press and assembly to all citizens.

Perlman told the Supreme Court yesterday that the Taft-Hartley Act was the deliberate judgment of Congress, having been passed over President Truman's veto—on a matter of great public concern. Congress has power to regulate Federal elections, Perlman said, and that carried with it the right to regulate everything connected with them. There has long been a law against labor contributions to political funds, the Government brief explained, but that has been evaded by unions spending their money themselves, to aid candidates, instead of giving it to campaign funds. The Taft-Hartley Act, the brief argued, was passed to stop this evasion.

CIO Counsel Charles J. Margiotti and Lee Pressman urged the court to uphold Judge Moore, who was the first judge in America to strike down any part of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Perlman or Special Prosecutor Jesse Climenko, or both, will argue the appeal for the Government. Special Prosecutor Turner S. Smith, who helped handle the case before Judge Moore, has been assigned to prosecute a series of tax cases for the Government.

Accuser, Accused

Brothers Get Opposite Slaying Roles

Purcell, Okla., March 25 (AP).—A shooting today in the law office of Purman Wilson, 46, a leader in the Oklahoma House of Representatives brought these developments:

Wilson

Representative Wilson's own brother, County Attorney Ray G. Wilson, drew up a murder charge against him, then suddenly withdrew from the case, saying:

"I am acting in the public interest."

Mrs. Jake Miller, 36, mother of four children and estranged wife of a used car dealer killed by a shotgun blast in Representative Wilson's office, sobbed:

"It was cold-blooded murder. We had gone there to make up. Jake never had a chance."

Mrs. Miller said "Jake had a fight with the lawyer last Saturday at Blanchard over our divorce action and he said he was going to apologize to him, too.

"Mr. Wilson called me into his office and Jake kind of followed.

"Then Mr. Wilson ran into another room and grabbed a shotgun.

"He came back and told Jake to get out and stuck the gun in Jake's back and shoved him.

"Jake never said a word and the gun went off.

Mrs. Gooch, mother of Mrs. Miller, said: Jake just didn't have a chance at all."

First Contingent Of GSI Strikers Returns to Work

The first contingent of the 1000 CIO workers who picketed 40 GSI cafeterias for 11 weeks went back to work yesterday to prepare the Labor and Supreme Court cafeterias for reopening, probably Tuesday.

The skeleton crew began cleaning and stocking the two eating places, which were closed during the strike at the request of the agencies they serve.

Daniel L. Boland, Federal Works Agency divisional counsel, said he had sent out about 150 notices to the former strikers since Tuesday when he began administreing the settlement indorsed by both GSI and Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers. The remaining 80C or 900 may go out today, he said.

The strikers, he explained, will be returned to the remaining 40 cafeterias as vacancies occur among the 100 replacements hired by GSI when the strike was called January 5.

Printer Strike May Hit Top Magazines

New York, March 25 (AP).—A prolonged work stoppage of commercial printers, now in its fourth day, may affect the publication of top flight magazines throughout the nation, a spokesman for the New York Employing Printers Association said today.

"It will be felt to an extent because 70 per cent of all national advertising for magazines is produced in New York for publication in magazines from coast to coast," the spokesman said.

"However, most of the magazines had prepared for this emergency, and rushed up their deadlines so that most weekly magazines are ahead in publication date by one week and most monthly magazines are ahead in publication date by one month.

"None of the magazines is really affected yet, but many have been experimenting with various methods of printing reproduction in order to be prepared if they should find it necessary to go over to such methods entirely."

The spokesman added that several magazines are already publishing a few pages of current issues by photo-reproduction just for experimental purposes.

Papanicolas Buys Securities Building For $428,500

George Papanicolas, attorney, yesterday purchased the nine-story Securities Building at 729 15th st nw. for $428,500 cash. He said he plans no immediate changes in the building and will settle for the purchase within 30 days.

Papanicolas, brother and attorney of Nick Papanicolas, owner of the partially collapsed Empire Building, also owns the Cathedral Courts, an apartment house at 3701 Massachusetts ave. nw., purchased last year.

The Securities Building was sold at public auction by court order foreclosing a deed of trust. Trustees were Walter M. Bastian of the National Press Building and Dale D. Drain of 1422 F st. nw.

Dick Co., Others Fined $99,000 in Stencil Monopoly

Cleveland, March 25 (AP).—The A. B. Dick Co. of Chicago, four other firms and six individuals were fined a total of $99,000 and costs by Federal Judge Emerich B. Freed today on charges of conspiring to fix prices and monopolize the stencil-duplicating industry.

All the defendants changed their pleas from innocent to nolo contendere in the criminal action brought by the Federal Government under the Serman Antitrust Act on July 22, 1946.

In a companion civil suit, a consent judgement was entered stopping the defendants from fixing prices and allocating territories or discriminating against any stencil manufacturer.

The A. B. Dick Co. was required to turn over to the public its trademark "mimeograph" and all of its stencil patents. It must also make its secret process for manufacturing stencils available to the public.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

U. S. Officials Shy From Enforcement Of Civil Rights Order

CIVIL RIGHTS: Federal officials are backing away from the civil rights issue. They want no responsibility for it. A tough order has been drawn to prohibit race and religious discrimination in Federal agencies. The President is anxious to issue it. But no agency wants the responsibility for enforcing the order. It's now a fight between half a dozen agencies to foist off the authority on the other guy. . .

ERA: A distinct possibility for a top job in the European Recovery Administration is Interior Secretary Krug. An able administrator, Krug was one of the wartime bosses of the War Production Board, and, as such, has had experience in the broad ERA field. And besides, there's ample reason to believe that Krug wouldn't object to leaving his Interior post. . .

FPC: There's talk of a shake-up at the Federal Power Commission. The President several days ago withdrew the nomination of Burton Behling, an FPC employe to be commission member. Behling is the protege of FPC Chairman Nelson Lee Smith. Both Smith and Behling supported in principle the Rizley bill which would have had the effect of raising natural gas rates. Opponents of the bill persuaded the President to withdraw Behling's nomination which was, in effect, a slap at both Smith and Behling. The speculation is over their future in Government—

REORGANIZATION: The Hoover Committee will launch a study of the many Federal labor agencies. It will make its own conclusion on whether the Labor Department should be rebuilt. The committee also will make a study of the complex management problems of Federal agencies—

PLANS: The President's authority to recommend plans to reorganize Federal agencies will expire next Wednesday. It's reported that he has dropped several major plans to overhaul the Government because of strenuous opposition in Congress to any proposal to change any agency. In fact, the President may not even ask Congress to renew his reorganization authority. The only possible plan that may be sent to Congress before the April 1 deadline is a minor one that would give Public Buildings authority over Federal office space outside of this city.

USES: Now that the Congress has refused to make the United States Employment Service a permanent agency in the Labor Department, plans are going ahead to transfer it back to the Federal Security Agency on June 30. USES is in Labor as a wartime measure.

GSI: A report on the operation of cafeterias in Federal buildings will be issued within a few days by the Senate Civil Service Committee. It will not make any recommendations on future cafeteria policy. However, the report is likely to be followed up by two bills. One would have the Government take over the cafeterias and operate them on a nonprofit basis (and it should), and another would open them up to the highest bidder—

MONEY: The international crisis has upset the timetable of the House Appropriations Committee. This group had planned to report out soon money bills for the Army, Navy, and Air Forces. It now appears that no military budget will be approved for at least two months as the requests for the new defense program will be considered and made a part of the annual bills. The next bill on tap is a deficiency which is scheduled for next Tuesday—

PAY PROGRESS: The new pay bill that's being drafted to meet the rigid cost ceiling of GOP leaders would provide:

An average increase of only $300 to the 800,000 Classification Act employes; employes whose base salaries are now below $3000 would get an average increase of around $500, while the raise would drop to $100, and even less, for employes in the middle and top brackets.

On the other hand, the well-organized postal employes would get a flat increase of between $450 and $475. If Congress approves this kind of a bill, it will be an open invitation to every Classification Act employe to join a militant union and have it flex its muscles before congressional eyes.

VA: Civil Service officials have examined privately the new and controversial Veterans Administration order which appears to be in conflict with Civil Service layoff regulations. A top official commented:

"We do not take the viewpoint that General Gray (VA boss) is disregarding our regulations. In any event, we would not consider any directive he issues as offsetting our regulations."

The official admitted that personnel people had frequently overstepped their authority by forcing operating people to take employes who weren't as well qualified for jobs as the people who were in them, even though the employes had greater retention points. He said the Gray order was aimed at keeping the best man for a particular job in making layoffs. He readily admitted, however, that the order had been misinterpreted and possibly misused by several VA officials who used it to their own advantage.

A dozen or more employes who are being laid off are reported planning to appeal to Civil Service. The commission will be glad to look into their cases.

Three persons, one a hit-run victim, were seriously injured in traffic accidents here yesterday.

He was treated at Gallinger Hospital for possible skull fracture and lacerations to the head. Later he was transferred to Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The cycle, operated by Harvey S. White of Hyattsville, Md., was making a left turn into 3d st. when it was struck, police said.

Joseph Bowen, 24, of 1520 Quarles st. ne., was hurt when his automobile snapped off a telephone polein the 4400 block of Quarles st.

Bowen, a World War II veteran with a metal plate in his head from wartime injuries, was admitted to Casualty Hospital with head injuries.

Pvt. Thomas L. Roland, 32, of the Metropolitan Police Traffic Division, also suffered injuries when his motorcycle overturned at 23st st. and Benning rd. ne. in an effort to avoid colliding with an automobile which, he said, failed to pause at a stop sign.

Mrs. Marie Vymetal, 51, of 2144 Florida ave. nw., suffered a possible fractured left shoulder and bruised left hip when she was hit by an automobile on 11th st. nw., near F st. after she stepped from a streetcar loading platform. She was admitted to Emergency Hospital. The automobile was driven, police said, by Charles E. Kile, 53, of 1530 28th pl. se.

At 14th and F sts. nw., two women were injured within 10 minutes yesterday afternoon, one struck by a streetcar and the other by an automobile.

Lenora Burton, 52, of 119 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, Md., was struck by a streetcar, operated, police said, by Harry A. Geety, 60, of 307 V st. ne. On the opposite side of the intersection, Ruth Allen, 47, of 723 13th st. ne., was hit by an automobile driven by Robert Skongaard, 20, of 3413 Brown st. nw., according to police. Both were treated for minor injuries at Emergency Hospital.

Two of four brand new DeSoto automobiles carried on a trailer were thrown clear when the carrier crashed into an electric pole on the Rockville pike near Georgetown Preparatory School yesterday afternoon. All four cars were badly damaged.

Andrews Field Pilot Crash Lands Jet Plane Near Largo, Md., Then Crawls Out of Twisted Wreckage With Slight Injuries

A 23-year-old Andrews Field pilot rode a crippled jet plane to the ground yesterday, escaping almost uninjured although the plane, one of the nation's fastest, was left a mass of twisted wreckage.

The pilot, First Lieut. Paul J. York of the Fourth Fighter Group, was returning to the field after a routine training flight to Ocean City, Md., when the forced landing occurred, field officials said.

The pilot landed on an open field, part of the Greenwood Farm, located eight miles northwest of Andrews, near the Prince Georges County community of Largo. The crash was witnessed by R. L. Holland and his helper, Clarence Robinson, both of Largo, who were working on a building 200 feet away.

"The plane came down so silently I didn't even know it was anywhere around until it clipped the top of the trees," Holland said, pointing to a stand of tall trees at the edge of the field.

He said he and Robinson were attracted by the crashing of the trees and watched as the silver-colored plane hit the ground, bounce once, and then turn over on its side when the nose collided with an embankment. There was no fire.

Holland and Robinson rushed over to the plane and watched as York crawled from the cockpit, virtually the only part left intact, and walked away with only minor cuts on his chin and hand. He was taken to the Andrews Field dispensary for treatment and was immediately released.

The plane stopped 200 feet from a home owned by Maurice Fowler, whose family was away at the time. The plane, whose value runs to several hundred thousand dollars, was demolished.

Cause of the crash was not disclosed by Field officials, but an inquiry board will conduct an investigation. The plane's silence indicated power plant failure. It was the first P-80 major accident since they were brought to Andrews Field.

The plane is in the 600-mile-an-hour class and was traveling at about landing speed—100 to 105 miles an hour—when it struck.

Field officials said York has been in the Air Force since July 22, 1943, and served 30 months in the Alaskan theater during World War II as a fighter aircraft pilot. Born in Indianapolis, Ind., he is single and lives on the field. He has over 100 hours of flying time on jet ships.

Police Post Abolished in Montgomery

Commissioners Vote 3-to-2 to Abolish Job Held by Sauter

Montgomery County commissioners yesterday, in an unexpected move, abolished the office of Montgomery County police commissioner.

The action, by a 3-to-2 vote, climaxed several months controversy involving the post.

Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter, who held the post, stalked angrily from the closed commission session at Rockville after the vote. He declined immediate comment.

Previously, Sauter had threatened to resign from the commission if his job were eliminated.

Leader of the move to abolish the $1200-a-year job was Commission President Brooke Johns, who relinquished his $600-a-year post as head of the county almshouse last spring and since has been after Sauter to follow suit as head of the police force.

The two votes against abolition of the job were cast by Sauter and Commissioner George Esworthy. Johns and Commissioners Youngblood and Jamison voted for abolishing the post.

Following the vote, Police Chief Charles M. Orme was given full responsibility for running the 118-man police force and was instructed to report weekly to all five commissioners on police activity.

Rising Food Prices Wipe Out 1% of Commodity Market Drop

Rising food costs in Washington have already wiped out about 1 per cent of the 3.6 per cent drop here which followed the February commodity market "break," the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

Sharper increases in food costs loomed with a Labor Department announcement that average wholesale meat prices jumped 8.3 per cent across the Nation last week.

This was the greatest single week's rise in meat prices since OPA controls expired, the department said, without referring to the packinghouse workers' strike.

Throughout the Nation, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported, the decline in retail food prices came to a definite halt in mid-March. The local price rise since then—no news to price-conscious housewives—was disclosed by a spot check Tuesday.

A limited survey of retail food prices here showed a price drop of 4 per cent here between mid-January and mid-February. This was corrected to 3.6 per cent in yesterday's report. Similarly, the reported price drop of 3 to 4 percent nationally was corrected to 2.4 per cent.

The February Consumer's Price Index (all living costs) for Washington was 163.2 per cent of the 1935-39 average; 7.7 per cent higher than a year ago; 22 per cent over June, 1946, when OPA controls expired, and 65.5 per cent above August, 1939.

The National Consumers Price Indexv for February was down .8 per cent from January's record high level, with lower meat prices offset by increased prices for clothing, house furnishings, fuel, electricity, ice and rent.

While bureau officials declined to speculate on the effect of higher meat prices on the overall price index, they pointed out that lower meat prices were chiefly responsible for the price index drop in February.

Significantly, the bureau's daily index of spot market prices for basic commodities had recovered one-third of the February "break" by March 5, and with the exclusion of agricultural prices, the wholesale price index since January 1 has shown a net increase of 1 per cent.

Last Tuesday, the bureau found, meat prices were "somewhat higher on the average" across the country, with no uniform trend.

Highest national increase reported over the week in any store, said the bureau, was 10 cents for round steak, 6 cents for hamburger, 14 cents for pork chops, and 8 cents for bacon.

Wholesale prices, officials said, point to further increase for all commodities.

Holmes is now in District Jail. Upon conviction for rape, the death penalty is discretionary with the jury.

Meanwhile, Gallinger Hospital officials declared the victim of the assault was out of danger. She had suffered a broken leg and numerous other injuries during the assault. She was in critical condition for many days.

Among those testifying before the grand jury yesterday were the girl's mother, two Gallinger Hospital physicians who examined the girl, and Det. Sergt. John Layton of the Police Department sex squad.

Hospitals Face Closing Unless D. C. Pays Bills

'47 Deficit Totaled $800,000, City Heads Told; Fund-Raising Drive Considered

Several private hospitals here may be forced to close unless the District begins paying bills for charity patients, the Commissioners were told yesterday.

The warning came from Daniel W. O'Donoghue, jr., a representative of the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area.

O'Donoghue and eight private hospital officials met with the Commissioners to urge their support of a plan to pay charity patients' bills at six hospitals and increase payments to three hospitals now under District contract.

Commissioner Guy Mason said the city heads are "sympathetic" but must consider "where the money will come from" before committing themselves on the proposal.

Fund Campaign Considered

The question will be thoroughly aired, he said, during District budget hearings which begin Tuesday before the House District Appropriations Subcommittee.

After the conference, William R. Castle, president of the Hospital Council, revealed that a meeting will be held March 31 at the Chamber of Commerce Building to consider possibility of a united fund-raising campaign to meet 1947 deficits in Greater Washington's private hospitals.

All area hospitals, with the possible exception of Casualty, he said, had to borrow to keep operating in 1947. Approximately $800,000 will be needed to cover their deficits, he estimated.

O'Donoghue told the Commissioners "a substantial part of the heavy losses sustained by many of our hospitals has resulted largely from the fact that these hospitals are caring for . . . (District charity) . . . patients without any payment or . . . without adequate payment from the District."

Few Accepted Voluntarily

Only 22 per cent of charity cases are accepted voluntarily by the private hospitals, O'Donoghue estimated. Bulk of them are emergency cases, patients sent by District agencies, or cases accepted on a pay basis but later found indigent.

He produced figures to show that the six hospitals—Columbia, Episcopal, Georgetown, George Washington, Providence and Garfield—spent approximately $349,000 out of their own pockets last year on District charity cases.

These expenditures, plus the fact that Community Chest funds fail to meet expenses of part-pay cases, place the "majority" of the hospitals 'in a very serious financial condition," O'Donoghue said.

The District's $7.50-a-day contract rate doesn't meet charity patient costs at Children's, Casualty and Emergency hospitals, O'Donoghue declared.

Would Cost D. C. Million More

He recommended that all nine hospitals be reimbursed by the District for each charity patient at either $10 a day or the actual daily expense, whichever is lower. The District should pay $2 per charity patient receiving clinic treatment, he said.

Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler said the plan would cost the District "nearly a million" dollars a year.

Citizen groups won a clean sweep yesterday against four rezoning petitions in the Northeast area.

The Board of Zoning Adjustment said "no" to the following proposals, which were energetically opposed by property owners in the neighborhoods at a hearing Wednesday:

Extension of wartime decision permitting temporary rooming house for Marjorie Webster Junior College students at 1623 Jonquil st. nw., or permanent use of the home for a college dormitory.

Razing of vacant mansions at 1707-09-11 Massachusetts ave. nw., to permit Henry J. Robb and Philip J. Ganzert to install temporary parking lot.

Washington Post Articles Attacked By Rep. Hoffman

The House yesterday heard sharp criticisms of The Washington Post by Representatives Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) E. E. Cox (D., Ga.), and John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) Hoffman also criticized the Evening Star for its editorial entitled "Disloyal Congressmen."

Hoffman hit at The Post and Reporter Dillard Stokes for their roles in "instituting" the wartime sedition trials.

Rankin charged The Post had "started this drive to stir up race trouble in the District."

Cox said The Post is "seldom trusted and little respected." He said he feels strengthened in his convictions when he is attacked for them "by this off-color sheet."

Second Escapee From Alexandria Jail Captured

Alexandria police learned yesterday that the second of three prisoners who escaped last June from Alexandria jail has been apprehended.

Police Chief Edgar Sims said the FBI informed him New York City police have arrested James Brown, 24, on a charge of grand larceny. Sims said Brown also is wanted in North Carolina for escape from sentencing in connection with a slaying and that, therefore, Alexandria probably will not seek extradition.

Another escapee, Ernest Jacobs, 20, was shot and killed by a railroad policeman in Richmond last fall. The third man, Henry E. Williams, 26, is still at large.

The three were waiting sentence on a charge of trespassing.

Alexandria Hospital May Appeal for Funds

David S. Haddock, president of the Board of Directors of Alexandria Hospital, announced yesterday the Hospital Corporation will consider plans for a fund drive in Alexandria at its annual meeting April 5.

A "public drive for funds is one of the essential needs at this time," he said. The hospital faces an "unprecedented" serious financial difficulty, he declared. "Monthly reports since November reflect an increasingly disastrous trend."

Efforts will be made to have the Supreme Court rule on the District Court conviction of Kenneth Romney, former House sergeant at arms, Romney's attorney, William Collins said yesterday.

Romney's appeal from a District Court sentence of one to three years was turned down by the United States Court of Appeals last Monday. He had been convicted of fraudulently concealing a $143,863 shortage in the House bank.

Reason for the rate increase was laid to a budget deficit caused by last fall's unsuccessful Community Chest drive. Free service will still be given persons unable to pay.

Rhinelander Rites Today At New York

Mrs. Constance Satterlee Rhinelander, 73, daughter of the Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, first Bishop of Washington, died Wednesday in New York City, after a long illness.

Mrs. Rhinelander came to Washington in 1896, when her father was consecrated as bishop. She took a leading part in her father's plans to build the National Cathedral until his death in 1908.

Mrs. Rhinelander was the wife of Frederick W. Rhinelander, brother of the late Right Rev. Phillip M. Rhinelander, Bishop of Pennsylvania. After her marriage in 1913, Mrs. Rhinelander returned to New York City to live. Her interest in the construction of the National Cathedral continued throughout her life. As chairman of the New York Committee of the National Cathedral Association, she led the campaign to raise funds for 20 years.

Mrs. Rhinelander attended the National Cathedral Association's annual meeting here each May, and renewed her interest in the Girls Friendly Society, of which she was a leader in the Washington diocese. Her husband died in 1942.

Services will be held today at 10 a. m. at Calvary Episcopal Church, in Gramercy Park, New York City, where her father was rector before his appointment as bishop. Burial will be Saturday at Island Cemetery, Newport, R. I., with the Rev. Dr. William M. Bradner, formerly a canon at Washington Cathedral, officiating.

R. E. Hurst, 44, Newsman Dies in South

Ralph E. Hurst, 44, former newsman, World War II veteran and public relations counselor here, died Thursday in Montgomery, Ala., two days after leaving Washington on a business trip.

With him at the time of his death was his wife, Mrs. Blanche Hurst. She and two married daughters survive.

Born in Thomasville, Ga., Mr. Hurst began his newspaper career in the South, and before coming to Washington in 1938 was a political writer for The Birmingham News. He had also been State bureau manager for the Associated Press in Jacksonville, Fla.

During World War II, he served in the Southwest Pacific as an intelligence and public relations officer for the 13th Air Force. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious achievement on bombing missions. He resigned from the Army in early 1945 with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Since 1938, except for his war service, Mr. Hurst had been a staff member of the Distilled Spirits Institute in the National Press Building. He was a graduate of Georgia Tech and a member of the National Press Club.

Interment will be at 1 p. m. Monday in Arlington Cemetery.

Dr. Johnson, Professor, Dies in Fire

Lexington, Va., Mach 25 (AP).—Dr. Raymon T. Johnson, 50, professor of law at Washington and Lee University, died early today in a fire that ruined his apartment residence on the campus.

The coroner said Johnson's death was due to suffocation.

The fire, which apparently started in Johnson's living room, was discovered by a neighbor, Mrs. C. A. Bryant, who notified Dr. John Baxter, W&L chemistry professor, who occupied the first floor apartment below Johnson's.

Baxter removed Mrs. Baxter and two children from the blazing structure, and attempted to rescue Johnson from the upper floor. The blaze had made such headway, however, that neither Baxter nor firemen were able to rescue Johnson.

A third family, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Husted, and their small child, occupants of the basement apartment, escaped.

Fire Chief W. L. Hess said the cause of the blaze was undetermined. Firemen with gas masks atforced back by the intense heat.

The building was one in a row of houses maintained by the university on the W&L campus.

He leaves one son, Charles Abbott Johnson, 16, a patient at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital in Richmond.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow at the graveside in Lexington cemetery. Dr. J. J. Murray, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, will read the service. Pallbearers will be eight of Dr. Johnson's students.

Maryland Using Improved Crab Identification Tag

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—A crab identification tag that sticks to the crab despite his shell-shedding has been contrived by Dr. L. Eugene Cronin of the Department of Research and Education.

The new tab is a bright red plastic strip about ½-inch long. It has the advantage over tags formerly used in that it is inserted into the crab's body.

The purpose of tagging the crab is to study his movements up and down the Chesapeake Bay and tributaries.

Dr. Cronin asked today that the public cooperate in returning tags found on crabs to the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory at Solomons. Along with the tag should come the information on where and how the crab was taken and its size. A $1 reward is paid for the tag and information.

He commanded the USS Maine during the first World War and won the Navy Cross. From 1919 to 1921 he was Naval Attache at the American Embassy in Rome, at the same time commanding the USS Pittsburgh. He commanded the USS North Dakota for the next two years and then went to the Naval War College.

Qualifying as an aviation observer in 1925, he was ordered to command the battle fleet's aircraft squadrons. After various other commands, he was given the rank of admiral with his promotion to commander of the Battle Force in June 1933.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, Fla., March 25.—The little old man with the rimless specs who looked like just another of the zillion Florida tourists, poked his nose into Joe Tinker's face and challenged him. "Who am I?" he grinned. Tinker drew back, squinted hard and said, "If you had hair, you'd be Heinie Groh, and that's who you are, you old Dutchman."

POVICH

After 35 years, Tinker and Groh were meeting up with each other again. Back in 1913, Tinker was the manager of the Cincinnati Reds and Groh was his rookie third baseman. Now the front-end member of the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance trinity was sitting in his wheel chair at the end of the bleachers, where he sees all the games at Tinker Field. Heinie Groh was here as a scout for the Phillies.

As old ball players will, they inevitably began to cut up old touches. "What ever happened to Zim?" That was Heinie Zimmerman, of course. "He's out on the Coast somewhere," said Groh, "somebody was telling me he was in the plumbing business." Tinker said that's right. "Sure, Zim was a plumber in the off-season. I remember, now."

"You're looking all right," said Groh, "I been hearing you were sick." "Was sick," said Tinker. "They almost did me in a couple of times, but I guess there's no room for old ball players under ground."

THEY TALKED ABOUT John McGraw. "Did Muggsy ever get over that deal in 1913?" asked Tinker. "Nobody ever dared to mention it much," said Groh. "That's the year he gave up on me and traded me to the Reds in the deal for Art Fromme, the pitcher. McGraw just tossed me into the trade like the thirteenth bun in a baker's dozen. Then he bought me back for $125,000 two years later, remember?"

It was McGraw's idea that Groh use the famous bottle-shaped bat that made him an oddity among the big league ball players. "He told me if I was going to choke up on my stick like I did, he wanted me to use a bat with a big butt end. He handed me a big bat, but it was so big at the handle end I couldn't get my hands around it. I spent three nights whittling the handle down till it felt right.

"Had trouble getting my bats made, though. McGraw said he wanted the limit of 3¾ inches across the butt end, but the Spalding Co. wouldn't make 'em for me. They said if they lathed the bat that size, the sun would expand it, and it would be over the limit and against the rules. But the Hillerich people finally gave me what I wanted and guaranteed it against expansion. There wasn't 18 inches of the bat showing about my fists, but I finished up with a .301 average for 13 years in the National League.

HEINIE RECALLED he didn't get to play much for the Giants in the 1924 World Series against Washington. "Bad knee," he said, "so they had to put Freddie Lindstrom on third base, and I was glad it wasn't me when Earl McNeely got that pebble hit that win the series. I got into the last game as a pinch-hitter, I remember, and got a nice double."

The Giants were struck dumb in that twelfth inning of the seventh game when McNeely's hit took a bad hop over Lindstrom's head. "I guess it was a painless way to lose a series, at that," said Heinie. "It wasn't the fault of any of our guys. We couldn't quite believe it when it happened. We all looked at each other and didn't realize the series was over until McGraw kicked over the water bucket, and that woke us up.

"The Giants voted Jimmy O'Connell a share of their World Series checks even after Judge Landis kicked him out of baseball on charges of trying to persuade Heinie Sand of the Phillies, not to bear down in the final days of the Giants' pennant fight," said Groh. "None of us believed Jimmy was guilty of anything. He and Sand were good friends. Jimmy was going to have him out to dinner that night they say it happened. If he told Sand to 'go easy' he must have been kidding. But Landis was awful tough."

EVEN AFTER LANDIS told the Giants not to include O'Connell when they voted series shares, the Giants agreed to cut O'Connell in privately from their own shares. "But Landis heard about it and stopped that, too," said Groh.

"How you like scouting?" said Tinker.

"It all depends who you're scouting for. The Phillies are a great outfit. It was nice working for Charley Grimm when he had the Cubs. Ever tell you about the wire Grimm sent me?

"I went out to look at some semipro phenom who was mowing 'em down, in Texas, and was ready to sign him. I wired Grimm 'This kid has fanned 27 men in one game, they tell me. Only one hitter was able to get a foul off him.'

"The wire I got from Grimm read: 'Never mind that pitcher. We need hitters. Sign the fellow who got that foul.'"

Local College Boxers Shun Vacation to Drill for NCAA

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Four local college boxers are passing up Easter vacation to take daily workouts for the NCAA tournament at Madison, Wis., April 1, 2 and 3.

Both Maryland and Catholic U. are sending two representatives. Capt. Eddie Rieder, 155-pounder, and Andy Quattrochi, 130-pounder, will compete for the Terps. Eddie LaFond, C. U. coach and athletic director, will accompany Tommy Cronin, 120, and Johnny Arnold, 130.

Maryland Coach Heinie Miller said yesterday his boys were in fine shape. Said Miller, "I think the boys are even sharper than they were during the regular season. The only thing they have to contend with is that they'll be fighting in heavier classes because of the tournament's Olympic weight conditions."

Winners at Madison qualify for the Olympic finals at Boston.

Quattrocchi, Maryland knockout artist, had a string of 16 victories before he lost a split decision to South Carolina's Ellison Fowler for the Southern Conference title. Rieder won all 11 of his fights, three by knockouts.

Both Cronin and Arnold were valuable members of the surprising Catholic U. squad. After losing two, Eddied LaFond's battlers came back to win four straight matches, including an upset victory over Army.

Arnold, after breaking his hand, recovered enough to score three knockouts.

Cronin also had three kayos among four victories. He also drew with classy Jim Hollingsworth, Virginia.

Davidson's Errors Give VPI 5-3 Victory

Davidson, N. C., March 25 (AP).—Virginia Polytech Intitute took advantage of Davidson's errors and defeated the Wildcats 5-3 in a baseball game today.

VPI scored three runs in the second inning on three Davidson errors, a hit batsman and two hits. Davidson had opportunity to tie up the ball game in both the eighth and ninth but let the tying run die on base in both instances.

Chattanooga Farm Hands Outslick Nats, 6-1

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Winter Garden, Fla., March 25—The Nats dipped into the Southern Association for somt opposition today, and were over-matched Their Chattanooga farm club shut 'em out for eight innings, and whipped 'em 6-to-1 with no trouble, at least not very much.

It was sort of a junior varsity that Manager Joe Kuhel brought here for what was supposed to be a soft-touch victory, but he did equip the Nats with a pair of veteran pitchers, Mickey Heafner and Milo Candini. Heafner should have stayed in Orlando.

Heafner Bombarded

The Lookouts jumped into a 5-0 lead in the first five innings, developing a strong partiality for home runs off Heafner. All of the five runs he yielded rode across the plate on homers . . . Candini didn't throw any home run balls at all. He wild-pitched Chattanooga's sixth run across the plate.

A big rookie pitcher named George Bird was hot stuff for Chattanooga. The Nats brought him to Orlando a couple of weeks ago, fresh out of the Navy, and farmed him to Chattanooga because of his lack of experience in organized ball. He had pretty good substitute for experience today—a fast ball, and a home run bat.

It was Bird himself who hit the first homer off Haefner, a three-run smash into deep center on which Leon Culberson missed a diving catch attempt. A single and a walk previously yielded by Haefner put the men on base.

"Muscles" Muscles In

A character named "Muscle" Shoals, a chunky first baseman obtained from the Appalachian League by Chattanooga hit the second homer. He lined a Haefner pitch over the right wall in the fifth, following a single by Ellis. It was the seventh hit off Haefner.

Bird, a big right hander, shut the Nats out with two hits in the first three innings and then George Landwehr, another rookie took over for the Lookouts and improved on that performance. He shut the Nats out with one hit for the next three innings.

Washington got its run against Rookie Alvin Leedy in the ninth when Wooten, McCreight and Sullivan singled. The Nats were outhit, 10 to 7, by their farmhands, to the dismay of Clark Griffith who watched the game and is not trying to win the penant in the Southern Association.

LEON CULBERSON asked out of the game in the fifth inning. The chunky center fielder not only complained of a lame ankle but demanded an X-ray before he plays again . . Clark Griffith overruled Chattanooga Manager George Myatt when Myatt ordered changes in his infield in the fourth inning. He demanded a longee look at Shortstop Sam Meeks, who may be promoted to the Nats. Meeks hit .348 for Charlotte last season . . . Andres Fleitas, the new catcher from Cuba, threatens to step into the No. 2 spot behind Al Evans. He has had more experience than Len Orkie and Ken McCreight . . . Fleitas jumped the Jersey City club two years ago to play in the Mexican League, but was reinstated by George Trautman, minor league boss . . . The Nats tomorrow will attempt to avert two straight defeats by minor league ovposition when they play Birmingham at Orlando . . . Tom Feerick, who will have a busy season if the failures of the Nats' pitchers thus far is any index, will get a chance to start a game.

Wonderful Is Bowie in The Spring

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

SPRING—It's wonderful anywhere and the Bowie Race Track is no exception.

With Maryland racing coming up on Monday, I visited the Prince Georges County oval yesterday and couldn't find a frown around the grounds.

Haight

There was spring in every step, a smile on every face and a twinkle in every eye. Exercise boys whistled as they jogged their mounts into the backstretch; old stablemen hummed as they went about their chores; trainers laughed and talked big talk and even the horses joined in—they kicked and squealed, a sure sign of an eagerness to run.

What happened last year—the mare that broke down, the colt who was beaten the width of your hand and swamp fever—are forgotten.

A new season at hand. Everybody has a "big" horse. There's gold in those photo finishes. The Derbies and the Preaknesses lie ahead.

Work that horse—clean that barn—stack that hay—bandage that leg—shoe that thoroughbred—shine that gear—time that workout—win that bet.

BOWIE BITS: Trainer Ed Christmas shipped W. L. Brann's Escadru, the Kentucky Derby candidate, to New York, but not before the colt turned in a workout last Monday that amazed clockers. Some checked him at 1:14 for the six furlongs, hard to believe over the Bowie track . . . Jockey Johnny Tammaro, after a winter's rest, conditioning himself and one of Dan Chamberlain's horses at the same time . . . Eddie Smith, Washington jockey who has "retired from the saddle" so many times, looks chipper aboard a fast horse . . . Danny Shea doing his training on a pony, in typical Ben Jones style . . . Bill Schamehorn, the starter, gives advice to riders while schooling the new crop of 2-year-olds in starting gate manners . . . Jake (No Boy) Jacobs back from Florida with usual heavy sunburn and light bankroll—as sure a sign of spring as the cherry blossims . . . Alan Clarke out in front of his barn proudly shows Fritz Maisel, his derby hope, to friends. The colt, brought along slowly, has grown and looks like the "good horse" Clarke has long awaited.

JOCKEY BERT VESSELI, shipshape and back in the saddle after breaking a shoulder last year . . . "Bones" Ingersoll, jockey agent, checks in from Santa Anita and will book engagements for Jockey C. Erickson . . . Track Superintendent Dick Pending and Marty Myers, his side-kick, satisfied with the running surface and hoping for dry weather and a fast track for the opening . . . Jockey

Hursey Gets Garden Chance Tonight in Substitute Role

Middleweight Smuggy Hursey of Washington, gets his chance in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Hursey will meet Harold Green of Brooklyn, in an eight-rounder, subbing for Rocky Castellani, who injured his side in training Wednesday.

Smuggy was originally scheduled to fight Jose Basora at St. Nicholas Arena Monday. The Green bout will be Hursey's second of the year. He lost a 10-round decision to Sonny Horne in Washington, February 23.

Rocco Rossano of Broklyn and Eddie Giosa of Philadelphia, welterweight, meet in the top 10-round attraction. Freddie Dawson, Chicago lightweight, takes on Johnny Williams, Montgomery, Ala., in the third feature.

The Dawson-Williams contest may produce a lightweight title contender if either man scores a decisive victory.

Howard's Willie Jones Wins Novice Heavy Title on TKO

Willie Jones of Howard AC made an auspicious tournament debut when he scored a sensational two-round TKO victory over pudgy Bob O'Neill to win the novice heavyweight championship last night at Turner's Arena.

Jones came out a-swinging at the opening bell, and a minute later sent his Barney House foe reeling to the deck with a right cross for no count. He sent O'Neill down for an eight count two seconds later, and just before the bell rang, O'Neill went down again.

Willie Davis, Apollo 135-pound novice finalist, added a dramatic touch as he defeated Rusty Saunders of Merrick for the title. Davis was behind on points in the third round when he landed a desperate right-handed haymaker which cleanly kayoed Saunders. The 10-count came a split second before the final bell.

Dick Fennell, son of District Court Judge Aubrey Fennell, and Al-Prep center on the St. John's football team, won the 175-pound novice crown as he out-jabbed Nathaniel Williams of Police Boys' Club No. 2.

Cerdan Extended To Win by Unkno

Paris, March 25 (AP).—Lucien Krawczick, little known French middle-weight boxer, went the 10-round limit with Marcel Cerdan tonight but lost the decision to the European middleweight champion. Krawczick weighed 159¾ pounds, Cerdan 157½.

Krawczick fought a slow, cautious battle and the crowd yelled repeatedly for the fighters to mix it up. Cerdan tired badly in the late rounds.

Chicago Leads Bullets, 27-22, In Second Period

Chicago, March 25.—The Chicago Stags led the Baltimore Bullets, 27-22, midway in the second period here tonight in their play-off for second place in the Basketball Association of America's Western Division.

If the Stags, conquerors of the Washington Caps Tuesday, whip Baltimore, the Caps and Bullets clash in Baltimore Saturday for third place.

The Stags were off to a 17-0 lead in the first period as the whistle-happy officials made the game as dull as possible by demanding 16 free throws. The Bullets could not buy a field goal after the first minute when Dick Schultz dropped their one and only two-pointer. After that they scored eight the low way.

It Was Ridiculous

Boston, March 25 (AP).—A proposal to create a State commission to regulate professional wrestling was thrown out of the ring by the Massachusetts House today.

Basketball Gets Four Rule Changes

New York, March 25 (AP).—The National Collegiate Basketball Committee voted favorably today on four rules changes recommended by coaches and agreed to give several others further consideration.

These rules and others which the committee may adopt Friday will become part of the rule book next season, Committee Secretary H. V. Porter announced.

The committee voted:

1. A coach be permitted to talk to his team at his bench on charged timeouts or during intermission. It was felt this would eliminate illegal sideline coaching.

2. Substitutes be permitted to enter a game merely by reporting to the scorekeeper instead of both to this official and the referees on the court. He cannot enter the game, however, until the referee beckons him.

A player who has committed a foul must raise his hand so he can easily be recognized by the crowd.

All jump balls be made at the nearest of three 6-foot circles. The committee felt this would eliminate scrambling and pushing for positions around the sidelines and bring the play nearer to the center of the court.

In answer to a request for clarification by the coaches, the committee pointed out that a technical fould may be shot by any player on the team and not necessarily by he fouled player.

Babe Ruth Ends Vacation, 'Feels Like New Man'

Miami Beach, Fla., March 25 (AP). Babe Ruth will end his Florida vacation tomorrow.

"I feel like a new man," he said at his hotel. "Those headaches are still with me, but they're gradually diminishing."

Ruth said he will go to California the latter part of April to act as technical advisor on the filming of a motion picture of his life, entitled, "The Babe Ruth Story."

A match between Billy (Tarzan) Darnell and Dave Levin was booked for next Wednesday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

Missourian Will Install Split-T for Colonials

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

George Washington, whose head coach recently resigned to become backfield coach at another school, yesterday reversed the procedure and hired a backfield mentor as its new head football coach.

The new man is 46-year-old Chauncey G. Simpson, of the University of Missouri. He succeeds Neil Stahley, who left the Colonials to become an assistant to Howie Odell at the University of Washington.

Simpson will arrive Monday to take over spring football practice. He was signed to a three-year contract with no salary terms announced. He was also empowered to name his own assistants, but no changes, if any, will be made until after spring drills.

One of Don Faurot's Men

Not only do the Colonials get a new head coach, but also a new offense—the "Split-T" formation, the tricky maneuver concocted by Head Coach Don Faurot at Missouri.

From his home in Columbia, Mo., Simpson told The Washington Post he was "extremely happy to get the job."

"It presents a great opportunity and a challenge," he said.

Except for three years when he bossed Missouri while Faurot was in the Navy, Simpson has had no head coaching experience. His most successful Missouri production was the 1945 team which won the Big Six Conference championship, but lost to Texas in the 1946 Cotton Bowl, 40-27.

He's Full of Confidence

Simpson, a graduate of Kirksville, Mo., Teachers College, has spent his entire coaching career with Faurot. He served as Faurot's assistant at Kirksville from 1928-1935 and when Faurot moved to Missouri Simpson accompanied him.

GW'S new coach said he was "familiar with the setup at George Washington, but I'm confident we'll work things out."

The Colonials, who won only one game last year against seven losses and a tie, have no practice field of their own and no training table for their footballers.

Schedule Very Difficult

Simpson, eager as most assistant coaches are to become head mentors, steps into no bed of roses at George Washington. In addition to lack of facilities, GW faces a rugged schedule, opening with Wake Forest and meeting V.P.I., V.M.I., Virginia, Kansas, Maryland, Lafayette, The Citadel, Duke and Georgetown.

Simpson will inherit approximately 20 lettermen from last year's luckless team plus a few new recruits headed by Fullback Joe Staniszlyk, Little All-America from Potomac State, W. Va., Junior College.

Roger Antaya, Ray Hanken and Tim Swett, assistants to Stahley, will continue in their same capacities under Simpson in spring practice with Tuffy Leemans also helping out.

Softball Teams Wanted

The West End Softball League, starting its 17th season, will hold a meeting 5.45 tonight at Georgetown Playground, 34th and Volta sts. nw. Eight teams already are entered and there's room for two more. Interested teams may call Meyer Eudell, NA. 6000, ext. 2580.

Clearwater, Fla., March 25 (AP).—Richie Ashburn, flashy rookie outfielder, smashed an inside the park three-run homer in the eighth inning today to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 9-to-6 exhibition game victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the second straight day that Ashburn was the victory maker. He tripled in the eighth yesterday to lick Cincinnati, 3 to 2.

It was the fourth straight Grapefruit League decision for the Phillies.

There was a dark spot in the Sox triumph, however, as right-hander Tex Hughson was ineffective in his first start of the spring season. Hughson, hoping to come back from a sore arm, pitched two innings and gave up three runs on four hits and three walks.

Bobby Doerr led the Boston attack with five hits in five trips.

Maryland and Navy Win Baseball Openers

Terps Hand Syracuse 7-3 Setback

With Coach Burton Shipley carrying out his threat to use two teams, Maryland employed 22 men to win its baseball opener from Syracuse, 7—3, yesterday at College Park.

The Terps put the game away with a six-run uprising in the fourth, featured by a Shortstop George Brewer's double with the bases loaded. Harry Caswell was the visiting pitcher tagged.

After that, Bill Royer took over mound duties and held tht Terps scoreless the rest of the way, striking out eight in his four-inning stretch.

Bucky Loomis, tagged for a run in the first, was the winning pitcher for Maryland. Bill Zupnik yielded two runs in finishing out but never was in danger of losing the handy lead.

Ed Glaskin, Syracuse first baseman and a basketball star, tore knee cartilage in pre-game practice and will be out for the season.

Maryland Guards Against Swamp Fever

Baltimore, March 25 (AP).—The Maryland Racing Commission announced today several new rules as a result of last year's outbreak of swamp fever among horses in the New England area.

Owners of all horses coming to Maryland must present a veterinarian's certificate showing the animal is in good health and has no symptoms of the fever. No horse stabled in the New England area after August 30 will be admitted to a state track unless it has had a blood test "under the supervision of a recognized state authority."

Hogan 'Feud' Was Mistake, Cotton Says

New York, March 25 (AP).—Henry Cotton, the British golfing star who was threatened with a punch in the nose by Ben Hogan some months ago for having criticized the playing ethics of American professionals, says it was all a mistake.

"Words were put in my mouth that I didn't say," he told reporters who cornered him shortly after his arrival today from England.

"My remarks were meant simply to express wonder at the widespread use of roughed club faces over here. I'm sure I did not say anything about American players having lost the spirit of sportsmanship and fair play."

Rockets Trade Dove

Chicago, March 25 (AP). — Bob Dove, former Notre Dame end and assistant coach of the Chicago Rockets, has been traded to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Jim (Red) McCarthy.

Buckeye Turns Pro

Springfield Edged by Tars, 5-4

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—The Navy baseball team opened its season today with a 5-4 win over Springfield (Mass.) College behind the eight-hit pitching of Ronnie Burton.

Burton fanned 10 Springfield players. Navy made only five hits off the offerings of Cut Baker and Norman Swenson, but they came at the right moments.

Navy's big inning came in the sixth, when the Tars pieced together three runs on Eddie Armstrong's single, a base on balls, a wild pitch, a sacrifice and an error.

Friday, Navy takes on Syracuse, beaten by Maryland in its opener.

Landon Eyes U. S. Tennis Team Title

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

THE LANDON SCHOOL tennis team, winner of Washington's interscholastic title two years in a row has set its sights on the national championship this year, and has a good chance to reach its goal.

Every important member is back from last year's Landon team which took fourth in the nationals last year, and finished ahead of such established tennis powers as Deerfield, Andover, Exeter and Choate Academies.

Coach Dwight Collins has set the stage for Landon's late-in-May championship challenge with a rigorous 12-game slate which includes Deerfield, Mass., Hill School of Pottstown, Pa., the Navy Plebes, St. Mary's of Minesah, Wis., and the Princeton University freshmen.

Collins' biggest fear at this early stage of the season is that "one of those unpublicized schools from the West or Florida might come up with two crackerjack players and upset the dope. You only need two sharp players to win, you know," says Collins.

ANY OF LANDON'S opponents will have to come up with, a pair of super-crackerjacks to lick the Bears' lead-off pair of Gil Bogley and Jackie Yates. Bogley, of course, is former national boys champ, and earlier this year was seeded second among the Nation's juniors. He has been Washington's junior king for the past three years.

Yates has also fared well in national junior tourneys, and for the past three years has been second only to Bogley locally. The two have held the local junior doubles title for two straight years.

Landon's No. 5 man, 15-year-old Teddy Rogers, has been Washington's boys champion for two years. A newcomer who is expected to help out considerably is 15-year-old Dickerson (Smoky) Stoever, one of the top-ranking juniors in North Carolina until he moved to Washington this year. Rounding out the team are veterans Emerson Gardner and Ray Lewis.

This team, without Stoever, has run up an enviable record during the past three years. It has been undefeated against local opposition. And in its last 21 matches against all comers has lost only one, that to St. Andrews of Middleton, Del., in 1946. Last year, in addition to winning 11 straight, it won the Manursing Island, N. Y., tournament.

Landon tennis schedule:
April 1—St. Mary's of Minesah, Wis., home; 10—Navy Plebes, away; 22—Episcopal of Alexandria, away; 24—Woodberry Forest, home; 25—St. James of Hagerstown, away.
May 1-8—Sidwell Friends Invitational; 10—St. Albans, away; 12—Hill School of Pottstown, Pa., away; 15—St. Andrews of Middleton, Del., away; 19—Frederick, Md., home; 21—Princeton University freshmen, away; 22—Deerfield, Mass., away.

New Fauquier Budget Put At $686,230

Warrenton, Va., March 25 (Spl.).—At a special meeting held here today, the Fauquier County Board of Supervisors approved a tentative county budget for the 1948-49 fiscal year of $686,230 and calling for an increase in the county tax rate from $1.10 per $100 valuation to $1.45. A public hearing on the tax problem was set for May 1.

An increase in the county school budget was the major item affecting the tax rate, although the requests of the various county agencies were generally higher than a year ago. The supervisors approved $300,000 as the county share of the school budget, which with State funds is expected to total $544,000 or more. A year ago the supervisors approved a school budget of $250,000 but supplemented it during the current year with additional appropriations totaling $10,500.

C. M. Bradley, superintendent of Fauquier schools, explained to the supervisors that the request for more funds was necessary in order to meet increased operation costs, improve transportation facilities, provide additional teachers, increase teachers pay, and for building repair and improvement work.

An appropriation of $3600 was approved in the Health Department budget, to pay the county share of a State health department program to treat children's teeth with sodium fluoride as a decay preventive measure. This program, the first to be adopted in Virginia, is scheduled to start with the new school year in September.

Members of the Fauquier County Board of Supervisors are L. W. Trenis, chairman; A. F. Pilcher, R. G. Pierce, Tom Frost and J. D. McCarty.

Final Arguments Set Thursday on Fare Increases

Baltimore, March 25 (AP).—The Maryland Public Service Commission today set final arguments next Thursday on the Capital Transit Co.'s request for a rate increase on its Washington suburban lines reaching into Maryland.

The final hearing was set after Arthur Brumel, one of many Prince Georges County residents who have complained against the rate increase, filed a brief with the commission. The company filed a written summation of its position yesterday.

Phil H. Dorsey, jr., people's counsel for the PSC, requested permission to present oral arguments as "the best way to sum up the people's case."

Capital Transit served notice in December that it planned to reorganize its "hodgepodge" system of fares from the District of Columbia lines to various communities in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties. The new plan calls for setting up zones, 1½ miles across, fanning out from the District line. It would cost a nickel to ride into or across a zone.

In long hearings before the commission, the company contended it loses money on its operations in Maryland. The final arguments are set for 10:30 a. m.

Unless the Public Service Commission rules to the contrary, the transit company's proposed new rate schedule will automatically go into effect on April 8, one week after the final arguments.

Historic Stone Given To Maryland

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—A piece of stone from the bombed British parliament building was presented to Maryland today "as a memorial to the common heritage of the English-speaking people."

The presentation was made by Mrs. Ormond Lawson-Johnston of New York, City, the American wife of an Englishman.

It was received on behalf of the State by former Senator George L. Radcliffe and then presented to Governor Lane.

Encased in Glass

The stone—a tan bricklike fragment—is encased in a box with a glass covering. It will be kept temporarily in the memorial flag room at the State House.

Behind the presentation were the efforts of Charles Sumner Byrd and Eric Gordon Underwood, members of the American-British Commonwealth Association.

Mrs. Lawson-Johnston spoke of the sacrifices of the British people in recent years and said, "'the important thing is service to the empire. Those that have wealth must give to others. Less fortunates must give of themselves."

She voiced the faith that Britain would rise again from its present straits and said that never before has there been such understanding in England and gratitude to the American people.

Governor Lane said he accepted the stone as a "token of the tie that has bound our two countries constantly ever since the separation. There has always been the common interest with England as liberty-loving people."

The former Senator said the gift "bears witness to a long succession of historic and important contacts and friendly relations between Great Britain and the State of Maryland.

Radcliffe is president of the Maryland Historical Society.

Va. Decision Promised On Phone Rate Hike

Richmond, Va., March 25 (AP).—Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. subscribers will know within the next several days if rates will be raised, the State corporation commission said today.

The announcement came at the end of a lengthy hearing on the proposed increases this afternoon.

The telephone company wants to raise residential rates 25 cents a month and business phone rates 50 cents a month.

3 Masked Bandits Rob Theater Safe of $6880

Baltimore, March 25 (AP).—Three masked Negroes walked into the Royal Theater early today, tied up two janitors and looted the office safe of $6880 in cash and $19,000 in checks.

Police said janitors Alexander Williams and Floyd Robinson were so rattled by the experience they were unable to describe the trio. The thieves left a key in the front door.

Burglars also broke into a real estate office last night and made off with a safe and its $8000 worth of securities.

Aussie Seeks Southern Data at Source, 'CSA'

Fredericksburg, Va., March 25 (AP).—National Park Service officials here have received a letter from an Australian who apparently is unaware the South rejoined the Union.

Hiss letter, seeking information on Southern generals, was addressed to:

"The superintendent, Fredericksburg & Spotsylvania County National Military Park, Fredericksburg, Va., C. S. A. (Confederate States of America)."

AP Names Shoemaker Acting Correspondent

Annapolis, Md., March 25 (AP).—A. Whitney Shoemaker, member of the local bureau of the Associated Press, was named acting correspondent today, replacing John P. Trimmer. Trimmer will become director of the newly created Maryland Department of Information on Monday.

William Baldwin, an editor in the Baltimore bureau for the past year, will be transferred to Annapolis Monday.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After Philandering Husband's Death, Widow Hears That He Dallied With Her Best Friend; Should She Let Friend Know That She Knows?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: After 10 years of married life, five of which were happy, the other five full of mental anguish because I learned of the affairs my husband had with other women, he died rather suddenly.

Our friends who knew of the philandering told me to "close the book," and some indeed went so far as to remark to others that I was better off a widow.

Just recently a very old friend of my husband's and mine told me that even during the first years of marriage, when I was ignorant of his philandering, he was going around with my best friend, who had been maid of honor at my wedding, which I mention to indicate what close friends we were.

Friend Seems Very Devoted

ALTHOUGH I had learned of other affairs during the last half of my marriage, this was a special shock, of course; and it seems that everyone knew it but me. Now the question is: Should I let her know that I know?

I have no doubt it's true, in view of my recollections of that time; and after much reflection I can honestly say that I think it was my guardian angel who kept the truth from me at a time when it would have broken my heart. But can any purpose be served by discussing it with her now?

She was single in those years, but has married since, and so far as I know, is fairly happy. Only lately we have become associated again and it seems she can't do enough for me. She goes out of her way to be nice and my inclination is to forget the past. And yet sometimes when we are together I have an impulse to tell her what was told me. I would appreciate your wise counsel as to just what course to pursue. E. N.

The Informer Is Nobody's Friend

DEAR E. N.: In view of the fact that your husband is dead, and the maid of honor now happily married and actively devoted to you, it is plain as the nose on a clown's face that the person who just recently "opened the book" to put the finger on her as one of your husband's earlier post-marital inamoratas is nobody's friend, but rather somebody who can't resist making others uncomfortable, given opportunity, if they show signs of learning how to live serenely.

You speak of her as a very old friend. That's a misnomer. Call her an old acquaintance, rather, not one of those who would truly rejoice to see you regaining peace of mind at long last, in which category the former maid of honor seems to belong.

The verity of the informer's tattle is beside the point that she was, in effect, opening a wound that was healing nicely, and doing it with malicious intent to spoil a present association that is beneficial to both concerned, by virtue of abiding fondness invested, which mutual affection still speaks for itself, despite separate penalties paid to your late husband's havoc-working temperament.

Bury the Man's Folly With Him

AS TO whether any good purpose might be served by confronting her with this bit of hearsay, I don't see how you could broach the subject without forfeiting dignity, because in a sense you would be inviting an autopsy of your unhappy marriage and the man who made it so,—conduct unbecoming to a widow, surely.

It seems to me the deceased's frailties ought in decency to be buried with him; and whether she denied the allegation or affirmed its truth, she wouldn't be defending, explaining or incriminating herself alone. And in the event delicacy prompted her to give the social lie to what you've heard, your role in the exchange would not be enviable, — bidding for source-material about his infidelities, while he molders in the grave.

As between the informer and the accused, I should bank on the latter as the kinder friend when your back is turned, now that the fevers of youth are o'er; hence I see no reason to let the one's verbal sting spoil your mature-age enjoyment of the other's company,—and it would be spoiled, if you carried the gossip to her. M. H.

German Art Story To Be Related At Celebrity Tea

The dramatic story of the discovery of priceless German art treasures, now on exhibit at the National Gallery of Art, will be told during the celebrity interview hour on Monday, 5:30 p. m. in the Palladian Room of the Shoreham Hotel. The paintings were brought to this country for safekeeping after being discovered by the United States Army in a German salt mine in 1945.

The tea is to be sponsored by the Artists Guild of Washington. John Walker, chief curator of the National Gallery, and Lieut. Col. Irvine Russell, assistant chief of operations in the military district of Washington, will be guest speakers and will be interviewed by selected members of the press. Colonel Russell made the original discovery of the 202 Berlin Museum paintings buried 21,000 feet underground in a mine near Merkers, Germany.

Hermann W. Williams, jr., director of Corcoran Gallery of Art, will act as moderator. Honor guests at the speakers table will include local and visiting artists. The celebrity interview tea, to which the public is invited, is a regular Monday feature held at the Shoreham.

Follow Ida Jean Kain's 18-Day Diet

Food to Please the Budget

FRIDAY feature: Succulent broiled fish is the main dish for today on Ida Jean Kain's "Reducing-on-a-budget" diet now running in The Washington Post. A touch of lemon won't add enough calories to count

By Ida Jean Kain

GONE are the days when we could all diet fashionably on juicy steaks and broiled lamb chops—with nary a thought for the butcher bill. It's not only in the nursery rhyme that the cow jumped over the moon, and Mary's little lamb followed!

With scientific ingenuity, the reducing diet is balanced on a budget. Paring food costs and weight at the same time, you'll feel chipper as the first robin in spring—instead of busting out all over.

Bear in mind it's only overeating that leads to waist. By applying nutrition knowledge to menu planning, you can cut calories below your energy requirements and meet all the other dietary needs. You can be on a perfect reducing diet at comparatively low cost.

To get the right slant on things, remember that no food is fattening until it puts the calories over the top of your requirements. This is true of Irish stew, baked beans, macaroni and cheese, spaghetti and meat balls, or any dish you can name.

The low-cost cuts of meat are not nutritionally inferior—it doesn't matter which part of the cow the cut comes from, it still provides the same good quality protein.

No, it's not eating good wholesome food, high or low cost, that makes for overweight. It's eating too much of it. And calories can be cut in any menu. Our model, Barbara Anne, stopped overeating and took off 20 excess pounds on regular family menus. Let's peek into her diet diary.

"Monday: Fish tonight and I ate lots of fish, cole slaw, a baked potato, and plums for dessert. Eating to reduce isn't half bad! Tuesday: Meat loaf was the main dish—I cut calories in gravy. Wednesday: Swiss steak with tomato sauce and all kinds of vegetables was our tasty treat tonight. I had 'ladylike' servings of each. Thursday: Hurrah! The scales are down another pound today."

Barbara Anne ate to take off weight—she had three good meals a day, built around the protective foods. Calories were cut by trimming fat and deleting rich carbohydrates.

"It's wonderful to eat to reduce," writes Barrie enthusiastically. "People think dieting means starving. They have the idea that any solid food is fattening and just can't believe you can eat well and lose weight!"

Follow the reducing on a budget diet and cut costs and calories.

Interchangeable Foods

Skimmed milk—buttermilk

Vegetables in same general percentage of carbohydrates class are interchangeable.

3 to 5%: asparagus, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, egg plant, greens, string beans, sauerkraut, spinach, summer squash, tomatoes, artichokes, celery

15%: lima beans, parsnips, peas

20%: corn, macaroni, potatoes, rice, beans — kidney, lima, navy

Fruits

10%: grapefruit, oranges, cantaloupe; peaches, strawberries, pineapple—all fresh

15%: fresh apples, blueberries, grapes, pears; canned peaches, apricots, pineapple.

Margarine and butter have approximately the same caloric and nutritive value

Special Salad Dressing

1 cup white vinegar — juice of 1 lemon
½ cup salad oil — ½ tsp. paprika
½ cup catsup — 1 grated onion
3 tbsp. brown sugar

Mix well . . . Use 1 tbsp. on salad, 30 calories per tbsp. Boiled salad dressing, made with skim milk, contains 25 calories per tbsp.

ALTERNATE item: Fluffy, golden-brown omelet is suggested by Miss Kain as an alternate for the main dish on her diet any day you're in the mood for one. You can eat it with the satisfying feeling that it's neither too fattening or too expensive, since we're now near the height of the egg-production season. A two-egg omelet, made with a couple of tablespoons of milk and one tablespoon of margarine, nets only around 200 calories

Today's Money-Saving Menus

Eat to beat the high cost of food and banish excess fat. These low calorie menus afford perfect nutrition at comparatively low cost.

To get the most nutritive value at low cost and low calories, skimmed milk is used in place of whole milk. Restricting dairy fats to lower calories lessens the Vitamin A. This can be obtained in a concentrate without calories and at a cost of a bit over one cent a day. Supplement menus with one Vitamin A and D concentrate, supplying 5000 units of Vitamin A and 400 units of Vitamin D per day. Or, use one multiple vitamin concentrate.

Since all foods included may not be available everywhere, interchangeable foods are listed—also recipe for special salad dressing.

Ask Anne — How Long Will Left-Overs Keep?

Can you tell me how long I may keep left-over canned vegetables, soups, and baby foods in the refrigerator? I probably throw them away sooner than necessary being so uncertain of them. S. R.

How long left-over foods will stay edible in the refrigerator depends upon the temperature and location of food in the refrigerator. If the refrigerator is moderately cold and the left-overs kept covered under the frezzing unit, they will usually keep satisfactorily for three days. A good rule is to check the left-overs in the refrigerator each morning or every other day at least, so that all left-over food can be used well in advance of spoiling.

I would like to know the reason all coffee recipes, regardless of the type of coffee-maker, say to start it in cold water. F. G. C.

A check of several well-known recipe books reveals only one method of making coffee which specifies starting with cold water. This is the boiled coffee method, where the dry coffee is measured into the pot, egg added, if desired, to clarify the coffee and cold water poured over the two. These ingredients are then brought slowly to a boil, immediately removed from the heat and allowed to stand

On the Party Calendar

VETERAN members of the OSS met yesterday at the Hotel Roosevelt for a reception in honor of their wartime chief, Gen. William J. Donovan. It was an inaugural meet, the first of its kind held in Washington. Several hundred attended.

Yesterday's party was a try-out for a possible yearly arrangement.

Veterans of Strategic Services have organized VSS clubs throughout the country, but there has been out one country, but there has never been one in Washington. The Office of Strategic Services was famous during the war for its list of eminent employes. The cafeteria in Que Building was one of the brightest spots in town.

General Donovan received yesterday with members of the committee, all veterans of the OSS. They included Robert Woods Bliss, David K. E. Bruce, Mrs. Julia Childs, Col. William A. Eddy, Mrs. Prentiss Gilbert, Fisher Howe, Samuel C. King, Duncan C. Lee, Gen. John Magruder, Col. Kenenth D. Mann, Guy Martin, Edward McGinnis, John L. Moore, Miss Beatrice Phillips and Admiral William T. Terrant.

Miss Ruth Ellen Smith Is Entertained

MRS. Thomas G. Boisclair of Arlington, Va., entertained at a bridge party last evening in honor of Miss Ruth Ellen Smith, who will be married to George William Graves, jr., on March 30. Other parties which have been given for the bride-elect include showers by Mrs. John T. Kenealy, Mrs. J. Elmer Oliver, Mrs. William M. Temple and Miss Margaret McKenney.

Bridge parties and showers have also been given for Miss Smith by her former college classmates, Miss Patricia Ann Garrett, Miss Ann Marie Stewart, Miss Virginia Ann Keimig and Mrs. William A. Ham.

Lady Astor To Be Star At Luncheon

By Genevieve Reynolds

WHEN dynamic Lady Astor appears on a program, there's always a clamor for invitations or tickets. The petite, tee-totaler usually packs plenty of pithy wallops in her remarks. Hence when she discusses "Women as Peace Builders" at a luncheon meeting sponsored by the Capital Division, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, April 9, in the Mayflower Hotel, hundreds will be there to hear her, including the First Lady, who heads a list of distinguished patronesses for the event.

The British Minister of Economic Affairs, Sir John Magowan and Lady Magowan, will represent Great Britain, Lady Astor's adopted country. On hand to represent her native State, will be Lieutenant Governor of Virginia, Lewis Preston, and Mrs. Preston. All the distaff members of Congress—Representatives Margaret Chase Smith, Edith Nourse Rogers, Frances Bolton, Georgia Lusk, Helen Gahagan Douglas also have been invited as honored guests.

Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, will be among the patronesses as will Lady Inverchapel, wife of the British Ambassador; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; Mrs. Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador; Mrs. H. T. Andrews, wife of the Minister of South Africa; Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador; Mme. Henrik de Kauffmann, wife of the Danish Ambassador; Mme. K. T. Jutila, wife of the Finnish Minister; Mme. E. N. Van Kleffans, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador; Lady Berendsen, wife of the New Zealand Minister; Mme. Carles Bruggmann, wife of the Swiss Minister.

Well-known Washington residents on the patroness list include Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and Mrs. McCook Knox. Mrs. Charles McNary is the association's chairman of patronesses and Mrs. C. L. Forsling, 3883 Arcadia pl. nw., is in charge of tickets.

Georgetown School To Have First Dance

FOR the first time in its history, Georgetown Visitation Convent—oldest girls' school in the United States—will sponsor a dance. The Junior Alumnae Association group of the famous convent, which was founded in 1799, is organizing the spring cotillion, scheduled for Friday, April 9, at the Carlton Hotel. Proceeds of the gala, exclusive affair, will go to the school's building fund. A goal of $250,000 has been set for 1949, at which time the convent will celebrate its sesquicentennial founding anniversary.

One of the highlights of the evening will be a cotillion figure danced by 12 members of the Junior College of the Convent. These will include Miss Anne Mundell, Miss Beverley Bourdet, Miss Jackie Lowey, Miss Mary Ellen Williams, Miss Mary Pickenbrock, Miss Rosa Owings, Miss Anne Cunningham, Miss Audrienne Fredericks, Miss Virginia Igoe, Miss Mary Cornelia Conley, Miss Mary Pat Kendrigan and Miss Katherine Bull.

Miss Helen O'Connor heads the dance committee. Assisting her are Miss Jane Callaghan, Miss Mary Shipe, Miss Nancy Keane, Mrs. Robert Danaher and Mrs. John Conley.

The junior college committee is composed of Miss Katherine O'Connell, chairman; Miss Jane Bopp, Miss Hope Hegarty, Miss Martha Ryan, Miss Florence Altemus, Miss Joan Fox, Miss Elizabeth Vickers, Miss Terry Hansen, Miss Rosella Graham, Miss Ella Fitzpatrick, Miss Mary Anne Muckerman, Miss Josephine Keane and Miss Edith Moses.

Heading the patrons committee is Miss Rose Saul. General chairman of the cotillion is Mrs. Frederick Sterling.

Junior Leaguers Go Through Paces For '48 Follies

"Play more deadpan"

"Get an extra laugh on that one"

"Relax"

The Junior Leaguers were being put through the paces for their forthcoming show.

Mrs. Ernest Swift, Miss Lucy Wooley, Miss Marian Evans, Mrs. Kenneth Hoeffel, Mrs. William Mann, Mrs. George McGheee, Miss Bliss Schuman, Mrs. Henry Bodman, Mrs. John Cutler and other members are spending bright spring days indoors rehearsing for the Follies which will be shown April 8, 9, and 10 at Lisner Auditorium.

Even the shortest skit reveals professional talent among erstwhile amateurs, and a good laugh is guaranteed with many lines.

A ballroom waltz, a waltz ballet, a country dance, and a colorful Latin number called Top Hats and Tails, will be special features in the Follies. There will be an original song by Robert Reeside, and the catchy tune "Haven't Got You" will be sung by William Coyle.

The opening night will be a gala affair. Among those with reservations for that night are Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, Mrs. William A. Morgan, Mrs. William Pope Anderson, Mrs. Dana C. Belser, Mrs. Edward S. Keyes, Mrs. George Wade Martin, Commander John W. Morse, Mrs. Carroll Morgan, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. H. B. Mirick, Miss Carol Preston, Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck and Mrs. W. D. Egolf.

Dramatic Night Cable Plan Will Carry 'Hopes' of U. S. To Italy Election Eve

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THERE isn't much time left before the Italian elections. A unique way to encourage and enlighten Italians via their American relatives and friends is being planned.

Some time within the next week a large advertisement, inserted in as many Washington and Baltimore newspapers as the donors' generosity allows, will publicize the idea. Here's how it's going to work:

Special rate, 25-word night letter cables will be made available to people who send in their names and addresses, plus names and addresses of relatives and friends they'd like to contact in Italy. To avoid duplication in cables sent to the same towns, there'll be several different wordings of the messages.

The cables will contain no bribe offer of bread, no threats, but will merely say that the United States has great faith in the Italian people and intends to support them wholeheartedly in their quest for freedom; that Italy made one tragic mistake in making war against us, and another must not be made lest they be cut off from us forever.

The night letters will be sent just before election day, April 18. In small towns and villages, the dramatic impact of receiving a cable from America will undoubtedly make a great impression.

The cables will cost $2.10 apiece, and it's expected a minimum of 5000 will be sent by Italo-Americans in the two cities. To finance the undertaking, friends of Italy and those interested in stopping the tide of communism can send checks to the Committee for Democratic Italy at the National Press Building. The advertisement costs, it's hoped, will be raised privately, and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon, who is prime mover of the project, is rallying such staunch friends of Italy as Mrs. Truxton Beale and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins to help.

Alla on the Map

SMART, PRETTY ALLA KENT, who made such a hit in wartime Washington, has set herself up most successfully in New York running a gift buying service called Presents Unlimited. Associated with her—or vice versa—in a newspaper clipping bureau is Ivan Sanderson, author, naturalist, who worked during the war in the British Information Service.

Ivan, who authored "African Gold" and "Caribbean Treasure," is using spare moments to write a history of whales! Both Alla and Ivan are pleasant, unpretentious, hard-working people, who don't charge their clients a cent.

Recently, a public relations firm was hired to put Alla on the map. Here's how they describe her:

"Mrs. Alla B. Kent, wife of the journalist-war correspondent, Frank R. Kent, jr., who is the son of the noted columnist. She is the former Alla Ballas-Donell, member of a royal Byzantine family, with a background as film actress, artist, writer and interior decorator, beauty prize winner on the French Riviera, social adviser to governments-in-exile. Voted Washington socialite with most sex-appeal."

Greetings to State Department

LATELY, a few select members of the State Department's Eastern European division have received red-hot Soviet propaganda postcards scribbled with mysterious messages. The sender, it has been disclosed, is whimsical, brilliant, Russian composer Nicholas Nabokoff, who picked up the batch of early Bolshevik cards in a junk shop. Mr. N., who comes to Washington to teach two or three pupils, after his stint at Baltimore's Peabody Institute, often drops in on Cleveland's Kay Halle. Last trip he told about Russia's star composer, Prokofiev, being so ill of a heart condition that he is allowed to work only an hour a day. Discussing the public chastisement meted Russia's three topflight composers by the Soviet government, Nabokoff quipped, the only tune entirely suitable for Stalin's ear is "The Merry Widow." Author of several delightful New Yorker pieces, Nabokoff is busy turning out another masterpiece, an account of his Christmas spent with Stokowski.

Club Women to Model Old and New Fashions

Costumes from 1780 to 1948 will be modeled in the Old and New Fashion Show to be given on Wednesday, 1:30 p. m., to Woodside Methodist Church by the Maryland antiquities and home and garden departments of the Silver Spring Woman's Club.

Mrs. Grover Poole will serve as commentator and tea will follow. Those who took part in planning the program include Mrs. Walter S. Bryde, Mrs. Howard Wooster, Mrs. William B. Marks, Mrs. R. C. Stelle, Mrs. H. E. Gorseline, Mrs. Louis B. Schneider, Mrs. C. Harris White, Mrs. William McGinnis, Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. Wilbur E. Ridgeway, Mrs. Bernard Burdick, Mrs. R. C. Soxman and Mrs. R. E. Dimitri Wolkonsky.

WHEN the small fry go stepping this summer they'll want to look something like this party-going couple. Left to right are Natasha Wolkonsky and Michael Quinn who served as models at the Children's Fashion Show at the Raleigh Hotel. A girl needs a parasol to keep up with the ultra-feminine pace of 1948 styles, and little Natasha proves what a fetching accessory it can be when matched with her dotted swiss frock. Lace fluting trims both dress and parasol. "Very pretty," says Michael, but keeps his head cocked well out of range of the wire prongs of his partner's fancy umbrella. His ensemble is a tweed eton suit with checked jacket and contrasting trousers. Available at Kann's in under-six sizes

Richard Tucker, tenor with the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be a guest artist when Washington Chapter of Hadassah holds its annual donor supper and dance, Wednesday, March 31, 8 p. m. at the Shoreham Hotel. Proceeds of the seventeenth annual benefit will go to the organization's Youth Aliyah Fund.

Youth Aliyah has rescued 25,000 Jewish children from Europe and transported them to camps in Palestine, where they are nursed back to health and given a fresh start in life. Although more than 14,000 of the 25,000 children saved in the last 13 years now are well adjusted, self-supporting farmers, professional men and women, there still are 54,000 children in the DP camps in Europe and Cyprus.

Mrs. Ralph Tourover, Washington representatives on Hadassah's national board and liaison officer between the organization and government departments, will be principal speaker. She will discuss the current Palestine situation. Recently she completed a tour of the United States on behalf of Hadassah's Youth Aliyah and its medical organization in Palestine.

Meyer Davis will fly in from Florida to conduct his orchestra personally for the affair.

A Magnifying Glass

If your eyes are not as good as they once were and you have difficulty reading small figures in the recipes, keep a small magnifying glass in the drawer with the cook book and use this to figure out whether it is ½ or ¼. It might make a difference in the cooking if you read the number incorrectly.

Different Kinds of Bread

When making many sandwiches for the party, by all means make them of different kinds of bread. Use white bread for the more delicate pastes and whole or cracked wheat bread for the cheese or fish pastes. Don't forget rye bread for the popular ham and Swiss cheese combination.

for 3 to 5 minutes for the grounds to settle.

The coffee is started with cold water with this method because, at low boiling temperatures, maximum amounts of caffeine (the stimulant) and volatile oils, which give the aroma and flavor, are extracted and remain in the solution so the drinker enjoys them. If boiling water is poured onto the dry coffee and it is then allowed to boil until done, much of the coffee flavor is lost due to evaporation. Coffee odor is pleasant, but the more odor you have in the house the less flavor you have in your cup.

Percolated coffee may be started with cold water, but time is saved by using just under boiling water since it has to heat almost to the boiling point before it starts to "perk." With the drip and vacuum methods, the water has to be boiling before it comes in contact with the coffee.

Reasons for Steel Price Rise Fail to Convince Most People

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 25.—The reasons given by the steel companies for raising the price of certain items of steel were apparently not presented very effectively to the American people.

A coast-to-coast poll shows that among voters who have heard about the price raise, the reaction is unfavorable. Approximately two thirds of those aware of the price change say they think the companies should not have taken this step. While steel men might argue that the general public is not aware of all the facts involved in the price change, these voters give three principal reasons for holding the opinions they do:

1. That the increase will tend to raise the price of other things and thus contribute to inflation.
2. That steel profits were greater than ever last year.
3. That steel is priced high enough now.

About one sixth of the voters polled called the price increase justified, and they gave these arguments.

1. That high labor costs made the price boost necessary.
2. That "everything else" has gone up and that because of higher costs of production the steel companies are entitled to raise prices.

Voters were asked:

From what you've read in the newspapers or heard on the radio, would you say the steel companies should or should not have raised the price of steel?

Should	16%
Should not	65
No opinion	19

Steel executives have denied the raise would cause a general increase in the price of steel products or the cost of living.

They say the price rise applies only to certain semifinished steel products, representing a small proportion of the industry's output. According to some estimates the price increase will apply to about 10 per cent of the industry's production.

However, some critics of the move, including Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, have expressed concern over the psychological effect of the price rise and feared that it might touch off another round of price and wage increases.

Many businessmen have taken the position that prices should not be curbed unless at the same time some attempt is made to keep wages from going up.

The general public shows no strong disposition to favor wage increases. A recent poll by the institute found that the weight of opinion is that factory workers should not get wage boosts at the present time.

In short, the general attitude is that both price rises and wage increases are inadvisable now.

The poll on wages follows:

Many unions of factory workers are going to ask for a pay increase within the next month or two. Do you think these factory workers should get more pay?

Should get increase	34%

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Identity of "Big Chief Wind Bag" Remains $20,000 Mystery

A week ago tonight, Mrs. Gay Rittler of 3425 E. Capitol st. was in Hollywood, with a chance to win $20,000 on the People Are Funny radio program.

MRS. RITTLER

Mrs. Rittler's husband (Edward T.) remained in Washington beside his radio, and I wisecracked that he was probably biting his fingernails in anticipation. Ed promptly replied:

"Sorry to have to correct you, but I haven't had time to chew my fingernails because I've been busy answering the phone ever since your item appeared. Thanks to everybody for all the good wishes."

Unfortunately for the home team, Mrs. Rittler didn't answer the riddle correctly, and neither did Mrs. E. W. Meredith of 9-D Southway rd., Greenbelt, Md., who was called long distance later in the program.

Charles E. Hartman of 503 G st. sw. writes, "What is this baffling riddle that cost two District Liners a chance at $20,000? How about publishing it for us, together with the correct answer?"

According to my notes, the riddle is: "Big chief wind bag, gloomy and gay. I'm one over others that I'm in decay. Where may I be found? Upon low ground. That's all. That's all I will say."

The correct answer? As far as I'm concerned, anybody who can figure that one out deserves the $20,000.

CLUB NOTES

Mrs. H. Thompson Straw of 601 Poplar dr., Falls Church, Va., suggests that we might call this one "Woman's Clubicity," or "A Husband's Lament":

She shows in domesticity
Some measure of felicity
Which really is duplicity
When state of mind is known.
Her clubs cause much publicity;
They come in multiplicity,
Defying tranquilicity,
And peacefulness has flown.

I suspect that many a "club widower" will sigh, "You said it, lady."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Down in North Carolina, your "Spring is sprung, grass is riz" poem has been a favorite for years. I don't know the name of the author, but I object to seeing it published over somebody else's initials.

Annabel Barnes,
2131 I st. nw.

Dear Annabel:

We don't ever knowingly use verse which is submitted by anybody but the original author. But sometimes a jingle whose origin is lost in antiquity does slip through.

This poem was also questioned by Ruth Contract of 906 Gallatin st. nw., and by Jean Aamodt of 4306 Woodberry st., Hyattsville, Md.

District Liners can help us keep this corner fresh and local by sending in only those items, incidents, jokes and poems which are original with them. Thank you. Bill.

A BUNNY FOR YOUR THOUGHTS

The announcement that the Scots plan to increase their food supplies by raising more rabbits moves Les Finnegan of 1929 16th st. nw. to comment:

"How appropriate. They'll raise them on the bunny, bunny banks of Loch Lomond."

As that old punster Nate Leiderman would put it, Les: Drop a penny in the punalty box for that one.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Female shepherd puppy, two months old, very attractive." (Chestnut 7861).

"Three white kittens, 6 weeks old." (Woodley 6114).

"Gray maltese mother cat and five kittens. Also two grown all black cats." (Temple 3360).

Note to Mrs. P. Y. Lee, 3609 Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria, Va.: There is no charge for Give-Away items.

NEW WORDS DEPT.

Take it to a used car lot, Les. These prices can't last forever.

RECORD?

Mrs. F. H. Jackson of 106 Raymond st., Chevy Chase, Md., tells me that when her maid, Mary, failed to come to work last Tuesday, it was the first time in 12 years that she'd missed a day—and that was because of illness.

There's a record for domestic help that's going to be hard to top. Anybody care to try it?

WAS IT THAT WINDY?

M. M. S. of 1813 Key blvd., Arlington, Va., thinks there must be a story hidden in the recent lost-and-found ad which read:

SKIRT—black, broadcloth; lost at corner of Wisconsin and W pl. nw. Reward.

EASTER THOUGHT

"I guess everybody has his own interpretation of Easter," writes Constance Steel of 1743 P st. nw. "I like this one best":

"Let us sing of Easter gladness
That rejoices every day.
Song of Faith and Hope uplifted,
Love has rolled the stone away."

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (96.3).

NEW YORK.—George Abbott, the producer-director, is the most ardent parlor games player in New York. Once he and some friends boarded a train for Florida and decided to ease the monotony of the trip by playing indications. When it was Abbott's turn to guess the word, he went to a corner of the car while the others selected the word. They agreed to select no word at all, but to keep Abbott guessing and guessing . . . He called upon each, in turn, to indicate by action various phases of the word. They all went through the motions, giving conflicting indications. After 45 minutes of desperately trying to guess it, Abbott finally conceded: "I give up. What's the word?" The others told him it was a joke—that there was no word. Abbott turned, left the car, got off at Philadelphia and returned to New York.

Sinclair Lewis is deep into his new novel . . . Russell Maloney, the CBS book critic, prepared a magazine article about 3d ave., and in his research, and as did the drunkard in "The Lost Week End," walked the avenue from 4th st. to 86th st., counting the number of bars. He found 139 bars, 1 to every 30 yards . . . Jock Lawrence, vice president of the J. Arthur Rank organization, made a transcontinental trip on a train and was disappointed in the service. He met a railroad executive, listed his complaints, and said: "From now on, it's Caveat Emptor." The railroad man asked him "What does that mean?" and Lawrence told him: "It means have you seen the new DC-6s?"

A young actor who met Louis Calhern asked him about a veteran star. Calhern praised him. "Now I'm really puzzled," said the young actor. "You praise him—but I've heard so many others knock him, I don't know what to believe" . . . "In the acting profession, whose members usually dramatize and exaggerate, use this measure in judging a person," Calhern counseled. "Discount half of the knocks you hear against him and double the praise."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Boost for MacArthur Starts Row

By Drew Pearson

When benign Supreme Court Justice Wiley Rutledge put on his dinner jacket for a Wisconsin University alumni banquet in Washington recently, he didn't realize that before the evening was over he would find himself in the middle of a hot political row over Gen. Douglas MacArthur that almost broke up the dishes.

Rutledge

The fireworks started when toastmaster George Worthington, president of Wisconsin's D. C. alumni chapter, suddenly veered from a nostalgic speech on his alma mater and began praising MacArthur. He extolled the brass-hatted presidential candidate as "that great, colorful American we all love so much.

Worthington had hardly finished when another Wisconsin alumnus in the rear of the banquet hall jumped up.

"I offer a resolution that the Washington chapter of the Wisconsin Alumni Association shall never again be used as a political platform for any presidential candidate," he shouted.

There were several equally loud seconds and the meeting soon became a bedlam, with Worthington unable to restore order. Finally scholarly Justice Rutledge, sitting next to the pro-MacArthur toastmaster, tried to restore order.

"This is most unfortunate," declared the jurist. He didn't explain whether he was referring to the MacArthur speech or the resolution condemning it. However, the resolution was finally tabled, amid boos. Whereupon, Worthington arose to "explain" his political comments, during which he again eulogized MacArthur and started a fresh outbreak.

One heckler shouted:: "If you're so strong for MacArthur, please explain his censorship policies in Japan. Is that democracy?"

Several others joined the chorus and were ruled "out of order" by Rutledge. Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin finally gave a soothing sermon on brotherly love, quoting at length from scripture.

Orders From Moscow?

It looks as if Henry Wallace's third party is now acting on direct orders from Moscow.

When the Cominform met in Warsaw last year, Comrade Zhdanov, the gentleman who brought direct instructions from the Kremlin, instructed the Cominform to concentrate on wiping out all non-Communist liberals. He described liberal Socialists and labor leaders as the chief enemies of communism—because they had a greater appeal to the masses. The conservatives, Zhdanov said, were unwitting friends of communism because their reactionary policies played into Communist hands.

For some time the Communists have been religiously following this policy in Europe—which was why Nicolai Petkoff, Bulgarian peasant leader, was bumped off; also why 30,000 other Bulgar Socialists were executed.

But in recent months, this policy has cropped up in the USA—with Henry Wallace's third party cracking the whip.

The Zhdanov policy apparently was behind the ultimatum recently served on two conscientious liberal members of Congress from California—Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas and Chet Holifield—that they must toe the Wallace third-party line or face defeat. C. B. (Beanie) Baldwin, chief campaign manager for Wallace, notified these two able members of Congress that the jig was up politically unless they voted against the Marshall Plan and went down the line for other Communist policies.

And since the Wallace third party can pull enough votes away from Douglas and Holifield to elect a Republican, this ultimatum meant almost certain political death.

However, Mrs. Douglas and Holifield refused to be intimidated. Like Nicolai Petkoff, who was hanged in Bulgaria, they will probably be hanged politically by the Wallaceites. But they are not surrendering.

Organized labor did some loud protesting this week as the Labor Department's appropriation bill, mauled by Representative John Taber in the House, limped into the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Both AFL and CIO spokesmen are demanding that the Senate reject Taber's meat-ax "economy," which would destroy vital functions of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, eliminate veterans' reemployment activities and slash the Labor Department's over-all budget to $12,498,200. This is virtually one fourth less than the Budget Bureau says is needed for the next fiscal year.

For years the BLS reports on industrial production, earnings, employment, industrial accidents, home construction, etc., have proved highly valuable to management as well as labor in planning for the future. The Federal and State Governments and Congressional committees also have depended on bureau services for guidance in economic planning.

Real house

A house may have a sturdy roof . . . To guard against the rain . . . And yet it may not always be . . . The very best domain . . . Its doors and windows may be strong . . . Its every wall secure . . . And all its furnishings may hold . . . A wonderful allure . . . But more important to the house . . . Are those who live inside . . . And whether they take care of it . . . With pleasure and with pride . . . If love is in the living-room . . . And smiles go up the stair . . . And Friendship fills the atmosphere . . . For those who enter there . . . And whether there are little ones . . . Who run around and roam . . . With all the laughter that it takes . . . To make a house a home.
